Up to 149 Million Could Be Killed in Atom Attack on U.S., McNamara Says

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told Congress today it is unlikely that a massive nuclear attack on the United States by the Soviet Union would spare American cities at the start and hit only military targets.

The defense chief discarded the no-cities theory which some U.S. strategists have entertained, hopefully, in predicting the form of any general war.

In his annual military posture statement, prepared as the foundation for his testimony before the House Armed Services Committee, McNamara did not name Red China as an immediate menace to American targets, despite her detonation of a nuclear test device and a U.S. prediction that another may be forthcoming in the near future.

But he did not rule out the long-range menace of the Chinese Communist power.

"Although results may be slow in coming," he said after discussing Red China's economic and industrial difficulties, "there is no reason to suppose that the Chinese cannot in time produce medium-range and even long-range ballistic missile systems and arm them with thermonuclear warheads. Given the hostility the regime has shown, this is a most disturbing long-term prospect."

In assessing the possibilities of nuclear exchange with the Soviet Union, McNamara set forth in his customary unemotional, coldly analytical style what he thought could happen.

If Soviet nuclear fire fell on American urban areas simultaneously with fire on U.S. missile and air bases and other strategic retaliatory systems, up to 149 million would be killed; if city attack were delayed until after the blasting of military bases, the fatalities might be held to a top of 122 million.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen declared today it would be "dangerous to our security" to negotiate a settlement in South Viet Nam.

The Senate Republican leader announced he plans to answer Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and George S. McGovern, D-S.D., who called Wednesday for efforts to bring about a ceasefire in South Viet Nam.

These were part of a series of speeches obviously designed to influence President Johnson's course in what the chief executive told the National Industrial Conference Board is "the very serious situation in Viet Nam."

Johnson said that in South Viet Nam "we will persist in the defense of freedom and our continuing actions there will be those which are justified and those that are made necessary by the continuing aggression of others."

"These actions will be measured and fitting and adequate," he said. "Our stamina and the stamina of the American people is equal to the task."

In such a situation, Dirksen said he finds it "difficult to understand why members of the President's party are suggesting negotiations and other measures which would definitely diminish our prestige, weaken our position in that part of the world and have a definite impact on the thinking people in other areas of the world."

The Republican leader said it would be "dangerous to our security and that of our free world allies" to negotiate with the Communists who, he said, "have a long record of broken pledges."

"There is no need of a new agreement," he added. "The Communists already have agreed not to launch aggression, subversion and infiltration in South Viet Nam. This is just another in their long record of broken pledges."

Dirksen joined with Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., and other GOP leaders in a statement Wednesday advising the President not to enter any negotiations "so long as there is Communist-promoted infiltration of South Viet Nam in violation of the 1954 and 1962 Geneva agreements."

The Republican leaders said they support Johnson's course of ordering air strikes against North Viet Nam supply bases. Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, acting Democratic leader, applauded the GOP statement and added some elaborations of his own.

"This nation proposes to live up to its commitments," Long said. "When the Communists strike our forces in a place where we have a right to be, we propose to strike back stronger than they do.

Johnson Pleads For End to Drain of Gold

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson summoned some 370 top-level businessmen to hear a plea today that they help curb the gold-dollar drain by volunteering to slash investments and lending in Europe.

Even as Johnson called leading industrialists and bankers to the White House, he was holding in reserve a threat to require the investment-lending cuts through legislation.

If only by coincidence, Johnson's new effort to bring the balance of payments problem under control had some earmarks of a carrot-and-stick approach.

Only Wednesday, the President announced plans to cut business taxes by more than $700 million this year through administrative changes in tax write-off rules. This disclosure, at a meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board, failed to spark applause although the size of the cut went well beyond earlier expectations.

The NICB members interrupted Johnson's address with applause but once, and then lightly, when he explained he was 15 minutes late because he had

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States evidently has decided to strike military targets in North Viet Nam without waiting for specific attacks by Communist forces in South Viet Nam to retaliate against.

This is understood to be the meaning of President Johnson's statement Wednesday on Vietnamese war policy, a week after the first series of air strikes against North Vietnamese infiltration targets.

Johnson told a conference of businessmen here the people of South Viet Nam are under attack "That is controlled and that is directed from outside their country," a reference to the U.S. contention that the Communist guerrillas are directed by North Viet Nam.

The President also spoke of "continuing aggression" by the Communists and "continuing actions" by the United States.

He said: "We must all under-

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today "the present situation in South Viet Nam is grave but by no means hopeless."

McNamara stressed that the outcome in South Viet Nam is the key to stemming Communist expansion throughout strategic Southeast Asia and other emerging areas of the world.

"Considering the great stakes involved in this struggle," he declared, "I see no other alternative for the United States" than continuing to support South Viet Nam against the Red guerrilla onslaught.

McNamara said this country cannot pull out.

He discussed the Viet Nam war, and its wide implications, in a statement prepared for a closed-door session of the House Armed Services Committee, set up to hear McNamara outline the general defense situation.

There was no mention of such developments as Communist mortar and bomb attacks on U.S. installations in South Viet Nam, nor American retaliatory air strikes against North Viet Nam.

McNamara's public statement was a censored version of a much longer secret report he made to the committee. It covered his estimate of the world situation in general, and his proposals for strengthening U.S. military power under a $49-billion defense budget.

"The stakes in South Viet Nam are far greater than the loss of one small country to communism," McNamara said.

"We may be certain that as soon as they had established their control over South Viet Nam, the Communists would press their subversive operations in Laos and then in Thailand."

The result: "We would have to face this same problem all over again in another place or permit them to have all of Southeast Asia by default."

Then, McNamara appeared to embrace the "domino theory" which holds that a stand must be made against communism lest one vulnerable Asian nation after another fall into the Red orbit.

Even more broadly than Southeast Asia, McNamara said, a Communist success in South Viet Nam would be claimed as proof positive that the Chinese Communist position favoring violent revolution is correct.

Detailing the situation in the Vietnamese war, the Pentagon leader spoke of 'a familiar series of problems—the increasing Viet Cong capabilities, and the losses of combat experienced South Vietnamese small unit leaders and soldiers."

However, McNamara told the committee, the past year also brought some encouraging developments.

The South Vietnamese regulars have been "considerably

More Plotters Hunted In Scheme of Bombing

NEW YORK (AP) — New York police, the FBI and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police sought possible additional members today of the thwarted terrorist plot to dynamite the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

Authorities refused to comment on reports the search had spread to Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, Toronto and Montreal.

With the aid of Raymond Wood, 31, a Negro undercover policeman, the dynamite scheme was uncovered Tuesday. Police arrested three American Negroes and a white Canadian woman and charged them with attempting to blow up the three national shrines.

Twenty-two sticks of dynamite, said to have been transported from Canada by one of the four, Michelle Duclos, 26, were seized.

"We know they have made contacts in other cities," Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said of the four. "We have no idea how many people might be involved."

Murphy cited the work of Wood in infiltrating the pro-Castro, pro-Communist Chinese Black Liberation Front and gave the rookie policeman another promotion Wednesday.

India Charges Reds Plotted Guerrilla War

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Indian government charged today that pro-Chinese Communists plotting a revolution went through the countryside circulating guerrilla warfare instructions written by Cuba's Ernesto Guevara.

Home Minister G.L. Nanda told Parliament the government stopped the plot and crushed an extensive Red underground with the arrest of about 900 pro-Peking Communists beginning Dec. 30.

The government was convinced, Nanda said, that the Communists posed a crucial threat to "vital interests of the nation."

Nanda said the Calcutta area of poverty-stricken West Bengal was the area where Guevara's "guerrilla warfare" manual was circulated.

Attacks on U.S. Embassies Are Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attacks on U.S. buildings abroad apparently are at a new high despite statements by President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk calling for respect.

More than a dozen assaults have damaged American Embassies and other U.S. government property since Johnson's inaugural address Jan. 4. One unofficial count lists 14 such attacks.

State Department records show 53 cases of "damages to U.S. government buildings overseas through mob violence, ended December 1964. That's slightly less than two attacks a month.

Johnson said: "We cannot be indifferent to acts designed to injure our interests, or our citizens, or our establishments abroad. The community of nations requires mutual respect. We shall extend it — and we shall expect it."

Rusk, at a news conference last Dec. 23, voiced concern over foreign violation of the "elementary rights of legations" and said: "We shall be sensitive on these matters." After the

Ranger Streaks Toward Sea of Tranquillity

By RALPH DIGHTON

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Ranger 8 streaked on toward the moon today after what scientists say was an apparently successful maneuver designed to send it crashing onto the lunar surface early Saturday morning.

Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said preliminary indications are that the camera-carrying spacecraft will land on or near its target, a broad and dusty plain called more Tranquillatitis, the Sea of Tranquillity.

It will be 3 p.m. Eastern Standard Time however, before they can calculate Ranger's new path precisely. Without the correction the spacecraft would have missed the trailing edge of the moon by 1,136 miles.

The maneuver at 5 a.m. came as Ranger 8 was 99,000 miles out on its 234,000-mile journey.

The maneuver involved a long series of commands to make the spacecraft twist around in space and fire a direction-changing rocket for 50 seconds, enough to change the spacecraft's course by more than 1,000 miles.

In a 13-minute-40-second period before crash-landing on the moon's east central portion, Ranger 8's six television cameras are to snap more than 4,000 pictures of the surface.

The photos are expected to be better than those obtained last July by Ranger 7.

A towering Atlas-Agena rocket propelled the insect-shaped craft into space from Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 12:05 p.m. Wednesday.

The Sea of Tranquillity was the prime target because it is near the moon's present terminator, or shadow line. Photos taken near the terminator would have more contrast and definition of detail than those snapped by Ranger 7 because of longer shadows cast by mountains and other features.

Ranger 7 photographed a sector near the Mare Nubium, the Sea of Clouds, about 700 miles from Tranquillity. The area later was named mare Cognitum, the sea that has become known.

Ranger 7 pictures showed that at least part of the moon's surface is pitted with thousands of craters down to 18 inches in diameter and probably smaller.

If the Tranquillity area has considerably fewer craters, it would be a likely landing spot for American astronauts scheduled to rocket to the moon in 1969 or 1970.

Village, Warships Shelled By U.S., Allies, Reds Charge

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — North Viet Nam charged today that four South Vietnamese commando boats shelled a North Vietnamese village and that two of the raiding boats were damaged by North Vietnamese patrol boats.

"Commando ships of the United States and Saigon administration" shelled Quynh Lap commune in Nghe An Province at 12:30 a.m. today," Col. Ha Van Lau, chief of the Communist liaison mission, told the International Armistice Commission in Hanoi.

The colonel's complaint was reported by Hanoi Radio, which said the commando boats were met with answering fire from the shore "by the local armed forces."

The broadcast called the attack "a new, extremely serious act of provocation by the United States and its stooges, a gross encroachment on the sovereignty and territory of the democratic republic of Viet Nam and an impudent violation of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Viet Nam.

The location of Quyhn Lap was not pinpointed. Quynh Luu is on the coast 150 miles north of the 17th Paralle, which divides North and South Viet Nam.

In Saigon, military spokesmen announced a search operation for a battalion of Viet Cong guerrillas spotted 32 miles southwest of Saigon had been called off. No contact was made.

A light observation plane was shot down today by Communist groundfire while dropping leaflets north of Tam Ky, about 40 miles south of Da Nang.

One American and three Vietnamese were aboard the L20, which crash-landed in a field. As the trio fled from the scene, one Vietnamese was shot and wounded by the Viet Cong.

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — North Viet Nam charged today that four South Vietnamese commando boats shelled a North Vietnamese village and that two of the raiding boats were damaged by North Vietnamese patrol boats.

"Commando ships of the United States and Saigon administration" shelled Quynh Lap commune in Nghe An Province at 12:30 a.m. today," Col. Ha Van Lau, chief of the Communist liaison mission, told the International Armistice Commission in Hanoi.

The colonel's complaint was reported by Hanoi Radio, which said the commando boats were met with answering fire from the shore "by the local armed forces."

The broadcast called the attack "a new, extremely serious act of provocation by the United States and its stooges, a gross encroachment on the sovereignty and territory of the democratic republic of Viet Nam and an impudent violation of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Viet Nam.

The location of Quyhn Lap was not pinpointed. Quynh Luu is on the coast 150 miles north of the 17th Paralle, which divides North and South Viet Nam.

In Saigon, military spokesmen announced a search operation for a battalion of Viet Cong guerrillas spotted 32 miles southwest of Saigon had been called off. No contact was made.

A light observation plane was shot down today by Communist groundfire while dropping leaflets north of Tam Ky, about 40 miles south of Da Nang.

One American and three Vietnamese were aboard the L20, which crash-landed in a field. As the trio fled from the scene, one Vietnamese was shot and wounded by the Viet Cong.

More Plotters Hunted In Scheme of Bombing

NEW YORK (AP) — New York police, the FBI and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police sought possible additional members today of the thwarted terrorist plot to dynamite the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

Authorities refused to comment on reports the search had spread to Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, Toronto and Montreal.

With the aid of Raymond Wood, 31, a Negro undercover policeman, the dynamite scheme was uncovered Tuesday. Police arrested three American Negroes and a white Canadian woman and charged them with attempting to blow up the three national shrines.

Twenty-two sticks of dynamite, said to have been transported from Canada by one of the four, Michelle Duclos, 26, were seized.

"We know they have made contacts in other cities," Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said of the four. "We have no idea how many people might be involved."

Murphy cited the work of Wood in infiltrating the pro-Castro, pro-Communist Chinese Black Liberation Front and gave the rookie policeman another promotion Wednesday.

India Charges Reds Plotted Guerrilla War

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Indian government charged today that pro-Chinese Communists plotting a revolution went through the countryside circulating guerrilla warfare instructions written by Cuba's Ernesto Guevara.

Home Minister G.L. Nanda told Parliament the government stopped the plot and crushed an extensive Red underground with the arrest of about 900 pro-Peking Communists beginning Dec. 30.

The government was convinced, Nanda said, that the Communists posed a crucial threat to "vital interests of the nation."

Nanda said the Calcutta area of poverty-stricken West Bengal was the area where Guevara's "guerrilla warfare" manual was circulated.

Attacks on U.S. Embassies Are Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attacks on U.S. buildings abroad apparently are at a new high despite statements by President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk calling for respect.

More than a dozen assaults have damaged American Embassies and other U.S. government property since Johnson's inaugural address Jan. 4. One unofficial count lists 14 such attacks.

State Department records show 53 cases of "damages to U.S. government buildings overseas through mob violence, ended December 1964. That's slightly less than two attacks a month.

Johnson said: "We cannot be indifferent to acts designed to injure our interests, or our citizens, or our establishments abroad. The community of nations requires mutual respect. We shall extend it — and we shall expect it."

Rusk, at a news conference last Dec. 23, voiced concern over foreign violation of the "elementary rights of legations" and said: "We shall be sensitive on these matters." After the

Ranger Streaks Toward Sea of Tranquillity

By RALPH DIGHTON

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Ranger 8 streaked on toward the moon today after what scientists say was an apparently successful maneuver designed to send it crashing onto the lunar surface early Saturday morning.

Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said preliminary indications are that the camera-carrying spacecraft will land on or near its target, a broad and dusty plain called more Tranquillatitis, the Sea of Tranquillity.

It will be 3 p.m. Eastern Standard Time however, before they can calculate Ranger's new path precisely. Without the correction the spacecraft would have missed the trailing edge of the moon by 1,136 miles.

The maneuver at 5 a.m. came as Ranger 8 was 99,000 miles out on its 234,000-mile journey.

The maneuver involved a long series of commands to make the spacecraft twist around in space and fire a direction-changing rocket for 59 seconds, enough to change the spacecraft's course by more than 1,600 miles.

In a 13-minute-40-second period before crash-landing on the moon's east central portion, Ranger 8's six television cameras are to snap more than 4,000 pictures of the surface.

The photos are expected to be better than those obtained last July by Ranger 7.

A towering Atlas-Agena rocket propelled the insect-shaped craft into space from Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 12:05 p.m. Wednesday.

The Sea of Tranquillity was the prime target because it is near the moon's present terminator, or shadow line. Photos taken near the terminator would have more contrast and definition of detail than those snapped by Ranger 7 because of longer shadows cast by mountains and other features.

Ranger 7 photographed a sector near the Mare Nubium, the Sea of Clouds, about 700 miles from Tranquillity. The area later was named mare Cognitum, the sea that has become known.

Ranger 7 pictures showed that at least part of the moon's surface is pitted with thousands of craters down to 18 inches in diameter and probably smaller.

If the Tranquillity area has considerably fewer craters, it would be a likely landing spot for American astronauts scheduled to rocket to the moon in 1969 or 1970.

HOT CAT

CHICAGO, Ill. — Mrs. Betty Spataro of suburban Downer's Grove heard a sound like a cry of a kitten when she got in her car. She thought she had left the radio turned on. When she started the motor, the cries became louder. She looked all over the inside of the car, but was unable to find any feline. But when she lifted up the hood, out jumped Muffy, the family's 3-year - old cat, hot and slightly angry.

Alumni Group Endorses Junior College

Directors of the University of Colorado Alumni Association have endorsed proposals for establishing a junior college in the Denver area and for expanding CU's Denver Center.

The alumni board, at its annual winter meeting this weekend in Colorado Springs said the junior college - CU Center proposal is "the most economical and most effective way" to meet the higher educational needs of the Denver area.

The alumni position parallels that taken by CU's Board of Regents.

The alumni said expansion of educational opportunities of five types is needed in Denver. They said the proposed junior college could best meet three of these needs — vocational and technical training, two - year terminal programs and freshman-sophomore college work.

Expansion of the CU Center in Denver, the alumni directors said, could best meet the other two needs — junior and senior college work leading to bachelor's degrees and graduate work.

Alumni Group Endorses Junior College

Directors of the University of Colorado Alumni Association have endorsed proposals for establishing a junior college in the Denver area and for expanding CU's Denver Center.

The alumni board, at its annual winter meeting this weekend in Colorado Springs said the junior college - CU Center proposal is "the most economical and most effective way" to meet the higher educational needs of the Denver area.

The alumni position parallels that taken by CU's Board of Regents.

The alumni said expansion of educational opportunities of five types is needed in Denver. They said the proposed junior college could best meet three of these needs — vocational and technical training, two - year terminal programs and freshman-sophomore college work.

Expansion of the CU Center in Denver, the alumni directors said, could best meet the other two needs — junior and senior college work leading to bachelor's degrees and graduate work.

Star's Life Is Not Exactly Rosy

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sometimes a movie star's life is not quite as rosy as it seems from an exterior view. Case in point: George Peppard.

A year ago the capable young actor seemed to have the world in his grasp. He had been starred in "The Carpetbaggers," a film with obvious commercial potential, and his life and career was considered in salutary shape.

The real situation?

"I hadn't worked in six months, I was falling deeper into debt, my mother died, and I was undergoing a divorce."

Peppard can now view that dismal period with some perspective. He hadn't worked because MGM wouldn't allow him to, because he balked at reporting for a movie, "Operation Crossbow." He was also rankled by his contract, which was signed before he became a box-office star.

He held firm against the studio despite mounting debt. The outcome?

"I ended up having to do three pictures, instead of six under the old deal," he said. "I made 'Operation Crossbow,' but MGM added performers like Trevor Howard, Johnny Mills, Richard Johnson, Lilli Palmer, as well as Sophia Loren to the cast."

Now he is able to cash in on his popularity. The cash is good: $350,000 per picture, plus a percentage. He is enjoying the first of such fees at Warner Brothers in "The Third Day," with the romance of his life, Elizabeth Ashley. After a 10-day vacation in Hawaii, he reports to southwest Africa for Joseph E. Levine's "The Sands of Kalihari," then returns to MGM for "Merrily We Roll Along."

And so, despite a heavy cold and a reaction to his tetanus shot for the African trip, the world looks better to George these days.

The impetus to his career came from the resounding success of "How The West Was Won," in which he and Debbie Reynolds played the only continuing characters, and especially from "The Carpetbaggers." He shrugs off the critical knocks the film received.

The other factor in George's improved outlook is the electric Miss Ashley, star of "Barefoot in the Park" on Broadway and "Ship of Fools" in films. She paid $35,000 to escape the play and accompany him to England.

Miss Ashley played his wife in "The Carpetbaggers." I asked him if he thought they will marry.

"I don't think so," Peppard answered candidly. He said she is still married to actor James Farantino. Her lawyers have just advised her against a Mexican divorce.

"So she will be getting a California divorce," he said. "That means a year's residence here, then a year until the divorce is final. And after two years, well, who knows?"

Rape by Force Charge Dismissed by Judge

A charge of rape by force against Patrick Conrad Sandoval was dismissed by District Court Judge David W. Enoch Wednesday at the request of Deputy District Attorney Bob Carvell.

Carvell explained that the complaining witness no longer desired to prosecute.

Sandoval, 21, 80 Waltham Ave. was alleged to have raped a 22-year-old Manitou Springs girl twice, Aug. 22.

At the time of the alleged incident the girl told Manitou Springs Police that she had known the defendant for four days.

COLLISIONS

CLAY CENTER, Kan. (AP) — Andrew Anderson lost control of his car Wednesday as he pulled out of a filling station in downtown Clay Center, and it banged into nine other parked vehicles.

"I couldn't stop it," said the retired farmer, who is 87. "I never had an accident before."

No one was hurt, but Chief of Police Earnie Roll estimated the damage to the 10 vehicles at $3,000. There also was some damage to a building.

Joe Rosenthal Recalls Iwo Jima Battle

By LEONARD MILLIMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "The closer you get to the beach the more you wonder which of the 18 or 20 men in the boat with you will never return."

That's the way photographer Joe Rosenthal recalls the U.S. Marine assault on Iwo Jima 20 years ago today.

Five thousand Marines died on the tiny island. They made it a fighter-plane stepping stone to Japan in World War II.

Secondary in Rosenthal's thoughts is the famous photograph he made of Marines raising the American flag on Mt. Suribachi, at the southern tip of the eight square miles of Iwo.

It has often been described as the best picture of World War II. It won him a Pulitzer Prize in 1945. It was the model for a huge bronze Marine memorial in Arlington, Va., across the Potomac River from Washington, D.C. It was the theme poster for the seventh war loan drive. It has been reproduced on U.S. postage stamps.

Millions of copies have been printed — in black and white, in color, in magazines newspapers and on posters.

The photographer, now 53, stocky, bespectacled and with thinning white hair, observed in an interview: "The picture serves a useful purpose in reminding people of the kind of job these men did in battle. Iwo was the kind of battle that is so fierce and costly in suffering, not only to those killed but those who came back maimed.

"The island was bristling porcupine-like with emplacements. Cannon, anti-aircraft and machineguns studded the terraced terrain.

"Their fire was very heavy in spite of the advance pounding by ship and aerial bombardment.

"The Japanese had an intricate maze of underground caves and connecting tunnels, some three or four stories down. They had underground sleeping quarters, mess hall and headquarters where they could weather the bombardment. Most were still available when the assault came.

"We were all briefed pretty well on the defense. So there was a grim reality as we approached the beach wondering who would never come back."

Iwo was the fifth island assault Rosenthal covered in the Pacific War as an Associated Press photographer.

The flag raising by five Marines and a Navy corpsman on 546 foot Mt. Suribachi came on Feb. 22 (U.S. time), four days after the Marines first hit the beach.

Rosenthal, now a photographer for the San Francisco Chronicle, said he was invited to today's 20th memorial on Iwo Jima and would like to have gone but he was offered military transportation only from Tokyo to Iwo.

Quadruplets Born Dead in California

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — Three boys and a girl, born Tuesday to Mrs. J. Gary Gwilliam, 28, are dead.

The 3-months premature quadruplets, each weighing 1½ pounds, lived less than a day.

They were the only children of Mrs. Gwilliam and her husband, 27, a Ventura County deputy district attorney. The Gwilliams have been married five years.

Doctors said their deaths Wednesday resulted from immaturity rather than prematurity, explaining that their physiological development was not sufficient to maintain life without the mother.

Negroes Must Not Be Harmed, Official Warns

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Chairman John Hannah of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission wants Mississippi officials to see to it that Negroes appearing before his panel are not harmed when they go home.

Recalling Gov. Paul Johnson's statement to the commission that racial violence would not be tolerated in this state, Dr. Hannah telephoned the governor's office Wednesday to ask protection for witnesses.

"We have no indication anything will happen," Dr. Hannah told newsmen. "It could easily be that nothing will. It is an insurance move.

"It would be embarrassing to the commission and the state if anything did happen, however."

The matter of protection for witnesses arose Wednesday during the second day of the six-member commission's public hearings here into Mississippi's racial problems.

The commission concentrated its efforts today on charges by Negroes of discriminatory law enforcement. The first two days were spent mostly checking complaints of violations of voting rights.

Dr. Hannah, president of Michigan State University, said he "was particularly concerned about the witnesses from Tallahatchie County."

Three Negroes from that county complained of harassments in connection with efforts to register to vote.

Dr. Hannah said he has no unformation of any threats against these particular witnesses. But "we have had problems in the past when witnesses have gone back home and been harassed," he said.

Johnson could not be reached for comment on the request. An aide assured Dr. Hannah, however, that the state would do what it could.

Johnson told the commission Tuesday law and order would be upheld in Mississippi and violence would not be tolerated.

Maxie Baughan, Philadelphia Eagles' linebacker, set a record while a collegian with Georgia Tech by making 124 tackles in one season.

Uganda Charges New Congo Intrusions

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Internal Affairs Minister Felix Onama charged Congolese forces today with two new intrusions into Uganda. He said the army is stiffening its defenses in the north and west.

Onama said a Congolese patrol crossed the Ishasha River Wednesday then withdrew. He said another patrol entered north of the Ruewnzori Mountains and exchanged shots with a frontier army patrol. No casualties were reported.

Negroes Must Not Be Harmed, Official Warns

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Chairman John Hannah of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission wants Mississippi officials to see to it that Negroes appearing before his panel are not harmed when they go home.

Recalling Gov. Paul Johnson's statement to the commission that racial violence would not be tolerated in this state, Dr. Hannah telephoned the governor's office Wednesday to ask protection for witnesses.

"We have no indication anything will happen," Dr. Hannah told newsmen. "It could easily be that nothing will. It is an insurance move.

"It would be embarrassing to the commission and the state if anything did happen, however."

The matter of protection for witnesses arose Wednesday during the second day of the six-member commission's public hearings here into Mississippi's racial problems.

The commission concentrated its efforts today on charges by Negroes of discriminatory law enforcement. The first two days were spent mostly checking complaints of violations of voting rights.

Dr. Hannah, president of Michigan State University, said he "was particularly concerned about the witnesses from Tallahatchie County."

Three Negroes from that county complained of harassments in connection with efforts to register to vote.

Dr. Hannah said he has no unformation of any threats against these particular witnesses. But "we have had problems in the past when witnesses have gone back home and been harassed," he said.

Johnson could not be reached for comment on the request. An aide assured Dr. Hannah, however, that the state would do what it could.

Johnson told the commission Tuesday law and order would be upheld in Mississippi and violence would not be tolerated.

The aim of today's White House conference was to try to persuade big industrialists and bankers "to exercise voluntary restraint in lending money or making investments abroad in the developed countries."

Most of these nations are in Europe but the rest also include Canada and Japan.

Johnson outlined his voluntary program in a Feb. 10 message to Congress on the payments problem — a problem reflecting the fact that, for many years more dollars have been leaving the country — through loans, investments, spending and giveaways — than have been coming in.

Feb. 9 attack on the American Embassy in Moscow, Rusk said the United States is going to "press very sharply" for full protection of its embassies.

Among the incidents which prompted official U.S. concern as 1964 drew to a close was violence by leftists after the U.S.-Belgian paratroop rescue mission in the Congo.

A mob burned down the 25,000-book John F. Kennedy Library at Cairo. Another smashed 56 windows in the American Embassy at Moscow, set a car afire and tore the U.S. seal off the wall.

The Feb. 9 Moscow mob smashed 200 windows in the wake of U.S. air strikes on North Viet Nam. Other attacks followed on the U.S. Legations at Budapest and Sofia. Wednesday demonstrators stoned and splashed ink on the American Embassy at Warsaw.

Some Africans have been demonstrating their distaste for alleged U.S. complicity in the bombing of two villages in Uganda. Despite Washington's protestations of innocence, a crowd pulled down the U.S. flag at the U.S. Embassy at Kampala Feb. 16.

In Indonesia, the Sukarno regime continued to seize U.S. libraries. The 20,000-volume library at Jakarta was stoned and taken over last Tuesday. Its windows had ben smashed and about 20 per cent of its books burned in an attack Dec. 4.

Of the American government libraries in Indonesia, three have been mobbed and closed while two smaller ones are still operating.

What is the United States doing about these attacks?

Mainly, it appears to have resorted to diplomatic protests and demands for embassy protection and compensation. Sometimes it gets paid damages, sometimes not.

In public statements, the U.S. government has declared that such attacks harm relations with countries allowing them.

However, a state department spokesman said yesterday he knows of no moves to shelve talks that are under way or in prospect with nations that have condoned the anti-American assaults.

the strategic forces to be launched against still unfired Soviet missiles.

McNamara put it this way:

"Our missile forces would be most effective against the enemy bombers and ICBMs if the attack on our urban centers were withheld for an hour or more after an attack on U.S. military targets — an unlikely contingency.

"Our manned bomber forces would be effective in the damage limiting role only if the enemy attack on our urban centers were withheld several hours."

Negotiation in Viet Nam Dangerous, Solon Warns

ond power even stronger. If a third power gets into it, we propose to strike that power harder. In each case, we propose to strike each with greater force than they strike against this nation, so long as they do not abide by the (Geneva) agreement."

Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., urged the President to "call the hand of Red China and the Communists" even if that meant full scale war.

"If Red China is prepared to go to war to expand its sphere of influence in Southeast Asia, we might as well find that out right now before it's too late," McGee said.

"To negotiate now is as unthinkable as it was to negotiate when the Communists threatened to take West Berlin and Germany, when they attempted to take over Korea, when they attempted to make an armed camp of Cuba," he said.

Sens. A. S. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, and Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, all voiced opposition to any American withdrawal from South Viet Nam.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said there ought to be a "major reappraisal" of the foreign policy that leaves the United States "so much alone in defense of the West" around the world.

Fire Damage in Penrose Still Being Investigated

Two Penrose homes, both completely destroyed by suspected arsonists Sunday evening, were being assessed by their owners this week in terms of lost dollars and cents.

One home and three outbuildings, burned to the ground seven miles east of Florence on Colorado highway 120, was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stanley of Florence. Mrs. Stanley estimated the loss to the house and its contents and those of the sheds at about $8,000. Of this amount, $4,000 was covered by insurance.

Another Penrose dwelling, owned by Paul Strickland, Florence real estate man who was in the process of selling the place to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Osborn of Pueblo, was destroyed by fire presumably by the same party or parties unknown who, it is believed, set fire to the Stanley property. Damage to the Strickland dwelling has been estimated at about $5,000. Insurance coverage was $1,550.

Fremont County Sheriff Tom Coleman and his deputies are currently investigating the arson aspects of the two fires which were fought between 7:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Sunday night by both Florence and Penrose volunteer firemen.

The first fire, reported at the Stanley place, brought the Penrose firemen who called Florence firemen for assistance. By the time Chief Dan Friend and the Florence crew arrived the Stanley dwelling was beyond saving.

Lost at the Stanley house was furniture and appliances, a large quality of finished lumber, canned goods, a new water pump, and assorted household items and tools. The bulk of property was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stanley, who have not lived at Penrose for the past four years, while some of the furniture was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanley, son and daughter-in-law of the Florence couple, who are now living in Kansas.

A total of 21 Florence firemen battled the fire and the weather Sunday evening fighting first the Stanley blaze and then, notified by radio of the Strickland fire, the second conflagration.

The Strickland fire was reported at 9:30 p.m. Firemen split up and worked both blazes until 11:30 p.m.

At the second fire, the three-room house and its contents were destroyed although a nearby shed, also set afire, remained intact. The shed blaze apparently went out before it could destroy the contents of the building which was stocked with furniture stored by Mr. and Mrs. Osborn.

The Osborns, who had not yet moved into the house from Pueblo, where Osborn is employed as a CF&I steel worker, noted that locks on the outbuildings had been forced open and trash hauled into the one shed where a fire had been deliberately started but failed.

Ron Oxnam, chief of the Penrose fire department, reported to Sheriff Tom Coleman that three empty houses have recently been burned in Penrose by suspected arsonists as well as several abandoned cars on Highway 115 between Colorado Springs and Penrose.

More Quakes Recorded At Golden

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — Another in a series of small earthquakes — the 14th since Monday afternoon — was recorded at 2:38 a.m. today at the Colorado School of Mines.

Dr. Frank Hadsell, a geophysicist at the school, said its magnitude was 2.1 on the Richter scale, enough to be noticed if a person was lying in bed awake at the time.

65 Guinea Pigs Die in Fire Here Wednesday

Sixty-five guinea pigs perished Wednesday in a fire that damaged a homemade trailer that was used for raising these animals at the residence of James E. Cross, 1222 S. 6th St.

The Colorado Springs Fire Department received an alarm at 12:18 p.m. and Companies 3 and 5 fought the blaze. The firemen saved the structure, although a hole was burned in the floor. The guinea pigs are believed to have been suffocated by smoke. The fire was caused by a gas wall furnace.

At 1:55 a.m. today Company 5 went to 2800 W. Colorado Ave., to wash gasoline from the street.

Companies 2, 8 and the aerial at 5:20 a.m. went to the home of Mrs. Jack DeBorer, 1803 N. Cascade Ave., where smoke from the ballast of a fluorescent light was filling the house. The firemen fanned out the smoke.

At 8:13 a.m. Company 6 went to the residence of Clarence Colbert, 2524 N. Bennet Ave. An overheated washing machine motor was giving trouble there.

A box alarm at 9:52 today caused a run of Company 2 to the Aircrafts Mechanics plant. Malfunctioning of an automatic fire alarm system caused the alarm. There was no fire.

detective third grade, then later was elevated another step to detective second grade, pushing his annual salary to $8,572 — an increase of $1,925 over the $6,647 he had been drawing as a patrolman.

The four accused, in addition to Miss Duclos, a Montreal television commentator, are Robert S. Collier, 28, said to be the leader of the group; Walter A. Bowe, 32, a supporter of the now-defunct Fair Play for Cuba Committee; and Khaleel S. Sayyed, 22, a former engineering student who also is charged with disorderly conduct for demonstrating in front of the United Nations building last December.

They were held in bails ranging from $50,000 to $100,000 each.

Murphy said Wood, the undercover agent, made his first contact with the extremist group at a U.N. party given by the Cuban delegation. Collier had traveled to Cuba and bragged to Wood of having met Ernesto Guevera, right-hand man to Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, once apparently when Guevera spoke at the U.N., police said.

Miss Duclos, who last month sought without success a job at the U.N., reportedly was known in U.N. social circles.

stand that we will persist in the defense of freedom, and our continuing actions will be those which are justified and those that are made necessary by the continuing aggression of others. These actions will be measured and fitting and adequate."

The U.S. strategic objective in strikes at bases in North Viet Nam is to convince the Communist leaders that they cannot win the war in South Viet Nam except at the risk of destruction of their own country.

There is hope in official quarters here and in other allied capitals that at some point negotiations for settlement will become possible on terms which would put an end to the Communist drive against South Viet Nam and would secure that country's independence.

The question of such a possible peaceful settlement was foremost among the topics expected to be discussed here by French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville in talks with President Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

The French diplomat arrived Wednesday night and was scheduled to meet with Rusk today and with Johnson and McNamara Friday.

The main purpose of his visit — in response to an invitation from Rusk — is to continue discussion of U.S.-French differences on a whole range of major issues, including the reorganization of the Atlantic alliance, the United Nations, the future development of Europe, international monetary policy and the war in Southeast Asia.

French President Charles de Gaulle has voiced his belief that the United States cannot attain its objective in Southeast Asia by military means and that it should negotiate a settlement as soon as possible.

Johnson, in his statement Wednesday, emphasized that he does not intend to settle for less than an agreement that would assure South Viet Nam's independence.

Indonesian Mob Storms U.S. Consulate

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Some 700 Communist-led demonstrators stormed the U.S. Consulate in Medan, Sumatra, today and tried to seize the American library on the ground floor.

The mob tore down the American flag in the consulate yard, raised the Indonesian flag and pulled down the U.S. shield over the front door.

U.S. Consul Theodore Heavner reported that he called the police as soon as the demonstrators appeared and the police arrived 45 minutes later. He said the police evicted all the demonstrators from the library with some difficulty.

Antara, the official Indonesian news agency, reported earlier that a demonstration protesting the U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam occurred in Medan on Monday but there was no violence.

An Indonesian cabinet minister indicated today that American rubber plantations in North Sumatra which were seized by workers this week will be put under government supervision.

Franse Sda, the minister for plantation affairs, called on the workers to hand over the estates immediately.

strengthened by the continuing flow of new equipment," plus more training and experience in the field, he said.

In battle, McNamara said, the Vietnamese forces have "shown encouraging progress in operational planning, in reaction time, and in interservice coordination."

The fighting peformance of the Vietnamese regulars "continues to inspire confidence, and toward year's end we noted improvements in recruiting and in active duty strength," McNamara testified.

In the struggle between the Saigon government and the Communists for the loyalty of the Vietnamese people, McNamara said the picture "is not as good," particularly in the countryside.

Experts on Viet Nam contend that this struggle is the pivotal factor in the war — that without the support of the peasants the government can't hope to win.

Touching on other trouble spots in Southeast Asia, McNamara said:

Laos—"The future of Laos is intimately tied to the outcome of the struggle in Viet Nam. The Communists in the last year have made some gains. These gains were partially offset by clearing operations along the key route between Vientiane and the royal capital of Luang Prabang.

"Should the Communist conclude that U.S. support of the independent nations of Southeast Asia is flagging, we can expect that the Pathet Lao with North Vietnamese help will resume the offensive."

Thailand — "The northeastern and northern regions of the country remain vulnerable to Communist attack and subversive penetration."

Indonesia — "A stepup in its military - political confrontation with Malaysia further strains Indonesa's relations with free nations."

Cambodia — "Our relations with Cambodia continued to deteriorate during the past year. Prince Sihanouk has embarked upon a policy of cultivating closer relations with Peiping, Hanoi and the South Vietnamese 'liberation front.'"

By TONY DE NIGRO

NEW YORK (AP) — Violence erupted in a month-long partial boycott of city schools as 400 picketing high school students brawled with 100 St. John's University students and with policemen at three Brooklyn locations.

The two hours of rioting Wednesday came 20 minutes after police arrested at least six adults, including a pastor, who were supervising a quiet demonstration by mostly Negro high school students in front of the Board of Education's headquarters.

Before it was over, 18 persons were arrested — nine adults and nine teenagers — and 57 youths were taken into custody, and then released.

The 57, all Negroes and including 20 girls, were hauled off a subway train by police after the youths attacked six white students from a Roman Catholic high school.

The melee started when some 60 pickets swarmed after six students from nearby St. John's University watching the demonstration on their lunch hour.

The university students fled to their school building where 100 of their fellows came to their defense. A few punches were thrown until police broke up the groups.

At school board headquarters, policemen were pelted with sandwiches, and half-filled milk containers. More than 50 policemen restored order.

It was the first violence in the school protest, which has spread to 26 city schools.

The Rev. Milton Galamison, chairman of the citywide committee for desegregated schools, started the boycott Jan. 19 to demand quicker action on desegregation programs.

A U.S. Court of Appeals judge Wednesday reserved decision on Galamison's application to have charges against him for leading the boycott transferred from state court to federal court under the Civil Rights Act. He was convicted Feb. 3 and sentenced to 10 days in jail for violating the state's compulsory education law.

Arson Suspect Questioned in Fremont County

Fremont County authorities are holding a Penrose man for investigation in connection with suspected arsons in the Penrose area, it was reported Wednesday.

Undersheriff Valle Towne said the man turned himself in to the sheriff's office Wednesday morning after being questioned earlier in the week. The sheriff's office had filled out a complaint against the man.

Towne again questioned the man Wednesday morning, but said he denied that he was in the area of the burning home in Beaver Park, near Penrose Sunday night.

Towne said charges of larceny and being a receiver of stolen goods would probably be brought against the man sometime Wednesday.

Jack Osborn, owner of the Beaver Park home, had reported two mattresses and other items were missing from his home and a shed near the house. The home burned to the ground Sunday evening.

The undersheriff indicated the man being held was being investigated because it could be proved that he was in the area of the burning home Sunday night.

Foreigners Are Biggest Factor In Swiss Wealth

Gy GEOFFREY ATKINS

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — The Swiss have never had it so good. Since the end of World War II the standard of living has rocketed and is still climbing. The economy is booming and shows no signs of letting up.

But there is one big snag: Foreigners are the biggest factor in the Swiss prosperity.

Importing foreign labor to do the dirty, unskilled jobs seemed like a good idea several years ago, but then the Swiss suddenly realized every seventh person in the country was a foreigner.

With a Swiss population of 5 million, the feeling grew that 830,000 foreign workers plus well over a million foreign tourists each year was carrying hospitality too far.

Public reaction ranged from resignation to undisguised hatred of foreigners. Extremists want the country cleared of the "foreign menace." There has been talk about "protecting our youth" and "purity of race."

The majority of the Swiss acknowledge that they need foreigners, whether they like it or not, if their current prosperity is to be maintained.

A government bill introduced in parliament last week will cut the number of foreign resident workers 5 per cent before June 30 and another 5 per cent next year.

A government official said the goal is to reduce the number to 500,000 by 1970.

Many opinion groups and newspapers have deplored the anti-foreign feeling, which is most violent among workers in the German-speaking sector of the country.

Charges that Italians and Spaniards have boosted the crime rate have been ridiculed. Figures have been produced to prove that the Swiss violate the law just as much as their foreign guests.

Bill to Provide Safeguards For Negro Vote

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., said today the door may be opening for early Senate passage of a bill to further safeguard Negro voting rights.

The two senators applauded in separate interviews a statement Wednesday by Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, the assistant Democratic leader, that he would be willing "under certain circumstances" to support a measure to set up federal registrars to register any Negroes who say they are discriminated against by state officials.

Long's further intimation that Southerners may not filibuster against a voting rights bill was regarded in some quarters as a sign that the Southern phalanx against passage of civil rights legislation may be coming apart.

Javits said he welcomes Long's statement as a significant one. He said he thinks it reflects something of a realignment among Southerners because of the "accomplished fact" of the 1964 civil rights bill.

Agreeing, Ribicoff said he thinks the difficulties encountered by Negroes in attempting to register in Selma, Ala., and racial demonstrations elsewhere are exerting pressure on President Johnson to recommend voting rights legislation.

"I think a very large majority of the Senate would favor passage of legislation which would permit the federal government to step in to end the subterfuge and the dilatory tactics now being employed in some states," he said. "The people want to make civil rights a reality."

Javits predicted that whatever measure is brought before the Senate will have strong bipartisan support. He said bipartisan cooperation is "back on the track" after its temporary derailment during the presidential campaign.

Several bills have been introduced, among them a bill entered Wednesday by Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., to reduce a state's congressional representation proportionate to the number of qualified voters denied their rights. Johnson's recommendations are being awaited.

Long said he hopes liberals plugging for a change in Senate rules to make it easier to kill off filibusters will not push for a scheduled showdown early next month.

The Senate Rules Committee has set hearings for Feb. 23 on a proposal to soften Senate Rule 22, which requires approval of two-thirds of those voting to cut off a filibuster. Long said the imposition of a debate limitation last year to gain passage of a general civil rights bill indicates that any "reasonable" measure can be passed under the present rule.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said he thinks the Senate will agree to a delay in considering the rules change until Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., is well enough to resume his duties.

Russell, who has captained Southerners opposing earlier civil rights bills, is in a hospital, recovering from a throat operation.

Javits declined to agree in advance to a delay. He said, however, that if it is requested by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana on a bipartisan basis he would go along.

been discussing the gold-dollar problem at lunch with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

When Johnson declared that "the great society is not a welfare — not a spending state," one businessman in the luncheon audience cried out, "Ha!"

The aim of today's White House conference was to try to persuade big industrialists and bankers "to exercise voluntary restraint in lending money or making investments abroad in the developed countries."

Most of these nations are in Europe but the rest also include Canada and Japan.

Johnson outlined his voluntary program in a Feb. 10 message to Congress on the payments problem — a problem reflecting the fact that, for many years more dollars have been leaving the country — through loans, investments, spending and giveaways — than have been coming in.

Attacks on U.S. Embassies Are Increasing

Feb. 9 attack on the American Embassy in Moscow, Rusk said the United States is going to "press very sharply" for full protection of its embassies.

Among the incidents which prompted official U.S. concern as 1964 drew to a close was violence by leftists after the U.S.-Belgian paratroop rescue mission in the Congo.

A mob burned down the 25,000-book John F. Kennedy Library at Cairo. Another smashed 56 windows in the American Embassy at Moscow, set a car afire and tore the U.S. seal off the wall.

The Feb. 9 Moscow mob smashed 200 windows in the wake of U.S. air strikes on North Viet Nam. Other attacks followed on the U.S. Legations at Budapest and Sofia. Wednesday demonstrators stoned and splashed ink on the American Embassy at Warsaw.

Some Africans have been demonstrating their distaste for alleged U.S. complicity in the bombing of two villages in Uganda. Despite Washington's protestations of innocence, a crowd pulled down the U.S. flag at the U.S. Embassy at Kampala Feb. 16.

In Indonesia, the Sukarno regime continued to seize U.S. libraries. The 20,000-volume library at Jakarta was stoned and taken over last Tuesday. Its windows had ben smashed and about 20 per cent of its books burned in an attack Dec. 4.

Of the American government libraries in Indonesia, three have been mobbed and closed while two smaller ones are still operating.

What is the United States doing about these attacks?

Mainly, it appears to have resorted to diplomatic protests and demands for embassy protection and compensation. Sometimes it gets paid damages, sometimes not.

In public statements, the U.S. government has declared that such attacks harm relations with countries allowing them.

However, a state department spokesman said yesterday he knows of no moves to shelve talks that are under way or in prospect with nations that have condoned the anti-American assaults.

the strategic forces to be launched against still unfired Soviet missiles.

McNamara put it this way:

"Our missile forces would be most effective against the enemy bombers and ICBMs if the attack on our urban centers were withheld for an hour or more after an attack on U.S. military targets — an unlikely contingency.

"Our manned bomber forces would be effective in the damage limiting role only if the enemy attack on our urban centers were withheld several hours."

Negotiation in Viet Nam Dangerous, Solon Warns

ond power even stronger. If a third power gets into it, we propose to strike that power harder. In each case, we propose to strike each with greater force than they strike against this nation, so long as they do not abide by the (Geneva) agreement."

Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., urged the President to "call the hand of Red China and the Communists" even if that meant full scale war.

"If Red China is prepared to go to war to expand its sphere of influence in Southeast Asia, we might as well find that out right now before it's too late," McGee said.

"To negotiate now is as unthinkable as it was to negotiate when the Communists threatened to take West Berlin and Germany, when they attempted to take over Korea, when they attempted to make an armed camp of Cuba," he said.

Sens. A. S. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, and Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, all voiced opposition to any American withdrawal from South Viet Nam.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said there ought to be a "major reappraisal" of the foreign policy that leaves the United States "so much alone in defense of the West" around the world.

Fire Damage in Penrose Still Being Investigated

Two Penrose homes, both completely destroyed by suspected arsonists Sunday evening, were being assessed by their owners this week in terms of lost dollars and cents.

One home and three outbuildings, burned to the ground seven miles east of Florence on Colorado highway 120, was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stanley of Florence. Mrs. Stanley estimated the loss to the house and its contents and those of the sheds at about $8,000. Of this amount, $4,000 was covered by insurance.

Another Penrose dwelling, owned by Paul Strickland, Florence real estate man who was in the process of selling the place to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Osborn of Pueblo, was destroyed by fire presumably by the same party or parties unknown who, it is believed, set fire to the Stanley property. Damage to the Strickland dwelling has been estimated at about $5,000. Insurance coverage was $1,550.

Fremont County Sheriff Tom Coleman and his deputies are currently investigating the arson aspects of the two fires which were fought between 7:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Sunday night by both Florence and Penrose volunteer firemen.

The first fire, reported at the Stanley place, brought the Penrose firemen who called Florence firemen for assistance. By the time Chief Dan Friend and the Florence crew arrived the Stanley dwelling was beyond saving.

Lost at the Stanley house was furniture and appliances, a large quality of finished lumber, canned goods, a new water pump, and assorted household items and tools. The bulk of property was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stanley, who have not lived at Penrose for the past four years, while some of the furniture was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanley, son and daughter-in-law of the Florence couple, who are now living in Kansas.

A total of 21 Florence firemen battled the fire and the weather Sunday evening fighting first the Stanley blaze and then, notified by radio of the Strickland fire, the second conflagration.

The Strickland fire was reported at 9:30 p.m. Firemen split up and worked both blazes until 11:30 p.m.

At the second fire, the three-room house and its contents were destroyed although a nearby shed, also set afire, remained intact. The shed blaze apparently went out before it could destroy the contents of the building which was stocked with furniture stored by Mr. and Mrs. Osborn.

The Osborns, who had not yet moved into the house from Pueblo, where Osborn is employed as a CF&I steel worker, noted that locks on the outbuildings had been forced open and trash hauled into the one shed where a fire had been deliberately started but failed.

Ron Oxnam, chief of the Penrose fire department, reported to Sheriff Tom Coleman that three empty houses have recently been burned in Penrose by suspected arsonists as well as several abandoned cars on Highway 115 between Colorado Springs and Penrose.

Sixty-five guinea pigs perished Wednesday in a fire that damaged a homemade trailer that was used for raising these animals at the residence of James E. Cross, 1222 S. 6th St.

The Colorado Springs Fire Department received an alarm at 12:18 p.m. and Companies 3 and 5 fought the blaze. The firemen saved the structure, although a hole was burned in the floor. The guinea pigs are believed to have been suffocated by smoke. The fire was caused by a gas wall furnace.

At 1:55 a.m. today Company 5 went to 2800 W. Colorado Ave., to wash gasoline from the street.

Companies 2, 8 and the aerial at 5:20 a.m. went to the home of Mrs. Jack DeBorer, 1803 N. Cascade Ave., where smoke from the ballast of a fluorescent light was filling the house. The firemen fanned out the smoke.

At 8:13 a.m. Company 6 went to the residence of Clarence Colbert, 2524 N. Bennet Ave. An overheated washing machine motor was giving trouble there.

A box alarm at 9:52 today caused a run of Company 2 to the Aircrafts Mechanics plant. Malfunctioning of an automatic fire alarm system caused the alarm. There was no fire.

The four accused, in addition to Miss Duclos, a Montreal television commentator, are Robert S. Collier, 28, said to be the leader of the group; Walter A. Bowe, 32, a supporter of the now-defunct Fair Play for Cuba Committee; and Khaleel S. Sayyed, 22, a former engineering student who also is charged with disorderly conduct for demonstrating in front of the United Nations building last December.

They were held in bails ranging from $50,000 to $100,000 each.

Murphy said Wood, the undercover agent, made his first contact with the extremist group at a U.N. party given by the Cuban delegation. Collier had traveled to Cuba and bragged to Wood of having met Ernesto Guevera, right-hand man to Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, once apparently when Guevera spoke at the U.N., police said.

Miss Duclos, who last month sought without success a job at the U.N., reportedly was known in U.N. social circles.

stand that we will persist in the defense of freedom, and our continuing actions will be those which are justified and those that are made necessary by the continuing aggression of others. These actions will be measured and fitting and adequate."

The U.S. strategic objective in strikes at bases in North Viet Nam is to convince the Communist leaders that they cannot win the war in South Viet Nam except at the risk of destruction of their own country.

There is hope in official quarters here and in other allied capitals that at some point negotiations for settlement will become possible on terms which would put an end to the Communist drive against South Viet Nam and would secure that country's independence.

The question of such a possible peaceful settlement was foremost among the topics expected to be discussed here by French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville in talks with President Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

The French diplomat arrived Wednesday night and was scheduled to meet with Rusk today and with Johnson and McNamara Friday.

The main purpose of his visit — in response to an invitation from Rusk — is to continue discussion of U.S.-French differences on a whole range of major issues, including the reorganization of the Atlantic alliance, the United Nations, the future development of Europe, international monetary policy and the war in Southeast Asia.

French President Charles de Gaulle has voiced his belief that the United States cannot attain its objective in Southeast Asia by military means and that it should negotiate a settlement as soon as possible.

Johnson, in his statement Wednesday, emphasized that he does not intend to settle for less than an agreement that would assure South Viet Nam's independence.

Indonesian Mob Storms U.S. Consulate

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Some 700 Communist-led demonstrators stormed the U.S. Consulate in Medan, Sumatra, today and tried to seize the American library on the ground floor.

The mob tore down the American flag in the consulate yard, raised the Indonesian flag and pulled down the U.S. shield over the front door.

U.S. Consul Theodore Heavner reported that he called the police as soon as the demonstrators appeared and the police arrived 45 minutes later. He said the police evicted all the demonstrators from the library with some difficulty.

An Indonesian cabinet minister indicated today that American rubber plantations in North Sumatra which were seized by workers this week will be put under government supervision.

strengthened by the continuing flow of new equipment," plus more training and experience in the field, he said.

In battle, McNamara said, the Vietnamese forces have "shown encouraging progress in operational planning, in reaction time, and in interservice coordination."

The fighting peformance of the Vietnamese regulars "continues to inspire confidence, and toward year's end we noted improvements in recruiting and in active duty strength," McNamara testified.

In the struggle between the Saigon government and the Communists for the loyalty of the Vietnamese people, McNamara said the picture "is not as good," particularly in the countryside.

Experts on Viet Nam contend that this struggle is the pivotal factor in the war — that without the support of the peasants the government can't hope to win.

Touching on other trouble spots in Southeast Asia, McNamara said:

Laos—"The future of Laos is intimately tied to the outcome of the struggle in Viet Nam. The Communists in the last year have made some gains. These gains were partially offset by clearing operations along the key route between Vientiane and the royal capital of Luang Prabang.

"Should the Communist conclude that U.S. support of the independent nations of Southeast Asia is flagging, we can expect that the Pathet Lao with North Vietnamese help will resume the offensive."

Thailand — "The northeastern and northern regions of the country remain vulnerable to Communist attack and subversive penetration."

Indonesia — "A stepup in its military - political confrontation with Malaysia further strains Indonesa's relations with free nations."

Cambodia — "Our relations with Cambodia continued to deteriorate during the past year. Prince Sihanouk has embarked upon a policy of cultivating closer relations with Peiping, Hanoi and the South Vietnamese 'liberation front.'"

Arson Suspect Questioned in Fremont County

Fremont County authorities are holding a Penrose man for investigation in connection with suspected arsons in the Penrose area, it was reported Wednesday.

Undersheriff Valle Towne said the man turned himself in to the sheriff's office Wednesday morning after being questioned earlier in the week. The sheriff's office had filled out a complaint against the man.

Towne again questioned the man Wednesday morning, but said he denied that he was in the area of the burning home in Beaver Park, near Penrose Sunday night.

Towne said charges of larceny and being a receiver of stolen goods would probably be brought against the man sometime Wednesday.

Jack Osborn, owner of the Beaver Park home, had reported two mattresses and other items were missing from his home and a shed near the house. The home burned to the ground Sunday evening.

The undersheriff indicated the man being held was being investigated because it could be proved that he was in the area of the burning home Sunday night.

By TONY DE NIGRO

NEW YORK (AP) — Violence erupted in a month-long partial boycott of city schools as 400 picketing high school students brawled with 100 St. John's University students and with policemen at three Brooklyn locations.

The two hours of rioting Wednesday came 20 minutes after police arrested at least six adults, including a pastor, who were supervising a quiet demonstration by mostly Negro high school students in front of the Board of Education's headquarters.

Before it was over, 18 persons were arrested — nine adults and nine teenagers — and 57 youths were taken into custody, and then released.

The 57, all Negroes and including 20 girls, were hauled off a subway train by police after the youths attacked six white students from a Roman Catholic high school.

The melee started when some 60 pickets swarmed after six students from nearby St. John's University watching the demonstration on their lunch hour.

The university students fled to their school building where 100 of their fellows came to their defense. A few punches were thrown until police broke up the groups.

At school board headquarters, policemen were pelted with sandwiches, and half-filled milk containers. More than 50 policemen restored order.

It was the first violence in the school protest, which has spread to 26 city schools.

The Rev. Milton Galamison, chairman of the citywide committee for desegregated schools, started the boycott Jan. 19 to demand quicker action on desegregation programs.

A U.S. Court of Appeals judge Wednesday reserved decision on Galamison's application to have charges against him for leading the boycott transferred from state court to federal court under the Civil Rights Act. He was convicted Feb. 3 and sentenced to 10 days in jail for violating the state's compulsory education law.

Foreigners Are Biggest Factor In Swiss Wealth

Gy GEOFFREY ATKINS

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — The Swiss have never had it so good. Since the end of World War II the standard of living has rocketed and is still climbing. The economy is booming and shows no signs of letting up.

But there is one big snag: Foreigners are the biggest factor in the Swiss prosperity.

Importing foreign labor to do the dirty, unskilled jobs seemed like a good idea several years ago, but then the Swiss suddenly realized every seventh person in the country was a foreigner.

With a Swiss population of 5 million, the feeling grew that 820,000 foreign workers plus well over a million foreign tourists each year was carrying hospitality too far.

Public reaction ranged from resignation to undisguised hatred of foreigners. Extremists want the country cleared of the "foreign menace." There has been talk about "protecting our youth" and "purity of race."

The majority of the Swiss acknowledge that they need foreigners, whether they like it or not, if their current prosperity is to be maintained.

A government bill introduced in parliament last week will cut the number of foreign resident workers 5 per cent before June 30 and another 5 per cent next year.

A government official said the goal is to reduce the number to 500,000 by 1970.

Many opinion groups and newspapers have deplored the anti-foreign feeling, which is most violent among workers in the German-speaking sector of the country.

Charges that Italians and Spaniards have boosted the crime rate have been ridiculed. Figures have been produced to prove that the Swiss violate the law just as much as their foreign guests.

Bill to Provide Safeguards For Negro Vote

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., said today the door may be opening for early Senate passage of a bill to further safeguard Negro voting rights.

The two senators applauded in separate interviews a statement Wednesday by Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, the assistant Democratic leader, that he would be willing "under certain circumstances" to support a measure to set up federal registrars to register any Negroes who say they are discriminated against by state officials.

Long's further intimation that Southerners may not filibuster against a voting rights bill was regarded in some quarters as a sign that the Southern phalanx against passage of civil rights legislation may be coming apart.

Javits said he welcomes Long's statement as a significant one. He said he thinks it reflects something of a realignment among Southerners because of the "accomplished fact" of the 1964 civil rights bill.

Agreeing, Ribicoff said he thinks the difficulties encountered by Negroes in attempting to register in Selma, Ala., and racial demonstrations elsewhere are exerting pressure on President Johnson to recommend voting rights legislation.

"I think a very large majority of the Senate would favor passage of legislation which would permit the federal government to step in to end the subterfuge and the dilatory tactics now being employed in some states," he said. "The people want to make civil rights a reality."

Javits predicted that whatever measure is brought before the Senate will have strong bipartisan support. He said bipartisan cooperation is "back on the track" after its temporary derailment during the presidential campaign.

Several bills have been introduced, among them a bill entered Wednesday by Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., to reduce a state's congressional representation proportionate to the number of qualified voters denied their rights. Johnson's recommendations are being awaited.

Long said he hopes liberals plugging for a change in Senate rules to make it easier to kill off filibusters will not push for a scheduled showdown early next month.

The Senate Rules Committee has set hearings for Feb. 23 on a proposal to soften Senate Rule 22, which requires approval of two-thirds of those voting to cut off a filibuster. Long said the imposition of a debate limitation last year to gain passage of a general civil rights bill indicates that any "reasonable" measure can be passed under the present rule.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said he thinks the Senate will agree to a delay in considering the rules change until Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., is well enough to resume his duties.

Russell, who has captained Southerners opposing earlier civil rights bills, is in a hospital, recovering from a throat operation.

Javits declined to agree in advance to a delay. He said, however, that if it is requested by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana on a bipartisan basis he would go along.

Mrs. Mary Barney Died Here Wednesday

Mrs. Mary Maud Barney, 2321 W. Cucharras St., died Wednesday at 78, at a local hospital. She had been a resident of Colorado Springs 77 years.

Mrs. Barney was born in Iowa. She is survived by a son, Carl C. Barney, Pueblo; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frances Barney, Pueblo; a brother, Glen Leeper, Colorado Springs; grandson, William A. Barney, Las Cruces, N. M.; two great-grandsons, Carl W. Barney, Pueblo, and Rock Barney and a great-granddaughter, Susan Barney.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday at the Blunt Mortuary. The Rev. K. O. Backstrand will officiate. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

After reading about your nylon net, I lined my colander with it and now I can strain absolutely anything . . . beautifully! —Marshall

Now aren't you tricky?

I tried putting a piece of net in my colander while draining rice and find that I can save some rice that way, too!

And then I tried it for draining spaghetti and it's terrif. Love you —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I thought perhaps your readers might be interested in hearing about a handy helper I ran across recently in the form of a one-inch putty knife.

I cannot begin to explain the many ways I have pressed this tool into service lately.

It's the perfect size for removing fudge squares, brownie, or cake squares from the pan . . . not to mention scraping candy drippings from cabinets and table tops after a candy-making spree!

And last night it scraped the meat loaf pan beautifully and fit so nicely into the corners of the pan.

I bought another one of these handy gadgets to remove the dark residue from the cracks around the edge of my counter top range and I have also used it to remove gum and raisins from the linoleum.

This little knife has no sharp edge, just a straight firm edge which scrapes beautifully without scratching, and it only costs about 15 cents.

I wonder how I ever did without it? — E. W. Carbine

Dear Heloise:

My youngster put a plastic bag on my chrome sandwich toaster while it was hot and I can't clean it off.

Do you or any of your readers know how I can clean off the plastic? Help! —Josie

Anyone know? Do pick up that blunt pencil and drop us a card. Surely someone can help Josie? Letters do not have to be signed to appear in our column. Address your letters to: Heloise, in care of this paper. —Heloise

---

Dear Heloise:

If space is limited when a new baby comes and you do not have room for a table next to the bathinette for your powder, oil, etc. . . . buy a shoe bag.

I bought the small kind made for children's shoes and tacked it to the wall behind our bathinette.

This gives me eight pockets for all the items necessary to take care of the baby and everything is out of reach of an older child. —Mother

Dear Heloise:

When doing laundry one day, I found a stray button. My pin cushion just happened to be handy so I simply put a pin through the hole in the button and pinned it on the cushion.

Now, I keep the cushion handy and fill it with all those stray buttons. Presto, no more lost buttons such as was the case when we just put them here, there and everywhere. —Mrs. N. D. Gagnon

Dear Heloise:

When soles of soft slippers begin to wear out I Iron on khaki colored patches, ordinarily used for dungarees. It prolongs the life of the slippers and still leaves a soft sole. —Doris Kurish

Dear Heloise:

I read in one of your columns about dipping bacon in flour before frying to prevent spatters. This is terrific, and really works. It gives the bacon a different flavor, and the drippings are thicker and very good for making gravy.

My little experiment is also in the bacon family. Broil your bacon, and just "before" serving, brush on bar-b-que sauce. "Very tasty"! Goes very well for patio breakfasts and campers too. —Eunice Treadway

Dear Heloise:

Here is a hint to knitters:

If your knitting pattern calls for two strands of yarn, put the strands through an empty spool, before casting on your needle.

You will have no more tangles or twists. It really works. —Bernice

Bum Steals His Gun In Laundry Battle

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Laundryman Frank Alexander, making a delivery, saw a man stealing an armload of clothes from his truck.

Alexander carries a pistol and he chased the man, weapon in hand. The two fought briefly.

"I got the dry cleaning back," Alexander told police Wednesday, "but the bum stole my gun in the fight."

Resignation Date Set for Doctors

LONDON (AP) — A resignation date of April 1 has been set by the British Medical Association for family doctors threatening to quit Britain's socialized health service unless the government grants them better pay and working conditions.

The resignations would be effective July 1.

The BMA's 70-member executive council Wednesday endorsed the threats of hundreds of general practitioners to quit the National Health Service and treat patients on a fee basis.

The doctors rejected a recent pay raise, bringing their pay up to an average of $168 a week, and demanded a minimum of $196.

APTLY ADORNED

OYSTER BAY, N.Y. (AP)—The Long Island Rail Road's Oyster Bay station, which has just had a complete modernization and rebuilding job, is appropriately decorated — with real Oyster Bay oyster shells impressed into the stucco walls.

The upper level of the story-and-a-half brick and stucco building features the native shells. Reconstruction required that some of the stucco be removed. This posed a problem in trying to match the replacement work to the original.

But the manager of a nearby oyster company came to the rescue, donating 10 bushels of genuine oyster shells. The plasterers turned out a job that's indistinguishable from the original, except for six clam shells that somehow got mixed in.

WRONG DECISION

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Two drivers had a minor collision here. They decided to leave the vehicles where they were until police could be called.

While Robert Dicke, 22, of Minneapolis and Dennis McMann, 32, of St. Paul were calling police, a Rock Island train smashed into their cars, knocking one into a utility pole, which fell and shattered the windshield of a third car.

The Pine Cone Club met at the home of Mrs. George McCumber Feb. 10. Due to the heavy snowstorm that day there were not many members who were able to attend but those present were: Mmes. Frank Ownbey, Willard Werley, Tom Campbell and Seymour. The hostess gift went to Mrs. Werley. The next meeting will be March 10 at the home of Mrs. Cy Warner.

This area has received snow nearly every day this week since last Tuesday evening. It snowed all day Wednesday and deposited about five or six inches most places. Temperatures have dropped to at least 10 below zero several nights and did not warm up too much during the last few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davidson and Mrs. George E. West went to Pueblo last Tuesday evening. Mrs. Davidson bowled with her team there that evening and Mrs. West visited her sister, Mrs. Hocking.

4-H Club members met at the home of the Seymours last Thursday night. There were eight members present and also seven adults and two small children. The main topic of discussion was deciding on their county project, which will be a white elephant sale in June. Anyone who has donations towards this sale, call Jim Campbell who will make arrangements to have the items picked up. Any useable or repairable item is welcomed. Mrs. Deymour served refreshments of doughnuts, coffee and hot chocolate to the group. The next meeting will be March 11 at the Bill Nesbitt home.

There was a 4-H judging workshop in Cripple Creek Feb. 13 for all 4-H members in the county. Those attending from this area were the Campbells and the Seymours.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Warner and family went to Colorado Springs Saturday to do their shopping.

The basketball game at the Canon City High School gym last Friday night, when they played Harrison of Colorado Springs, was a very exciting game. The score was quite close and in the last couple of minutes, Harrison came ahead to win 55-50.

The Cy Warners are busy remodeling their living room of their home, putting in new walls, ceiling, doorways and changing some windows.

Claude Moore is kept busy each afternoon when he brings hay up to his cattle on the ranch west of here.

Joi Campbell, president of the 4-H Club, announced that there will be a potluck supper at the 4-Mile Community Hall, March 3, prior to the council meeting. The supper will be at 6:30 p.m. and everyone is asked to bring their own table service and a covered dish.

Another Woman Dean Quits With Protest

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A second Stanford University women's dean has resigned in the wake of student charges that some deans used undue influence in disciplinary cases and that one dean believed some young professors used literature in an attempt to seduce co-eds.

Miss Bonnie Fitzwater, 41, associate dean of women, Wednesday followed by three days the resignation of Miss Lucile Allen, 59, dean of women.

Dean Allen's resignation came Sunday night at the same time a faculty committee submitted to the administration results of an invesigation into a copyrighted story in the student newspaper.

The full text of the faculty report was to have been made public but was not. Excerpts exonerating the dean were released, however.

The committee looked into student charges that Dean Allen, among others, tried to pressure members of the Student Judicial Council in the handling of disciplinary cases.

Also at issue was the student allegation that Dean Allen tried without success to enlist co-eds to monitor freshmen English courses where it was charged she felt some of the young professors used the erotic aspects of literature in an attempt to seduce co-eds.

Dean Allen denied the allegations made in the Feb. 4 story, but 10 days later submitted her resignation because, she said, "No useful purpose could be served by prolonging the controversy."

Miss Fitzwater, who came to Stanford in 1961, said in her letter of resignation that "an unjust and sensational attack by a small group of students has resulted in the abrogation of the rights of officers of the university."

Her resignation is effective at the close of the winter quarter March 19.

Stanford University President Wallace Sterling said at the time of Dean Allen's resignation that the university had found no basis for the statements attributed to her.

University officials had no comment Wednesday on the associate dean's resignation.

Seems that Shirley had no place to put her knitting needles after leaving a home economics class at Clark junior high. So she stuck 'em in her hair and joined her civics class. A new fad, maybe?

'Victory Over TB' Attack Planned at Denver Meet

There is no deal - making possible with disease — outright victory over the threat is they only answer.

The Board of Directors for the State Tuberculosis Association met formally at Denver last weekend and reviewed a plan of attack which can bring TB to its knees in America.

Serving on the board are these Colorado Springs residents: Vernon A. Cheever, Dr. George J. Dwire, Vice Mayor Harold Hawks, Mrs. Hilliard E. Miller and Dr. William H. Ryder.

The plan of attack on TB was formally recognized when it was handed to the U.S. Surgeon General in Washington. A polished strategy, it cited the very basic elements of the disease, its strengths, weaknesses and the medical and social firepower required to down it forever.

The report is lengthy, but a few elements stand out like a doctor at the scene of an accident.

TB is stubborn — the body does not establish immunity as wtih measles and other comwith measles and other comeradication of the germ itself must be the object.

Drugs developed over 25 years ago were one of the greatest strides in TB control, but even these have a drawback. The drugs are only effective during the time the germs (tuber bacilli) are multiplying — at other times, the bacilli can survive for years while in a resting stage. This means a fight over an interval of years is necessary when the TB problem is viewed on an area - wide or national level.

There is, of course, a vaccine called BCG which is effective to some extent for those who have never been infected with TB. But here again, the wily TB germ causes trouble because vaccinated persons will react to TB testing if it is done in the future, and there is no way to tell from the skin test whether he has the disease or merely been vaccinated — TB then has to be diagnosed in a different way.

As or the incidence, TB cases number 53,315, plus 10,000 who have relapses, and 250,000 inactive cases as of five years ago and 250,000 newly reported. Authorities know that there are, after all are counted, a total of 35 million Americans who are carying the live TB and of germ, and many of these are children.

Part of the plan is actually underway in the Colorado Springs area. This includes testing of all children in the first grade, and all school teachers and school employes in School District No. 11. Fourteen-year-olds are tested in schools also.

The program is extensive — and expensive. But there is no other way to eradicate TB except through effective combat of the germ itself. Whether the plan is fully implemented for Colorado remains to be seen. The citizens, most certainly, will be the determining factor in offering their support.

REQUEST DENIED

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Juvenile Court Judge Clark Owens was given a check for $100 from a local civic group to buy something for the Girls' Detention Home here. Being at a loss as to what equipment to buy, he asked the girls for written suggestions. One which came in quickly from one of the 15 girls was: "Fifteen keys to the front door."

Another Woman Dean Quits With Protest

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A second Stanford University women's dean has resigned in the wake of student charges that some deans used undue influence in disciplinary cases and that one dean believed some young professors used literature in an attempt to seduce co-eds.

Miss Bonnie Fitzwater, 41, associate dean of women, Wednesday followed by three days the resignation of Miss Lucile Allen, 59, dean of women.

Dean Allen's resignation came Sunday night at the same time a faculty committee submitted to the administration results of an invesigation into a copyrighted story in the student newspaper.

The full text of the faculty report was to have been made public but was not. Excerpts exonerating the dean were released, however.

The committee looked into student charges that Dean Allen, among others, tried to pressure members of the Student Judicial Council in the handling of disciplinary cases.

Also at issue was the student allegation that Dean Allen tried without success to enlist co-eds to monitor freshmen English courses where it was charged she felt some of the young professors used the erotic aspects of literature in an attempt to seduce co-eds.

Dean Allen denied the allegations made in the Feb. 4 story, but 10 days later submitted her resignation because, she said, "No useful purpose could be served by prolonging the controversy."

Miss Fitzwater, who came to Stanford in 1961, said in her letter of resignation that "an unjust and sensational attack by a small group of students has resulted in the abrogation of the rights of officers of the university."

Her resignation is effective at the close of the winter quarter March 19.

Stanford University President Wallace Sterling said at the time of Dean Allen's resignation that the university had found no basis for the statements attributed to her.

University officials had no comment Wednesday on the associate dean's resignation.

'Victory Over TB' Attack Planned at Denver Meet

There is no deal - making possible with disease — outright victory over the threat is they only answer.

The Board of Directors for the State Tuberculosis Association met formally at Denver last weekend and reviewed a plan of attack which can bring TB to its knees in America.

Serving on the board are these Colorado Springs residents: Vernon A. Cheever, Dr. George J. Dwire, Vice Mayor Harold Hawks, Mrs. Hilliard E. Miller and Dr. William H. Ryder.

The plan of attack on TB was formally recognized when it was handed to the U.S. Surgeon General in Washington. A polished strategy, it cited the very basic elements of the disease, its strengths, weaknesses and the medical and social firepower required to down it forever.

The report is lengthy, but a few elements stand out like a doctor at the scene of an accident.

TB is stubborn — the body does not establish immunity as wtih measles and other comwith measles and other comeradication of the germ itself must be the object.

Drugs developed over 25 years ago were one of the greatest strides in TB control, but even these have a drawback. The drugs are only effective during the time the germs (tuber bacilli) are multiplying — at other times, the bacilli can survive for years while in a resting stage. This means a fight over an interval of years is necessary when the TB problem is viewed on an area - wide or national level.

There is, of course, a vaccine called BCG which is effective to some extent for those who have never been infected with TB. But here again, the wily TB germ causes trouble because vaccinated persons will react to TB testing if it is done in the future, and there is no way to tell from the skin test whether he has the disease or merely been vaccinated — TB then has to be diagnosed in a different way.

As or the incidence, TB cases number 53,315, plus 10,000 who have relapses, and 250,000 inactive cases as of five years ago and 250,000 newly reported. Authorities know that there are, after all are counted, a total of 35 million Americans who are carying the live TB and of germ, and many of these are children.

Part of the plan is actually underway in the Colorado Springs area. This includes testing of all children in the first grade, and all school teachers and school employes in School District No. 11. Fourteen-year-olds are tested in schools also.

The program is extensive — and expensive. But there is no other way to eradicate TB except through effective combat of the germ itself. Whether the plan is fully implemented for Colorado remains to be seen. The citizens, most certainly, will be the determining factor in offering their support.

REQUEST DENIED

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Juvenile Court Judge Clark Owens was given a check for $100 from a local civic group to buy something for the Girls' Detention Home here. Being at a loss as to what equipment to buy, he asked the girls for written suggestions. One which came in quickly from one of the 15 girls was: "Fifteen keys to the front door."

Writer Collects All Kinds of Doors, Bridges

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There are collectors of all sorts of things but Andrew A. Rooney, a CBS producer and writer, obviously collects on a grand scale. He collects doors and bridges.

He can't buy many of them or take them home, but it is certain he has affection for them. Last season his brief but delightful "Essay on Doors" must have made a lot of converts.

His "Essay on Bridges" Monday night will heighten our enjoyment and appreciation of man-made spans, great and small.

The half-hour special started with the ancient Roman arched bridges whose stones have endured in service for more than 2,000 years. Explaining in simple terms the engineering principles involved, he led us on with impressive and expressive photography to beam bridges, truss bridges, cantilevered bridges, draw bridges, swing bridges, and most breathtaking of all, suspension bridges.

The camera journey took us from the Rhine to the Hudson to the Pacific Coast. We saw an old steel bridge collapse slowly under the pressures of glacial ice. A German bridge dropped like a stone from explosive charges set by a retreating army. But mostly we saw lofty and handsome bridges which illustrated Rooney's own feelings about their unembellished beauty. It was a lovely little program.

Dinah Shore, meanwhile, was paying an earnest musical tribute to the Peace Corps in one of her occasional ABC specials. The program was filled with interesting songs, sung by Miss Shore and guest star Harry Belafonte, in Portuguese, Swahili, Indonesian and even Tagalog. But for all its good intentions it was rather slow moving hour.

It was a big evening for Pat Harrington Jr. First he popped up as a comedy veterinarian on NBC's "Man From U.N.C.L.E." A half hour later he was a pushy press agent bedeviling Bing Crosby in the groaner's ABC comedy series. Bing's real-life wife was also in the episode, playing a thoroughly unlikeable, wine-bibbing interior decorator.

CBS reportedly will follow ABC's "Peyton Place" lead by starting an evening soap opera within the next three or four months. Plans are to take the character of Lisa Hughes from "As The World Turns," the most popular show in daytime television, and build a new twice weekly evening show around her.

Before this trend for night-time serials is over, we may be wishing television had stuck to Westerns and cops and robbers. At least they had a climax to each story.

NBC will be rejuggling its day-time schedules around a bit on March 29. "Say When," a panel show, will disappear, but another panel show, "Call My Bluff," will replace it.

Final Respects Paid To Nat King Cole

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Notables of the entertainment world pay their final respects to Nat King Cole at private funeral services in St. James Episcopal church today.

The 45-year-old singer and jazz pianist died Monday of cancer.

Eulogies will be delivered by Jack Benny and George Jessel. The religious rites will be conducted by the Rev. Samuel D'-Amico. Burial will follow at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in nearby Glendale.

Those selected as honorary pallbearers include California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., song writers, band leaders, actors, singers and other entertainers.

More U.S., Soviet Trade Being Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The time may be right for U.S. trade overtures to the Soviet Union because of failures in Soviet economic policy, according to a study sponsored by the Committee for Economic Development.

In order to remain leader of the world's Communist bloc, the study said, the Soviet Union must acquire technology which is available only in the United States.

The study said the Soviet Union will not be able to surpass American output by 1970 — "or for a very long time after."

Frank O'Brien, a member of CED's research staff and a former staff writer in Europe and Washington for The Associated Press, wrote the book-length study, entitled "Crisis in World Communism." CED is a privately supported research organization of businessmen and economists.

Twice Is Enough for British Politician

LONDON (AP) — Twice is enough for Patrick Gordon Walker, who resigned as foreign secretary in the British Labor government after two straight election defeats.

He turned down a third chance Wednesday to win a seat in Parliament. A trade union invited him to contest the vacant Welsh seat of Abertillery, which the Labor party won by more than 20,000 votes in the October election.

Hubcap Thieves Are Quickly Caught

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Somebody up there was watching when three young hubcap thieves wheeled into the parking lot at Love Field, the city airport.

Swiftly they popped the hubcaps from a parked car, climbed into their own auto and started a getaway. It ended a block later as police stopped them Wednesday.

The hubcaps belonged to W. J. Shelton, who works in the airport control tower. He had a bird's eye view of the theft, and all sorts of communications to call police.

The youths were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Conflict Must Be Shunned, Pope Paul Says

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Pope Paul VI told a global peace conference today that all nations have a duty to foster friendship and shun armed conflict in "the present grave international crisis."

Failure to do so, he said, "would have incalculable and frightful results for all mankind."

His message came as eminent scholars and statesmen from around the world met to seek practical steps for preserving peace in an era of tension and nuclear weapons.

The gathering, inspired by the encyclical, Peace on Earth, of the late Pope John XXIII, brought together an illustrious company of intellectuals and government leaders.

About 1,500 of them, from the West and the Communist East, were registered for the three days of discussions.

The affair, privately sponsored by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, was titled "International Convocation on Pacem in Terris (Peace on Earth)."

Nobel Prize-winning physicist Linus Pauling told an initial working session the "injustice and immorality of the great wars of the past would be far transcended by a great war in the nuclear age.

"Instead of tens of millions, hundreds or even thousands of millions of human beings might be killed. Great nations might be exterminated. Civilization might come to an end. There is even the possibility that the human race would not survive the catastrophe."

Pope Paul, in a telegram relayed through Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York, voiced a "prayerful desire" that the deliberations here "lead to positive action for world peace."

At this critical time, he said, all nations have a "collective responsibility" for "the preservation of friendly relationships and the avoidance of armed conflict which would have incalculable and frightful results."

He also appealed — as did Pope John — for strengthening of the United Nations as an agency by which force is replaced by reason and "principles of justice and peace."

In a second message, handwritten to Robert M. Hutchins, conference chairman and president of the sponsoring center, the Pope reiterated his hopes for the meeting's effectiveness and impact.

The Pope called acceptance of God the "foundation of brotherhood" for achieving "a universal and peaceful society," but added that it also demanded practical efforts by men.

Founders Day Banquet Set At Payne Chapel

The annual Founders Day Banquet of the Payne Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Church of Colorado Springs will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the social hall of the church.

Guest speaker for the evening will be the Rev. Cecil W. Howard, pastor of Shorter AME Church of Denver. Rev. Howard previously has served as first vice president of the 5,000-member Kansas City, Mo., NAACP branch and recently was elected second vice president of the Denver group.

He is editor of the "Allen Christian Endeavor," a quarterly publication for AME young persons.

The banquet is open to the public.

Charter Presented At Boy Scout Meet

The following boys were invested with the rank of Tenderfoot Scout at a Court of Honor held by Troop 68 at Holy Trinity Parish Hall, 3101 Poinsettia Drive: James Cosgrove, Joseph Cosgrove, Thomas Dunlap, David Farrell, James Hoffacker, John Keller, Daniel Golden, Robert Lanna, James Muhn, Craig Smith, James Weber, Timothy Zimmerman, J. Douglas McKinley, and Jon Gardner. The investiture ceremony was conducted by Bill Greenhalgh, the Junior Assistant Scoutmaster, with assistance from Don Gardner, Scoutmaster.

The Troop Charter was presented to Leo Keller, the Institutional Representative for the Holy Name Society, by Herman Patrick, neighborhood Scouting Commissioner.

Conflict Must Be Shunned, Pope Paul Says

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Pope Paul VI told a global peace conference today that all nations have a duty to foster friendship and shun armed conflict in "the present grave international crisis."

Failure to do so, he said, "would have incalculable and frightful results for all mankind."

His message came as eminent scholars and statesmen from around the world met to seek practical steps for preserving peace in an era of tension and nuclear weapons.

The gathering, inspired by the encyclical, Peace on Earth, of the late Pope John XXIII, brought together an illustrious company of intellectuals and government leaders.

About 1,500 of them, from the West and the Communist East, were registered for the three days of discussions.

The affair, privately sponsored by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, was titled "International Convocation on Pacem in Terris (Peace on Earth)."

Nobel Prize-winning physicist Linus Pauling told an initial working session the "injustice and immorality of the great wars of the past would be far transcended by a great war in the nuclear age.

"Instead of tens of millions, hundreds or even thousands of millions of human beings might be killed. Great nations might be exterminated. Civilization might come to an end. There is even the possibility that the human race would not survive the catastrophe."

Pope Paul, in a telegram relayed through Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York, voiced a "prayerful desire" that the deliberations here "lead to positive action for world peace."

At this critical time, he said, all nations have a "collective responsibility" for "the preservation of friendly relationships and the avoidance of armed conflict which would have incalculable and frightful results."

He also appealed — as did Pope John — for strengthening of the United Nations as an agency by which force is replaced by reason and "principles of justice and peace."

In a second message, handwritten to Robert M. Hutchins, conference chairman and president of the sponsoring center, the Pope reiterated his hopes for the meeting's effectiveness and impact.

The Pope called acceptance of God the "foundation of brotherhood" for achieving "a universal and peaceful society," but added that it also demanded practical efforts by men.

Mental Health Movie Traces Patients Early Disorders

The frightened perspective of a paranoid - schizophrenic, who believed an "organization" was bent on destroying him, was projected at the February meeting of the El Paso County Association for Mental Health Tuesday.

Comments by Dr. Willis Lloyd Strachan, a member of the San Francisco Psychoanalytic Institute and native of Colorado Springs, were heard following the second in a series of filmed interviews sponsored by the Mental Health Association.

The movie traced the patient's early mental disorders and touched upon his road to recovery.

He believed that psychiatrists, the hospital staff and other patients were organized against him. The paranoid - schizophrenic said he didn't believe there were other patients on the same ward with him, but they were part of this "organization' and were acting as patients.

The mentaly disturbed man, an accountant by vocation, said he "had" to bury felings of depression and did not know if he would resort to action against the organization.

"I might strike back. I don't know that. I can't answer that," he told a psychiatrist.

The patient's former employer said his caliber of work was excellent before the breakdown. Others said he was impressive and was a conscientious worker.

Nearing recovery, the patient said he wished to join his "fellow human beings," wished to continue his work and problems at time seemed insignificant when he sensed "this love of other people."

"It's a sickness like anything else and it has to be taken care of," his mother said. The patient's employer voiced the same opinion.

Dr. Strachan, a graduate of Colorado Colege and the University of Colorado School of Medicine, said paranoid-schizophrenia is the major problem in state hospitals.

"It is by all odds our major problem in state hospitals," he said, but estimated that more than 80 per cent of such cases are curable through treatment in a good institution.

He said the defense mechanism of a paranoid - schizophrenic often is based on transferences from parents. Schizophrenic children are products of schizophrenic parents, is a theory many believe is accurate, Dr. Strachan said.

Dr. Strachan said the mother plays a crucial role in the first three years, but that hatred — projected out of fear of the father — has influence in forming disorders within a child. The father's role becomes crucial when the child's 4-5 years old, he said.

The speaker had psychiatric training at the University of Colorado, the University of Minnesota and the Army - Air Force Hospital in Sioux Falls, S.D. during the war years.

A fellow in the Menninger Foundation School of Psychiatry in 1946-47, Dr. Strachan received psychoanalytic training at the San Francisco Psychoanalytic Institute, was clinical instructor in psychiatry at the University of Washington and served as consultant to Community Psychiatric Clinic, Seatle, Wash.; the Veterans Administration Hospital, Phoenix, Ariz.; the Pinel Foundation Hospital, Seattle, and the Camelback Hospital, Phoenix.

Another qualified speaker will comment on "Obsessive - Compulsive Neurosis," the third in a series of filmed interviews sponsored by the Mental Health Association at noon March 16 in Dott's Chicken Shack. Reservations for the luncheon meeting may be made by calling 633-5306. The public is invited.

Thousands Use Peak Highway To Ski Area

Several thousand persons have used the Pikes Peak Highway this winter to get to the ski area below Glen Cove.

According to figures in the city auditor's office, more than 5,000 adults and children have gone through the toll gate on weekends since the ski season opened late in November.

There is a toll of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children, with this money being used to defray expenses for keeping the road open from the toll gate above Cascade to the ski area.

About a foot and a half of snow has fallen this month at the city watershed on the North Slope of Pikes, and about the same has fallen on the ski slopes. About two feet of snow has fallen this month at Ruxton Park, which is lower in elevation.

Highway officials say the road to the ski area is in good shape. An exceptionally large turnout is expected this weekend because of recent snows.

Williamsburg Rejects Offer Of Florence to Sell Water

The town of Williamsburg, which was seeking to negotiate with the city of Florence to buy water, Monday night rejected the proposal offered by the City Council of Florence.

The Florence Council had indicated it would assess $6 per meter for the 20 consumers living in Williamsburg, which is located about three miles from Florence.

Commenting on the rejection, Councilman Howard Lloyd noted that "we can't sell Florence Water to anyone outside of the community cheaper than we now charge local residents."

In other business, the council heard a report from City Manager Frank Carochi who noted that the watershed south of Florence now has over 20 inches of snow. There has been no early run-off with cold weather holding the February snowpack. Carochi said Newlin Creek was running ½ inch of water and a trace was coming from Adobe - Mineral creeks.

City Attorney Erick Roberts told the council that the Gumaer Estates Inc., headed by President R. W. Morris, has turned over a small section of land at Maple and Fifth Street to the city at no cost to the community.

Carochi reported Emilio Soriento deeded his property to the city at Santa Fe and Third Street. The property had been headed for condemnation.

The council agreed to place an order with Vendetti Chevrolet Co. for the proposed new fire truck. However, the council indicated that once the chassis has been delivered there may be a further delay in final completion and delivery of the truck because of lack of funds. Once the chassis is delivered to Vendetti, it must then be taken to Pueblo to be custom - built. The additional cost has been estimated in excess of $5,000. Since the truck is being purchased on the basis of cigarette tax money, the revenue from this source has been earmarked to pay for the completed unit.

It was pointed out, however, that cigarette purchases have fallen below anticipated revenue figures and that several months delay will be necessary before the council has sufficient funds to pick up the final tab on the truck. The councilmen said sale of the present truck will have to be made before the new one can be purchased. It was indicated that both Rockvale and Coal Creek have expressed interest in the truck now being used by Florence.

Councilman Roy Palmer, who represents the fire department's interests and is chairman of the Fire and Police Committee, brought up a proposal, later ruled out of order, to get city assistance to purchase more and better protective clothing for firemen, and discussed at some length the city's bill for the conference (fire department) telephone service. No action was taken on either discussion.

Councilman Gale Decker was the only member not present.

According to Deputy Sheriff Eldon McCune, Thurman and Richard A. Elmore took the girls from Denver to the Navajo Hogan where he parked his car around 8:30 p.m. The girls left the bar about nine and when they had not returned by 11:30 Thurman reported his car and money missing.

As far as he could recollect the girls were called "Linda" and "Mary" and were about 17 years old. The car was pulled out of a ditch later in Monument and sent on its way by the state patrol who reported it contained two young women.

Colorado College Speaker Cites Conflict in Knowing 'What Law Is'

Although most of us live within the law, it is difficult to describe what law is.

Dr. Erich H. Markel, executive vice president of the Max Kade Foundation in New York, spoke Wednesday night at Colorado College and pointed out that there seems to be no satisfactory answer to what law is.

The visiting speaker was here to dedicate the Max Kade House on the college campus — a house for women students in which only German is spoken. The lecture was not part of the dedication ceremony.

He holds law degrees in both Germany and the United States and at one time was an advisor to the U. S. Department of Justice.

Markel said, "What is law? There is no satisfactory answer. But then neither is there an answer in other fields. People in art cannot describe what art is."

One description of law was made by Justice Holmes of the U. S. Supreme Court, who said according to Markel, "What the courts will do is what law is."

Turning to a more historical view of law, he pointed out that generally speaking there has been two schools of thought on law, and that some times they blend. The two are the "natural law" theory and the "Positive Law" theory.

Natural law is that law which comes from the nature of man and is discovered by reason — as it is not reasonable to kill a man.

Positive law is that law which is considered to be a positive good for the society.

The two laws clash. While it may be against natural law for a law enforcement officer to kill an escaping hoodlum, it may not be against positive law which says the hoodlum's death is in the positive interest of society.

The professor pointed out that the Hammurabic Code, a code of laws of a Babylonian king, 1955 to 1913 B. C., was a mixture of the two ideas. It was a positive law to serve the society, but it also had been given to Hammurabi by the son of God.

"The label 'made in heaven' never hurts a code of law for its acceptance by the consumers," the professor said.

Religious law was natural law, and while religious law and civil law eventually were broken apart as the medieval ages ended, one of the positive things left to the modern world by the church laws of the earlier age is that it taught man to submit to law.

Markel pointed out there are two vital points in law today — intent, and motive.

Taking larceny as an example — he said that larceny consists of taking property from another person with the intent of keeping the property and thus depriving the other fellow of it.

"The law is concerned with the intent of the man to keep that property, say it is food, from the person who had it. The fact that the man's motive is to feed his children is not a concern of the law," Markel said.

He pointed out that the case of mercy killings regardless of the circumstances is considered to be immoral and against the law in America because it is against natural law to take another life.

Natural law generally comes from constitutions and other written codes, and those came from the customs and social habits of the people, he explained.

Markel pointed out that a decision in Washington D. C. in 1954 has had far reaching effect on the rule of law so far as crime and insanity are concerned.

A British court ruling in 1843 said that a men was insane if he didn't know what he was doing.

The Washington decision said that a man was not responsible for his act if the act was the product of mental disease or defect.

"The question arises then, did the act come from the effect of disease or defect, or from the will of the person. If it didn't come from the will of the person, there is no intent," he explained.

Citizens' Complaints Bring Fines to Springs Drivers

Judge Allan Asher found two defendants guilty of traffic violations Wednesday in Municipal Court on complaints by civilians.

"It's fortunate," he said, "that citizens are willing to share the burden of the police officers to restrict drivers in this city."

On a complaint by Dr. Ralph Adams, he found Mickey Bouziden, 21, 2504 E. Boulder St., guilty of speeding and levied a $15 fine.

On a complaint by John Churchill, 3134 N. Illinois St., he found Richard Holt, 17, 2836 Pennsylvania Ave., guilty of failure to yield the right of way. He suspended the boy's $15 fine on condition he attended the traffic lecture Wednesday night in the City Auditorium.

A second youth, Ronnie Jackson, 19, 110 N. Logan Ave., pleaded guilty to speeding, two careless driving charges, and a reckless driving charge. Judge Asher dismissed one careless driving charge, and levied fines of $25 each on the remaining three charges. He also suspended Jackson's right to drive in the city for 30 days and warned him that if he is caught driving during this period, he will receive a jail sentence.

Peter Gulich, 2513 Center Lane, pleaded guilty to a charge of parking on a parking, but said he didn't think he "should be guilty for the fine." Judge Asher disagreed and levied a $5 fine.

Evelyn Taylor, 42, 948 E. Rio Grande St., was found guilty of having a dog at large and was fined $10.

Attorney Paul Gerdes's motion for dismissal of a charge of not having a merchant patrol license against Dennis Hancock, 34, 1216 Norwood, was granted by the judge.

Able Martinez, 23, 504 S. Weber St., was fined $25 on his guilty plea to breach of the peace.

Joseph Vaughn, 23, who listed the YMCA as his address, was fined $25 on his guilty plea to turning in a false alarm to the Police Department. A vagrancy charge against Vaughn was dismissed by the judge.

Vaughn's excuse for the false alarm was that he didn't want to have any trouble with his wife, so he called the police before there was any trouble.

Judge Asher admonished him to settle his own private problems and not call upon the police to settle something before it happened.

The hearing of Margaret Benton, 50, 921 N. Corona St., was continued until Feb. 26. Mrs. Benton has pleaded guilty to a charge of damage to city property.

Judge Grants Injunction Against Firm

District Judge John Gallagher has granted an injunction barring "hammering, pounding or spray painting" between the hours of 6 p.m. and 8 a.m. at Rocky Mountain Body Rebuilders, 820 S. Sahwatch St.

The injunction was granted in a suit brought by Harry F. and Ruth Poblocki, 819 S. Sahwatch St., against Dan Van Dyke of the Rocky Mountain Body Rebuilders.

The plaintiffs requested a judgment prohibiting Van Dyke from operating his business at the present address and alleged it constitutes a nuisance because of "dust, noxious vapors and offensive effluvia, gases, odors and stenches" and also because of the noise.

They also asked $10,000 damages but a motion by the defendant to dismiss the claim was granted during the trial.

Thousands Use Peak Highway To Ski Area

Several thousand persons have used the Pikes Peak Highway this winter to get to the ski area below Glen Cove.

According to figures in the city auditor's office, more than 5,000 adults and children have gone through the toll gate on weekends since the ski season opened late in November.

There is a toll of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children, with this money being used to defray expenses for keeping the road open from the toll gate above Cascade to the ski area.

About a foot and a half of snow has fallen this month at the city watershed on the North Slope of Pikes, and about the same has fallen on the ski slopes. About two feet of snow has fallen this month at Ruxton Park, which is lower in elevation.

Highway officials say the road to the ski area is in good shape. An exceptionally large turnout is expected this weekend because of recent snows.

Four hundred and fifty seven dollars and eighty two cents in cash, a $100 check, a brief case and a case of whiskey worth $46 were stolen from a car belonging to Donald Francis Ward, 404 Esther Dr. the sheriff's office said Wednesday.

Ward told Deputy Sheriff Art Tolch he parked his car in the driveway of his house and went inside. Then he came out about 15 minutes later he found the vent glass shattered and the door open. He also added he had stopped at the Wayside Inn in Fountain and the Branding Iron in Security on his way home, and that the offense could have happened at his home or either of the two other places.

He said that between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. Wednesday one of them was stolen. Coate said it was a Holly four-barrel carburetor, serial number C3AE9510-B.

Williamsburg Rejects Offer Of Florence to Sell Water

The town of Williamsburg, which was seeking to negotiate with the city of Florence to buy water, Monday night rejected the proposal offered by the City Council of Florence.

The Florence Council had indicated it would assess $6 per meter for the 20 consumers living in Williamsburg, which is located about three miles from Florence.

Commenting on the rejection, Councilman Howard Lloyd noted that "we can't sell Florence Water to anyone outside of the community cheaper than we now charge local residents."

In other business, the council heard a report from City Manager Frank Carochi who noted that the watershed south of Florence now has over 20 inches of snow. There has been no early run-off with cold weather holding the February snowpack. Carochi said Newlin Creek was running ½ inch of water and a trace was coming from Adobe - Mineral creeks.

City Attorney Erick Roberts told the council that the Gumaer Estates Inc., headed by President R. W. Morris, has turned over a small section of land at Maple and Fifth Street to the city at no cost to the community.

Carochi reported Emilio Soriento deeded his property to the city at Santa Fe and Third Street. The property had been headed for condemnation.

The council agreed to place an order with Vendetti Chevrolet Co. for the proposed new fire truck. However, the council indicated that once the chassis has been delivered there may be a further delay in final completion and delivery of the truck because of lack of funds. Once the chassis is delivered to Vendetti, it must then be taken to Pueblo to be custom - built. The additional cost has been estimated in excess of $5,000. Since the truck is being purchased on the basis of cigarette tax money, the revenue from this source has been earmarked to pay for the completed unit.

It was pointed out, however, that cigarette purchases have fallen below anticipated revenue figures and that several months delay will be necessary before the council has sufficient funds to pick up the final tab on the truck. The councilmen said sale of the present truck will have to be made before the new one can be purchased. It was indicated that both Rockvale and Coal Creek have expressed interest in the truck now being used by Florence.

Councilman Roy Palmer, who represents the fire department's interests and is chairman of the Fire and Police Committee, brought up a proposal, later ruled out of order, to get city assistance to purchase more and better protective clothing for firemen, and discussed at some length the city's bill for the conference (fire department) telephone service. No action was taken on either discussion.

Burglary Attempt Fails at Office

A construction company office was entered by burglars between 5:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday but apparently escaped without stealing anything, police reported.

According to the employe, nothing was missing from the office, and the broken window was valued at $12.

According to Deputy Sheriff Lee Quien, Gary Rutledge, 533½ E. Brookside St. was walking north on Nevada Avenue at 11:30 p.m. when an unknown man approached him and asked where he was going.

Rutledge said he was going home and the man grabbed him and tore his tie tack loose, demanding Rutledge hand over his money. Rutledge then gave him approximately $1.50 in change.

'Dates' Take Car, Cash After Trip

Charles Thurman of Parker, Colo. told the sheriff's office Wednesday that between $350 and $400 in cash and his car had been stolen by two girls he and a friend had picked up in Denver.

According to Deputy Sheriff Eldon McCune, Thurman and Richard A. Elmore took the girls from Denver to the Navajo Hogan where he parked his car around 8:30 p.m. The girls left the bar about nine and when they had not returned by 11:30 Thurman reported his car and money missing.

As far as he could recollect the girls were called "Linda" and "Mary" and were about 17 years old. The car was pulled out of a ditch later in Monument and sent on its way by the state patrol who reported it contained two young women.

Later still the vehicle was found abandoned but there was no trace of the two girls.

Colorado College Speaker Cites Conflict in Knowing 'What Law Is'

Although most of us live within the law, it is difficult to describe what law is.

Dr. Erich H. Markel, executive vice president of the Max Kade Foundation in New York, spoke Wednesday night at Colorado College and pointed out that there seems to be no satisfactory answer to what law is.

The visiting speaker was here to dedicate the Max Kade House on the college campus — a house for women students in which only German is spoken. The lecture was not part of the dedication ceremony.

He holds law degrees in both Germany and the United States and at one time was an advisor to the U. S. Department of Justice.

Markel said, "What is law? There is no satisfactory answer. But then neither is there an answer in other fields. People in art cannot describe what art is."

One description of law was made by Justice Holmes of the U. S. Supreme Court, who said according to Markel, "What the courts will do is what law is."

Turning to a more historical view of law, he pointed out that generally speaking there has been two schools of thought on law, and that some times they blend. The two are the "natural law" theory and the "Positive Law" theory.

Natural law is that law which comes from the nature of man and is discovered by reason — as it is not reasonable to kill a man.

Positive law is that law which is considered to be a positive good for the society.

The two laws clash. While it may be against natural law for a law enforcement officer to kill an escaping hoodlum, it may not be against positive law which says the hoodlum's death is in the positive interest of society.

The professor pointed out that the Hammurabic Code, a code of laws of a Babylonian king, 1955 to 1913 B. C., was a mixture of the two ideas. It was a positive law to serve the society, but it also had been given to Hammurabi by the son of God.

"The label 'made in heaven' never hurts a code of law for its acceptance by the consumers," the professor said.

Religious law was natural law, and while religious law and civil law eventually were broken apart as the medieval ages ended, one of the positive things left to the modern world by the church laws of the earlier age is that it taught man to submit to law.

Markel pointed out there are two vital points in law today — intent, and motive.

Taking larceny as an example — he said that larceny consists of taking property from another person with the intent of keeping the property and thus depriving the other fellow of it.

"The law is concerned with the intent of the man to keep that property, say it is food, from the person who had it. The fact that the man's motive is to feed his children is not a concern of the law," Markel said.

He pointed out that the case of mercy killings regardless of the circumstances is considered to be immoral and against the law in America because it is against natural law to take another life.

Natural law generally comes from constitutions and other written codes, and those came from the customs and social habits of the people, he explained.

Markel pointed out that a decision in Washington D. C. in 1954 has had far reaching effect on the rule of law so far as crime and insanity are concerned.

A British court ruling in 1843 said that a men was insane if he didn't know what he was doing.

The Washington decision said that a man was not responsible for his act if the act was the product of mental disease or defect.

"The question arises then, did the act come from the effect of disease or defect, or from the will of the person. If it didn't come from the will of the person, there is no intent," he explained.

Citizens' Complaints Bring Fines to Springs Drivers

Judge Allan Asher found two defendants guilty of traffic violations Wednesday in Municipal Court on complaints by civilians.

"It's fortunate," he said, "that citizens are willing to share the burden of the police officers to restrict drivers in this city."

On a complaint by John Churchill, 3134 N. Illinois St., he found Richard Holt, 17, 2836 Pennsylvania Ave., guilty of failure to yield the right of way. He suspended the boy's $15 fine on condition he attended the traffic lecture Wednesday night in the City Auditorium.

A second youth, Ronnie Jackson, 19, 110 N. Logan Ave., pleaded guilty to speeding, two careless driving charges, and a reckless driving charge. Judge Asher dismissed one careless driving charge, and levied fines of $25 each on the remaining three charges. He also suspended Jackson's right to drive in the city for 30 days and warned him that if he is caught driving during this period, he will receive a jail sentence.

Peter Gulich, 2513 Center Lane, pleaded guilty to a charge of parking on a parking, but said he didn't think he "should be guilty for the fine." Judge Asher disagreed and levied a $5 fine.

Evelyn Taylor, 42, 948 E. Rio Grande St., was found guilty of having a dog at large and was fined $10.

Attorney Paul Gerdes's motion for dismissal of a charge of not having a merchant patrol license against Dennis Hancock, 34, 1216 Norwood, was granted by the judge.

Able Martinez, 23, 504 S. Weber St., was fined $25 on his guilty plea to breach of the peace.

Joseph Vaughn, 23, who listed the YMCA as his address, was fined $25 on his guilty plea to turning in a false alarm to the Police Department. A vagrancy charge against Vaughn was dismissed by the judge.

Vaughn's excuse for the false alarm was that he didn't want to have any trouble with his wife, so he called the police before there was any trouble.

Judge Asher admonished him to settle his own private problems and not call upon the police to settle something before it happened.

Judge Grants Injunction Against Firm

District Judge John Gallagher has granted an injunction barring "hammering, pounding or spray painting" between the hours of 6 p.m. and 8 a.m. at Rocky Mountain Body Rebuilders, 820 S. Sahwatch St.

Such operations are not only forbidden at that time but at all other times unless the doors and windows on the north side and in front of the building are closed.

The injunction was granted in a suit brought by Harry F. and Ruth Poblocki, 819 S. Sahwatch St., against Dan Van Dyke of the Rocky Mountain Body Rebuilders.

The plaintiffs requested a judgment prohibiting Van Dyke from operating his business at the present address and alleged it constitutes a nuisance because of "dust, noxious vapors and offensive effluvia, gases, odors and stenches" and also because of the noise.

They also asked $10,000 damages but a motion by the defendant to dismiss the claim was granted during the trial.

Old West Still Very Much Alive in Wyoming

By MAX JENNINGS

CHEYENNE (UPI)—There is a lot of the old West left in Wyoming, and the 1965 Wyoming Legislature proves it.

For example, this Wyoming Legislature has passed a bill which makes it unlawful to cut off or mutilate more than one-half the ear of a sheep.

When this bill was introduced, it drew smiles. But the smiling stopped when a very serious Rep. Joseph Burke, R-Natrona, president of the Wyoming Wool Growers Association, explained its purpose.

He said the bill would make the offense a felony carrying up to a five-year prison sentence.

Most sheep in Wyoming are identified by a brand on the lower part of the sheep's ear, Burke said. All a rustler had to do before the law was cut the sheep's ear off and its owner had no way of identifying the animal. Under Wyoming's new law, sheep rustlers will find their job more difficult.

It will also be easier to kill a dog, legally, after this session of the legislature.

Early last fall the city council of Powell in the northwestern part of the state announced its support of legislation to control rampaging dog packs that roamed the countryside at night, killing sheep.

On several occasions, the dogs' bloody tracks were followed from the scene of their slaughter back to their homes in the city, their owners unaware their pets had left home.

Sheepmen met and decided to set cyanide guns in the sheep carcasses to help take care of the killer-pets.

A few of the dogs were caught at their sport by ranchers. But the then existing Wyoming law froze the trigger fingers of a few.

The ranchers decided to take their problem to the legislature. And they got results. The legislation allows the owner of livestock to kill dogs caught running with his stock, without the consent of the dog owner.

And probably no other state legislature this year, in the West or elsewhere, talked about buffalo in its political halls.

But for two days, the Wyoming House of Representatives talked about a bill to classify the buffalo as a game animal. The bill, said sponsors, was designed to protect the buffalo.

It was voted down in the House, then approved on another reconsideration of the vote. It was sent to the Senate which failed to take any action on it immediately.

Gov. Clifford Hansen also signed a joint memorial honoring a group called the Wind River Mountain Men of Fremont County, a bearded, buckskin clad group that represented Wyoming in the inaugural parade in Washington in January.

The group portrays the early day fur traders, who carrying their beaver traps on their shoulders and cradling their long rifles in their arms, were the frist white men to penetrate the rugged mountains of Wyoming.

Another bill that gained the approval of the House after a stormy debate, would make it illegal to hunt at night without the permission of landowners.

The bill originally specified only rabbit hunting but later included all animals. Sponsors of the legislation said it was not anti-hunting but anti-rustling in intent. They said the bill would take away the primary excuse of persons caught in trucks on the cattle ranges at night.

But in Wyoming, the most thinly populated state in the union with the exception of Alaska, hunting is an important part of the lives of most families. And any legislation to curtail it has always met vocal abuse in the legislative halls.

The bill was not expected to make it through the Senate.

Legion to Oppose VA Hospital Closing

The 153-bed Western Slope hospital is one of 11 VA institutions to be shut down as part of an economic cutback. The Colorado hospital is to be closed May 1.

George Astler, a Denver American Legion post commander, pledged an all-out fight to keep the Colorado institution open.

"Let there be no mistake that the American Legion at every level is going all the way in this fight," Astler said. "We think that people of Colorado are going to separate the men from the boys on this issue.

"Thousands of people all over Colorado know how difficult it has been for relatives and friends and neighbors to get in to any veterans administration hospital," Astler said, "and will not be hoodwinked by assertions that the Denver Veterans Administration Hospital can absorb the Grand Junction load."

Type-Casting In Movies Snarls Jobs

By JOAN CROSBY

NEW YORK (NEA) — Lilia Skala, an Oscar nominee for her beautiful performance as a nun in "Lilies of the Field," is a good example of the things wrong with show business.

A handsome woman with a proven talent, she still has trouble getting acting jobs. When she received word of her Oscar nomination last year, she was working in the lost and found department of the New York City Center, "grateful for the job."

"I know my talent is very great," Miss Skala says, with objectivity. "It was only scratched in 'Lilies of the Field,' but others have to know it."

Others — mainly producers and casting directors — have to know two other basic facts of life, Miss Skala believes:

A performer with an accent (hers is a charming Viennese inflection) can be cast in an "American" role without the accent having to be explained. (She is a naturalized American, who has lived here since 1939 when she and her family fled Hitler.)

If one does have an accent, it is not necessary to be cast as only a Grand Duchess (which she played in both the Broadway and Hollywood version of "Call Me Madam") or as a hand-wringing immigrant mamma.

"There are plenty of middle-class Europeans living in America — doctors, lawyers, psychologists. All have accents even heavier than mine, all are middle class. But this is a facet of life that hasn't penetrated writers' minds yet."

Even if a role calls for an accent, Miss Skala says American directors prefer to cast American actors and have them put on an accent.

"I suppose I can't blame them," she says, "although I would love to. But they feel if an American puts on an accent, the inflection remains American which makes the actor easier to understand."

Miss Skala does find work however. She has a co-starring role in Stanley Kramer's movie "Ship of Fools," and she willl be on television when ABC-TV telecasts the second Telsun-UN Special, Who Has Seen the Wind? on Friday Feb. 19.

"Who Has Seen the Wind? is an extraordinary television film with suspense, purity and drama. But please don't sneeze or yawn while you are watching," says Miss Skala, who has a vignette as a nun, "because if you do, I have gone for good."

Celeste Holm thinks there is entirely too much blather on television. For that reason, she is delighted to be connected with the blather-free, totally engaging, new production of Rodgers and Hammerstein's Cinderella, scheduled for CBS-TV on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22.

Blonde, blue-eyed, vivacious Celeste, plays the fairy godmother in a dazzling costume. The closest she had come to a role of that type previously, was a very early portrayal of an angel in a school pageant.

"It was the Angel-of-the-Lord -whose - glory - shone - round-about - and - they - were -sore afarid that I played," she recalls proudly.

But to get back to blather, as typified by talk shows, Celeste says she is "sick of it. Isn't it interesting that there is a whole new trend to see actors do what they don't really do well at all?"

Celeste, who does what she does very well, has finally accepted a series, Meet Me In St. Louis, a possibility for ABC next season.

She has turned down about 60 series in which the character she would have played sounded alluring, exciting, humorous, and deep in the presentation. "But in the script, the most exciting line was always, 'Pass the muffins, please.'"

AN APPLE FOR THE DEPOSITOR

COOPER, Tex. (AP)—An old custom has been resurrected for customers of Delta National Bank. Sixty-four years ago when the bank opened for business, a large bowl of red apples was kept on the counter for customer munching.

Some time in the ensuing years, the custom gradually faded out. When one of the old-timers reminded officials the big bowl was brought into use again. Now it's an apple for the customer—teachers and all.

Cyanide Blamed For Deaths of Mother, Children

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — Police blamed cyanide poisoning, possibly in a box of Valentine candy, for the deaths of a barmaid and two children whose bodies were found in their apartment Wednesday night.

Doctors said a third child might survive.

Detective Capt. Olen Miles said medical examination detected the presence of cyanide in the body of Kaye Raschke, 24.

Fellow employes, checking after she failed to report for her first night of work at a lounge, broke into the apartment and found her dead on the living room floor.

Bodies of her daughter Candy Moore, 4, and son, Mike Moore, 2, lay beneath a bed. A doctor said they died Tuesday night or early Wednesday.

Her son Butch Moore, 5, was taken to a hospital in serious condition. He was lying on the bed.

Miles said a half-empty box of candy in the living room probably contained the poison. It was sent to a laboratory for analysis. Police had not determined whether Mrs. Raschke bought the candy or received it as a gift.

Mrs. Raschke and the children moved here this week from Fort Stockton, Tex., after she and her husband, Lloyd E. Raschke, separated.

Friends said the children were Mrs. Raschke's by a previous marriage.

Cyanide Blamed For Deaths of Mother, Children

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — Police blamed cyanide poisoning, possibly in a box of Valentine candy, for the deaths of a barmaid and two children whose bodies were found in their apartment Wednesday night.

Doctors said a third child might survive.

Detective Capt. Olen Miles said medical examination detected the presence of cyanide in the body of Kaye Raschke, 24.

Fellow employes, checking after she failed to report for her first night of work at a lounge, broke into the apartment and found her dead on the living room floor.

Bodies of her daughter Candy Moore, 4, and son, Mike Moore, 2, lay beneath a bed. A doctor said they died Tuesday night or early Wednesday.

Her son Butch Moore, 5, was taken to a hospital in serious condition. He was lying on the bed.

Miles said a half-empty box of candy in the living room probably contained the poison. It was sent to a laboratory for analysis. Police had not determined whether Mrs. Raschke bought the candy or received it as a gift.

Mrs. Raschke and the children moved here this week from Fort Stockton, Tex., after she and her husband, Lloyd E. Raschke, separated.

Friends said the children were Mrs. Raschke's by a previous marriage.

McNamara Will Testify on U.S. Dangers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Armed Services Committee put Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara on the top of its list of men to hear today.

He was scheduled to begin telling the committee where the United States armed forces now stand in relation to the dangers, commitments and missions around the world — and what they have and will need to carry out their job.

It was the beginning of this year's annual "military posture" testimony.

McNamara's appearance had been edlayed more than a week by his recent illness and by urgent demands for his presence at the Pentagon and at White House meetings dealing with the Viet Nam war.

The usual prepared statements run into thousands of words and volumes of charts. The statement last year, in only the form made public, ran to 170 pages.

The secret, undisclosed portion volunteered by the secretary presumably equaled or exceeded that wordage. And to that was added questioning by the committee and McNamara's answers.

The posture statement is a McNamara innovation. It customarily includes a summary, done up in packaged form covering each phase of defense, to provide a large and detailed picture of the programs upon which the department has based its annual budgetary request to Congress.

Dispute Over Languages Is Raging in India

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

India's 1961 census disclosed that in the huge sub-continent there are 845 different languages and major dialects.

Of this polyglot, Hindi and its dialects are used by something less than half of the population, mainly in the north. Among them all, the single unifying factor has been the English language, an inheritance of years of British colonial rule. Particularly this applied to the civil service.

The great diversity of language made hopeless the task of unifying state and national administrations without a common denominator.

And so it was that the constitution of 1950 directed that English should be the official language for the first 15 years and on Jan. 26, 1965, should be replaced by Hindi.

In 1963 Parliament passed a law saying that non-Hindi speaking states could, if they wished, retain English as an "associate language" for another 10 years. But it failed to appease the fears of millions of Indians who feared loss of their jobs to Hindi speakers or the resentment of those states proud of their own native tongue.

Rule by riot not being uncommon among the explosive Indian population, it was not too surprising that on Jan. 26, in the state of Madras in the south mobs began taking to the streets.

Madras is a Tamil - speaking state, a language used by about 34 million.

The rioters attacked trains, burned stations and cut telephone lines in an attempt to halt communication.

The mobs seized two policemen and burned them alive.

Seven persons burned themselves to death in protest suicides.

The riots then spread to Mysore and Kerala states where students attacked trains and post offices and stoned Hindi teachers.

For mild - mannered Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri the language riots were just one of many burdens but they threatened to have widespread repercussions.

The rioting put new strains on the ruling Congress party, already bursting at the seams as result of the loss of former Prime Minister Nehru.

In Kerala state elections are scheduled for next month, and the Communists who made political profit out of the food riots of last November seem likely to make further gains out of the language riots.

Kerala is the only Indian state where the Communists ever have hel power. They were in office from 1957 to 1959.

It is a tragedy of India that Nehru left it with a heritage of 17 years of democracy but failed to solve any of its other major problems.

The greatest of these is a faltering economy unable to feed India's exploding population. Hand in hand are inflation and mounting unemployment.

With all of these facing him, Shastri seemed ready to compromise on the language issue.

Dispute Over Languages Is Raging in India

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

India's 1961 census disclosed that in the huge sub-continent there are 845 different languages and major dialects.

Of this polyglot, Hindi and its dialects are used by something less than half of the population, mainly in the north. Among them all, the single unifying factor has been the English language, an inheritance of years of British colonial rule. Particularly this applied to the civil service.

The great diversity of language made hopeless the task of unifying state and national administrations without a common denominator.

And so it was that the constitution of 1950 directed that English should be the official language for the first 15 years and on Jan. 26, 1965, should be replaced by Hindi.

In 1963 Parliament passed a law saying that non-Hindi speaking states could, if they wished, retain English as an "associate language" for another 10 years. But it failed to appease the fears of millions of Indians who feared loss of their jobs to Hindi speakers or the resentment of those states proud of their own native tongue.

Rule by riot not being uncommon among the explosive Indian population, it was not too surprising that on Jan. 26, in the state of Madras in the south mobs began taking to the streets.

Madras is a Tamil - speaking state, a language used by about 34 million.

The rioters attacked trains, burned stations and cut telephone lines in an attempt to halt communication.

The mobs seized two policemen and burned them alive.

Seven persons burned themselves to death in protest suicides.

The riots then spread to Mysore and Kerala states where students attacked trains and post offices and stoned Hindi teachers.

For mild - mannered Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri the language riots were just one of many burdens but they threatened to have widespread repercussions.

The rioting put new strains on the ruling Congress party, already bursting at the seams as result of the loss of former Prime Minister Nehru.

In Kerala state elections are scheduled for next month, and the Communists who made political profit out of the food riots of last November seem likely to make further gains out of the language riots.

Kerala is the only Indian state where the Communists ever have hel power. They were in office from 1957 to 1959.

It is a tragedy of India that Nehru left it with a heritage of 17 years of democracy but failed to solve any of its other major problems.

The greatest of these is a faltering economy unable to feed India's exploding population. Hand in hand are inflation and mounting unemployment.

With all of these facing him, Shastri seemed ready to compromise on the language issue.

New Way to Be Suddenly Slim, Comfortable, Too

Colorado Springs: — Are you a woman whose figure is on the good side but might look perfect? You'll be thrilled by the new easy way science has discovered for you to become Suddenly Slim and yet completely comfortable. If you're more than 15 pounds overweight, then this idea is not for you. If your weight falls within this range, then you can realize a new, smoother figure today, without diet or exercise.

Suddenly Slim is an all-new kind of 4-oz. girdle constructed of science fibers. One startling innovation is the sheer nylon front panel. This is permanently stiffened by a science process and cannot give or sag. It's surrounded by a slimming action border. A featherstitched panel down each side of this girdle will contour your hips if they are a problem.

The girdle itself is of a "wonder" Lycra® spandex blend. It's a new power net consisting of nylon, acetate and spandex. It is so comfortable, but has such slimming strength, it gives your figure everything that's possible with a foundation.

"Suddenly Slim," in both girdle and panty versions, is the peak achievement of the California designer - genius, Olga. They are available in our area at Neusteters, Foundation department, Dial 634-2881. adv.

'Y' Member Drive Goes Over Goal

The 1965 YMCA Membership Round-up went over the top at the final report meeting Tuesday night with a total of 368 members with a value of $10,700 on a goal of $10,000.

Big Boss of the Round-up which was set up on a western theme was S. Cassell Barrett with Dr. Robert E. Zimmer serving as the straw boss. Dr. Harold Will served as boss of the South Park Outfit while Jack Waymire was boss of the San Luis Outfit.

This is the second year the WMCA has held the Round-Up in February instead of the traditional November dates during which it was held in former years. Barrett pointed out that although the round-up was successful there are still many memberships due for renewal at this time.

He urged all round-up workers to wind up their calls as quickly as possible and turn them in to the membership office at the 'Y' so that a final count can be made. He also announced there will be a final clean-up meeting at 7:30 a.m. on Thursday at the YMCA.

All foremen, ranch bosses, wranglers and other top round-up leaders are asked to attend this meeting.

"Other round-up workers are invited to attend if they can and bring in any final reports that may have at this time. The breakfast will be sponsored by the State Farm Mutual Insurance agent here, E. L. LaFollette.

Sponsors of the dinners during the round - up were Sears Roebuck and Company, Sno White Laundry and Cleanrers, Waymire Clothing Company, Coutures French Cleaners and Laundry, Whitney Electric Company, Paint Supply and Glass Company, Bill Marshall, Edgar P. Gregory, Industrial Chemical Laboratories, Robert W. Hendee, and the Exchange National Bank.

Prizes for some of the individual high producers were donated by Flaks of Colorado Springs, and the Norton Office Supply Company.

At the close of the Tuesday night report meeting Judge David Enoch, president of the YMCA board of directors, expressed the appreciation of the board members to all the people who helped make the round-up successful.

Arms Control Agency Approved by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved a three-year, $40-million authorization for the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

The roll call vote was 302 to 63 Wednesday on a compromise suggested by Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., between the administration's four-year, $55 million plan and a Republican proposal for a two-year limit.

Republicans said they were not opposing the disarmament agency but only proposing that Congress take a look at it every two years.

VICE REPAIRED

POST, Tex. (AP) — It's surprising what a difference a few letters can make. Public utility company officials thought so, too. They sent for the repairman quickly when some of the letters faded from the large electric sign on their building. According to the sign, their "Public Service" was reduced to "Public Vice."

Arms Control Agency Approved by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved a three-year, $40-million authorization for the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

The roll call vote was 302 to 63 Wednesday on a compromise suggested by Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., between the administration's four-year, $55 million plan and a Republican proposal for a two-year limit.

Republicans said they were not opposing the disarmament agency but only preposing that Congress take a look at it every two years.

VICE REPAIRED

POST, Tex. (AP) — It's surprising what a difference a few letters can make Public utility company officials thought so, too. They sent for the repairman quickly when some of the letters faded from the large electric sign on their building. According to the sign, their "Public Service" was reduced to "Public Vice."

Love, Hoth Urge Attendance at Security Seminar

Colorado Governor John A. Love and Mayor Harry Hoth urge all citizens to take advantage of the two-week National Security Seminar, beginning Monday 11 a.m., in the Colorado Springs City Auditorium.

In a joint statement, the State and City leaders maintain there is no better way for interested citizens to acquire a fund of knowledge on the essential factors affecting the security of this nation, this state, this city, and its people.

"The Seminar will factually point out national and international problems associated with national security. Specifically, the Seminar will provide the general public with a stronger appreciation of the inseparable nature of the civilian - military team, and give a clear recognition of the limitations and capabilities of both halves of this team," say Love and Hoth.

In a joint proclamation., the government officials emphasized the importance of the Security Seminar by stating, "The Security of our nation is dependent upon its ability to shift quickly and efficiently from a civilian economy to a war status, and if necessary, at the same time be prepared for sudden and devastating attack. We call upon all of our citizens to take full advantage of the Seminar as a means of developing effective civilian - military teamwork in the defense of our country against all who seek to destroy it."

Gov. Love and Mayor Hoth will be special guest speakers during the Seminar's opening session.

The Seminar is open to all interested citizens in industry, labor, business, agriculture, the professions, religion and education, as well as, active duty, reserve, and retired personnel.

Registrations will be accepted through Friday afternoon at the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce. Beginning 7 a.m. Monday, a registration desk will be located in the main lobby of the City Auditorium.

Some 33 illustrated topics and 17 related films of hard facts will give detailed accounts of the world's situation today. many of these lectures will pinpoint Communist aggression. business, agriculture, education, religion, labor, nations at war Soviet Union, Red China, and a review of this nation's foreign assistance programs.

Public Wants To Know Where You Came From

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK (NEA) — One of the things about going anywhere, we have found, is that you must always be telling people the name of the place you come from.

Nobody ever seems to care what you did there, or what you intend to do here, or where you expect to go later and what you plan to do there. So if you want to get along, it seems to us, the wisest plan is to find out the best places and then try to come from one of them.

We have no idea why this plan works so well. But it does indeed work. And we mention it because President Johnson is presently trying to get Congress to revise the U.S. Immigration Act, taking it off the basis of where people come from and putting it on the basis of what people can do for this country if admitted.

To our way of thinking, it is a pretty good idea. But it also appears to defy public sentiment. And as Mr. Johnson has never done that before, we have the distinct feeling that public sentiment will have to change. And pretty quick, too, because Mr. Johnson has a very busy week coming up.

("The scene is the Gibson & Vulpine advertising agency. As the gorge rises, Fred Vulpine is seated at his desk, deep in a brown study with white wainscoating, when Charley Gibson enters triumphantly.")

Gibson—Well Fred, I think we've got the account.

Vulpine—But Charley, what do we know about merchandising immigrants?

Gibson—Easiest thing in the world. No brand names. No interstate regulations. Nothing but a straight image job. Billboards. Car cards. A barrage of 30-second television spots. All we need is an earthy gimmick.

Vulpine—Earthy gimmick?...

Gibson—You know, something that stands for the courage and indomitable spirit that made this country what it is. Maybe a head shot of the Statue of Liberty with some words coming out of her mouth.

Vulpine—(Thinking) How about, "Give me your huddled masses yearning to breathe free."?

Gibson—Come on Fred. Be serious. What kind of an image is that for an immigrant? We're selling the kind of people who made this country great.

Gibson—Of course they do. We used it on that anti-histamine account for two years. Besides, this is a foreign product we're dealing with. You can't sell it on just the basis of utility. Maybe we ought to give it the same campaign we used on the "Dachau."

Vulpine — (Thinking) How about, "It's in to be out."

Gibson—(Trying it on for size) It's in to be out. Say, that's pretty good. Order some art work while I run it up Pennsylvania Avenue and see if it catches cold. If they don't like it in Washington, we can always pitch it in Phoenix.

Dominican Police Chief Is 'Retired'

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The ruling civilian triumvirate has retired Brig. Gen. Belisario Guerrero Peguero, former chief of the National Police force and target of an armed forces plot last month.

Guerrero was named under secretary of police on Jan. 18 in a move to prevent fighting among the armed forces. The new post had been created for Guerrero.

Military officials were reported at the time to have accused Guerrero of dictatorial powers.

The government Wednesday night also announced appointment of Col. Marcos Anibal Rivera Cuesta as chief of the general staff of the army.

Surgery Scheduled For Scott Carpenter

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Surgery is scheduled today in Houston for astronaut M. Scott Carpenter to remove a bone spur from his left wrist.

The Navy commander suffered multiple fractures of the arm in a motor bike accident last summer. A doctor said he broke the same wrist while a schoolboy in Boulder, Colo., and that it had not healed properly.

Vulpine—(Thinking) How about, "Give me your huddled masses yearning to breathe free."?

Gibson—Come on Fred. Be serious. What kind of an image is that for an immigrant? We're selling the kind of people who made this country great.

Gibson—Of course they do. We used it on that anti-histamine account for two years. Besides, this is a foreign product we're dealing with. You can't sell it on just the basis of utility. Maybe we ought to give it the same campaign we used on the "Dachau."

Vulpine — (Thinking) How about, "It's in to be out."

Gibson—(Trying it on for size) It's in to be out. Say, that's pretty good. Order some art work while I run it up Pennsylvania Avenue and see if it catches cold. If they don't like it in Washington, we can always pitch it in Phoenix.

Dominican Police Chief Is 'Retired'

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The ruling civilian triumvirate has retired Brig. Gen. Belisario Guerrero Peguero, former chief of the National Police force and target of an armed forces plot last month.

Guerrero was named under secretary of police on Jan. 18 in a move to prevent fighting among the armed forces. The new post had been created for Guerrero.

Military officials were reported at the time to have accused Guerrero of dictatorial powers.

The government Wednesday night also announced appointment of Col. Marcos Anibal Rivera Cuesta as chief of the general staff of the army.

Famed Aviatrix Is Killed as Plane Crashes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first woman to fly the equatorial route around the world is believed to have piloted a small plane that crashed in the San Gabriel Mountains Wednesday, killing the two women aboard.

Although the coroner's office declined official identification until her husband views the badly burned bodies, the husband said he had no doubt his wife, Joan Merriam Smith, 28, is dead.

Authorities believe the other woman was Trixie Ann Schubert, 42, of Los Angeles, who was writing Joan's life story.

Sheriff's deputies and federal authorities reported that the women took off toward the area of the crash from nearby Long Beach.

"I don't have any doubt (that Joan died), because the plane never came back," Lt. Cmdr. Marvin (Jack) Smith Jr., her husband since 1960, said Wednesday night. "But I won't go down there (to the coroner's office) until tomorrow."

Smith, commanding officer of the minesweeper USS Endurance, said he was aboard his vessel in Long Beach Harbor at the time of the crash.

Joan and Jerrie Mock of Columbus, Ohio, caught the world's imagination last year with their race to become the first woman to circle the globe.

Mrs. Mock finished her 'round-the-world trip before Joan, but Joan claimed victory because she flew the so-called Amelia Earhart or equatorial route, which was 4,000 miles farther.

Her 27,750-mile flight took 23 days of flying time. She was delayed 33 days by weather, mechanical trouble and even a revolution in Brazil. She made 34 stops and crossed the equator five times.

Joan just recently walked away from a crash landing in the California desert. That crash destroyed the light plane she used on her epic flight, a twin-engine Piper Apache. Wednesday she was flying a 182 Cessna.

"After all those years and all those thousands of hours, why didi it have to happen like this," said her mother, Ann Merriam, of Miami, Fla.

Mrs. Schubert also was a veteran pilot. She flew in two powder puff derbys — transcontinental air races for women — in 1958 and 1964.

She was married to Dr. Delwyn G. Schubert, a college professor. They had three children.

The world's 10 most populous nations today are China, India, U.S.S.R., United States, Indonesia, Pakistan, Japan, Brazil, West Germany and the United Kingdom.

Robert H. Warren in addition to the plaque. (Air Force Photo)

Pentagon Doubles Monthly Draft Quota

WASHINGTON (AP) —Lagging enlistments forced the Pentagon Wednesday to nearly double its monthly draft quota for April to 13,700 men compared with 7,900 for March.

A Defense Department announcement said the April draft total is needed "to replace enlisted losses not compensated for by enlistments and re-enlistments so as to maintain approved active Army strength."

Some officials said the number of voluntary enlistments fense Department has been conducting a study looking toward possible elimination of the draft.

All of the April draftees will go to the Army. As usual, the Navy, Marines and Air Force may have been cut as a result of the realization that the De- will be able to meet manpower needs without drawing on the draft.

Tail Light Proposed For Police Horses

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Wanted: A tail light for horses that doesn't make the animal nervous and won't irritate his rump.

That's the problem facing San Francisco's mounted police today as the result of the discovery that state law requires such lights on any caravan. Since the mounted detail often travels in a group, police figure their horses qualify.

The area on a horse where you need them is an odd place to put lights," said Sgt. Joe Galik, in charge of the detail, who noted that the animals have thus far thwarted all attempts.

"The next thing you know, we'll need directional signals," he sighed.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Chances are that Mr. and Mrs. Park Smilie have to repeat the selves more than most people when questioned about their address. The Smilies live on Smiley Street.

Deaths

CINCINNATI, Ind. (AP) — Dr. Louis G. Hermann, 64, an internationally known surgeon, died Wednesday.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Charles L. Holt, 59, advertising sales manager of the St. Louis office of Time magazine since 1946, died Wednesday of cancer. He was born in North Carolina.

NEW ORLEANS, La., (AP) — Larry Gilbert, 73, one of baseball's greatest minor league managers, died Wednesday. In a 25-year period Gilbert's teams at New Orleans and Nashville won nine pennants.

Russian Violinist Runs Into Protest

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet violinist David Oistrakh is running into a protest by the West Berlin government because of his planned concert next month.

A spokesman for the city administration said Wednesday it opposes concerts in West Berlin by Soviet artists whose appearances are not covered by a West German-Soviet cultural agreement.

As a result, the city government is hoping plans will be dropped for Oistrakh's concert March 9-13.

A simple safety play in the trump suit would have effected a substantial saving for South, the declarer at six spades.

West opened the queen of clubs and South played the ace. The dummy was entered with the ace of diamonds and the top hearts were cashed, on which declarer disposed of his remaining clubs.

A spade was led next and, when East followed, South finessed the queen. West showed out. A diamond was led to North's queen; however, East administered a rude jolt to declarer's hopes by ruffing with the eight of spades and then exiting with a club.

Although South was now void of clubs in both hands, the ruff and sluff provided little comfort. If he trumped in the dummy, it would use up North's last spade, and if he ruffed in his own hand—there was no way to reenter the dummy. In either case, he could not pick up the king of spades, and the outcome was a one trick setback.

Declarer's timing was faulty. Inasmuch as he is solid outside of the trump suit, he can afford to make a safety play in spades to protect himself against an adverse break in that suit. If West has all four missing trumps, then declarer is doomed from the outset. If the spades are stacked in the East hand, however, South can take safety measures to hold his losses to a single trick.

It is suggested that South cash the ace of spades at trick two. When the bad news is revealed, declarer proceeds as follows: A diamond is led to the ace and the top hearts are cashed so that South can get rid of his losing clubs. Now a spade is led and, if East ducks, declarer is in position to cover the eight with his nine. The queen - jack now provides assurance that East will take no more than one spade trick.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

He's Too Calm!

DEAR ABBY: We have three sons, 13, 12 and 10. I am worried about our eldest boy. He is about the same size as his 12-year-old brother. In fact, they are often taken for twins. The two younger boys gang up on the older one, who just stands there and lets them beat him up. He doesn't cry, or hit back or even ask for help. This doesn't seem normal to me. I know all brothers fight sometimes, but this is no fight. He won't even try to defend himself. He is a good student and a very quiet, obedient boy. Could something be wrong with him? I can't figure it out. —MICHIGAN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't try to "figure it out." Ask your family doctor (or pediatrician) to recommend someone who specializes in child behavior problems, and take the boy there. Something IS wrong with a boy who will not defend himself, or retaliate when attacked. P.S. And while you are about it, find out what is making unprovoked aggressors out of the other two boys.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is divorced, has two small children and receives no help from her former husband. (He has remarried and left the state.) I have been taking care of her children days while she works. She makes very good money, but I have a small pension and don't take anything for helping her. My daughter is very quarrelsome. She curses me and the children and treats me like a hired hand. She has been getting me so nervous and upset lately that I can't eat or sleep right, and my health is beginning to fail.

I have had a proposal of marriage from a very nice man I've been going with for two years, but he wants me to promise him that after we are married I will not take the responsibility of caring for my grandchildren any more. He says that is the only way we can be happy. I care a lot for this man, Abby, and want to marry him. But is it fair of him to make me choose between him and my own flesh and blood? —HARD TO DECIDE

DEAR HARD: Marry the man. If your daughter had to face the responsibility of rearing her own children, she would find a way. You have earned happiness. Help yourself.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the Pennsylvania minister prompts this. If he knows that those who go to heaven don't need prayers, and those who go to hell don't receive them, then he knows a lot more about inter - personality communication than most mortals. I assume that his routine funeral service would go something like this, "Well, what the heck, the guy is dead and can't hear us anyway, so lets all go home!" —Sincerely, A PASADENA SURGEON

CONFIDENTIAL TO "'Frankly Confused'": The commandment, "Thou shalt not commit adultery," applies to all. The double standard exists only in the minds of those who wish to rationalize their wrongdoing.

Troubled? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

'Who is Mr. Cornflake?" asked the puzzled parents.

HIS YEAR FOR AWARDS

NEW YORK (AP) — Just before Clarence (Gus) Benedict, president of the USGA, introduced National Open Champion Ken Venturi at the Metropolitan Golf Writers' Association dinner he said:

"Venturi has won more awards than anybody ever did in one short year.

Venturi received the most improved golfer award and the MGWA gold tee award for the comeback of the year.

"The way I played in the Los Angeles Open," replied Venturi, "I have a chance to win that comeback award again."

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 Hrt.	Pass	1 Spd.
Pass	2 Dia.	Pass	3 Spds.
Pass	4 Spds.	Pass	6 Spds.
Pass	Pass	Pass

A simple safety play in the trump suit would have effected a substantial saving for South, the declarer at six spades.

West opened the queen of clubs and South played the ace. The dummy was entered with the ace of diamonds and the top hearts were cashed, on which declarer disposed of his remaining clubs.

A spade was led next and, when East followed, South finessed the queen. West showed out. A diamond was led to North's queen; however, East administered a rude jolt to declarer's hopes by ruffing with the eight of spades and then exiting with a club.

Although South was now void of clubs in both hands, the ruff and sluff provided little comfort. If he trumped in the dummy, it would use up North's last spade, and if he ruffed in his own hand—there was no way to reenter the dummy. In either case, he could not pick up the king of spades, and the outcome was a one trick setback.

Declarer's timing was faulty. Inasmuch as he is solid outside of the trump suit, he can afford to make a safety play in spades to protect himself against an adverse break in that suit. If West has all four missing trumps, then declarer is doomed from the outset. If the spades are stacked in the East hand, however, South can take safety measures to hold his losses to a single trick.

It is suggested that South cash the ace of spades at trick two. When the bad news is revealed, declarer proceeds as follows: A diamond is led to the ace and the top hearts are cashed so that South can get rid of his losing clubs. Now a spade is led and, if East ducks, declarer is in position to cover the eight with his nine. The queen - jack now provides assurance that East will take no more than one spade trick.

Dear Abby--

He's Too Calm!

DEAR ABBY: We have three sons, 13, 12 and 10. I am worried about our eldest boy. He is about the same size as his 12-year-old brother. In fact, they are often taken for twins. The two younger boys gang up on the older one, who just stands there and lets them beat him up. He doesn't cry, or hit back or even ask for help. This doesn't seem normal to me. I know all brothers fight sometimes, but this is no fight. He won't even try to defend himself. He is a good student and a very quiet, obedient boy. Could something be wrong with him? I can't figure it out. —MICHIGAN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't try to "figure it out."Ask your family doctor (or pediatrician) to recommend someone who specializes in child behavior problems, and take the boy there. Something IS wrong with a boy who will not defend himself, or retaliate when attacked. P.S. And while you are about it, find out what is making unprovoked aggressors out of the other two boys.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is divorced, has two small children and receives no help from her former husband. (He has remarried and left the state.) I have been taking care of her children days while she works. She makes very good money, but I have a small pension and don't take anything for helping her. My daughter is very quarrelsome. She curses me and the children and treats me like a hired hand. She has been getting me so nervous and upset lately that I can't eat or sleep right, and my health is beginning to fail.

I have had a proposal of marriage from a very nice man I've been going with for two years, but he wants me to promise him that after we are married I will not take the responsibility of caring for my grandchildren any more. He says that is the only way we can be happy. I care a lot for this man, Abby, and want to marry him. But is it fair of him to make me choose between him and my own flesh and blood? —HARD TO DECIDE

DEAR HARD: Marry the man. If your daughter had to face the responsibility of rearing her own children, she would find a way. You have earned happiness. Help yourself.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the Pennsylvania minister prompts this. If he knows that those who go to heaven don't need prayers, and those who go to hell don't receive them, then he knows a lot more about inter - personality communication than most mortals. I assume that his routine funeral service would go something like this, "Well, what the heck, the guy is dead and can't hear us anyway, so lets all go home!" —Sincerely, A PASADENA SURGEON

CONFIDENTIAL TO " 'Frankly Confused' ": The commandment, "Thou shalt not commit adultery," applies to all. The double standard exists only in the minds of those who wish to rationalize their wrongdoing.

CRISPY SUPERINTENDENT

WEST ALLIS, Wisc. (AP) — First-grader Phyllis Birkholz informed her parents that Mr. Cornflake had written her class a letter on playground safety, which her teacher had read to them in school that day.

'Who is Mr. Cornflake?" asked the puzzled parents.

Brando, Ex-Wife Disagree in Court Testimony

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Marlon Brando and his ex-wife, Anna Kashfi, give different accounts of what happened the time she came into his house and — she says — found him in bed with a woman.

In Wednesday's session of the Superior Court hearing in which they are fighting for custody of their son, Christian Devi, 6, Brando gave this account of the incident:

'I guess it was 1961 or 1962 (their divorce was final in 1960) when all of a sudden I was awakened by the person I was with. Then I saw Anna.

"She had broken into my house and jumped on the bed and started pulling the girl's hair out.

"The girl, terrified, beat it. Then Anna started wrecking the house.

"I let her do it. I thought it would be good to let her get it out of her system.

'Then Anna heard the taxi drive up which the girl had called and Anna ran down to try and catch the girl.

"I followed along, with Anna biting me, hitting me, scratching me and swearing at me.

"Finally I said: 'Anna, this is enough. Go home.'

"She refused, so I took her and turned her over and spanked her as hard as I could.

"I put her in her car and hid behind a wall as she drove off. I went back to the house and locked all the doors.

"It wasn't long until she came back again and threw a log through the window and started wrecking the house all over again.

"This time I called police and let them take her home."

Brando gave his testimony under direct examination by his attorney. The actor spoke in the monotone familiar to millions of movie fans. He did not further identify the bed partner.

Then she took the stand and gave this account:

"I came up to Marlon's house, found the door open, went up to the bedroom and found a girl in bed nude with Mr. Brando.

"They both jumped me. Furniture started flying. I'm not strong enough to fight two people, so I ran.

"Marlon caught up with me outside the house and pounded my head on the pavement."

Miss Kashfi's attorney, Herbert Pearlson, asked Brando on cross-examination if he was in the habit of having ladies in his home for sexual purposes.

Replied Brando: '"I have ladies in my home for many purposes, including sexual, but I would not like to give the impression that people are invited to my home primarily for sexual reasons."

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advance picked up steam early this afternoon, with sharp gains by some airlines and rails. Trading was fairly active.

The list was ahead only a little most of the morning but began to make strides of some sections of the list around midday.

Gains ran from fractions to well over a point among the favored issues.

IBM rebounded vigorously from recent losses on reports of stiffer competition from foreign computers and ran up 9 points or so.

Steels and motors were about unchanged and cehmicals were mixed but aerospace defense issues continued to move higher because of the Viet Nam situation.

Xerox gained 3, Sears, Roebuck and Merck more than a point each.

Prices were higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

CHICAGO (AP) — Worries over a dock strike possibly lingering into the future beset dealers at the Chicago Board of Trade today and soybean prices went down.

There was firmness in corn, but otherwise most of the session's trade was done at softer prices.

Carlot receipts were estimated at wheat 2 cars, corn 133, oats 6, rye none, barley 8, soybeans 13.

Brando, Ex-Wife Disagree in Court Testimony

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Marlon Brando and his ex-wife, Anna Kashfi, give different accounts of what happened the time she came into his house and — she says — found him in bed with a woman.

In Wednesday's session of the Superior Court hearing in which they are fighting for custody of their son, Christian Devi, 6, Brando gave this account of the incident:

'I guess it was 1961 or 1962 (their divorce was final in 1960) when all of a sudden I was awakened by the person I was with. Then I saw Anna.

"She had broken into my house and jumped on the bed and started pulling the girl's hair out.

"The girl, terrified, beat it. Then Anna started wrecking the house.

"I let her do it. I thought it would be good to let her get it out of her system.

'Then Anna heard the taxi drive up which the girl had called and Anna ran down to try and catch the girl.

"I followed along, with Anna biting me, hitting me, scratching me and swearing at me.

"Finally I said: 'Anna, this is enough. Go home.'

"She refused, so I took her and turned her over and spanked her as hard as I could.

"I put her in her car and hid behind a wall as she drove off. I went back to the house and locked all the doors.

"It wasn't long until she came back again and threw a log through the window and started wrecking the house all over again.

"This time I called police and let them take her home."

Brando gave his testimony under direct examination by his attorney. The actor spoke in the monotone familiar to millions of movie fans. He did not further identify the bed partner.

Then she took the stand and gave this account:

"I came up to Marlon's house, found the door open, went up to the bedroom and found a girl in bed nude with Mr. Brando.

"They both jumped me. Furniture started flying. I'm not strong enough to fight two people, so I ran.

"Marlon caught up with me outside the house and pounded my head on the pavement."

Miss Kashfi's attorney, Herbert Pearlson, asked Brando on cross-examination if he was in the habit of having ladies in his home for sexual purposes.

Replied Brando: "'I have ladies in my home for many purposes, including sexual, but I would not like to give the impression that people are invited to my home primarily for sexual reasons."

Burial Firms Asked to Set Up Stringent Code

Funeral and burial firms in the Rocky Mountain area are being asked this week to adopt a stringent ethics and fair practice code developed by the Better Business Bureau in Denver.

Believed to be the first of its kind in the nation, the Code is primarily aimed at the "pay now—die later" pre-arranged funeral plans being increasingly promoted in this area as well as other parts of the country. The promotions attracted the attention of several congressional investigating committees during the last session of Congress.

The Colorado State Legislature appointed a special "funeral problems committee" which held public hearings throughout the summer months. The commitee has proposed stringent regulations to correct a previously adopted law which State officials say is "unworkable", and to protect an investment of more than $12 million by an estimated 19,000 Colorado families who have signed contracts to pay for their funerals in ful before they have use for them.

Not only are officials and funeral industry leaders concerned about the security of the large sums of money being deposited and the promises of performance years hence, but a relatively new innovation, the sale of caskets on a pre-need "lay away" play, has created problems in public protection.

The BBB Code, already adopted by the major established firms who do 80 per cent of the pre-need business in the Denver area, is intended to establish "ground rules" to prevent public deception, to protect the security of funds and give plan purchasers an advance idea of what to expect, and what to avoid. Under its provisions, the purchaser of a pre-need play may terminate or rescind the contract within fifteen days after purchase.

Each of the Code provisions is aimed at a specific practice which has been subject of public complaint to the BBB, or has created adverse criticism as to ethical practice.

Complaints which cannot be resolved by mutual agreement between buyer and seller may be arbitrated by an impartial committee. The firm must abide by the committee's decision or face expulsion from BBB membership.

W. Dan Bell, President and general manager of the Bureau, said that the Code was developed by a special committee of the Board of Directors, and was re-drafted seven times before it was accepted as a practical set of guide-lines.

He said that it will be widely distributed to churches, members of Congress and the State Legislature and other interested persons in an effort to redefine the image of responsibility and performance of the funeral industry.

"The considerable publicity resulting from the Mitford book, the congressional and state inquiries and the public questioning of practices of a minority of the industry, have adversely reflected on all funeral and burial firms," Bell said. "This Code of Ethics not only provides guide-lines by which the public may protect itself, but also gives the industry an opportunity to reinforce public confidence through self-regulation."

Bell said that any one can obtain a copy of the code and list of subscribing firms by writing to the Better Business Bureau, 1230 California Street, Denver, Colorado.

Peanut Butter Battle Rages In Washington

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — In everything from halting prose to lyric poetry, peanut butter lovers are telling the government what they hope to find when they pry the lid off the jar.

One goober gourmet, stirred by memories of what the delicacy used to taste like in his childhood, sent the following to George P. Larrick, commissioner of food and rugs:

"I think it's time you will agree,

For people of the whole country

To speak as one (no stammer or stutter)

To demand some peanuts in our peanut butter.

"Too long we've endured homogenization,

And the tasteless goo of dehydration.

Give us the kind with the oil on top,

On the other hand, an Arizona boy who evidently likes his the modern way, creamy and smooth with plenty of additives to give it zing and zest, implored the government as follows: "I am 11 years old and I love peanut butter very much. I would be happy if the government kept its peanut-picking hands out of the jar."

The occasion for this symposium about the toothsome spread is a four-year-old effort by the government to set standards for peanut butter. Its current proposal is that peanuts make up at lease 90 per cent of the total weight.

Manufacturers generally object to this, and also to a proposed ban on certain liquid sweeteners, and some non-peanut oils.

More than 1,000 letters from the general public have come in to the Food and Drug Administration.

A canadian doctor, writing from St. Petersburg, Fla., said: "I have spent 10 winters here and always bring down a winter's supply from Canada. It is ground up nuts and salt. Not a fancy mess of nuts and chemicals that tastes like anything but peanuts."

But a North Carolina woman plumped for "the peanut butter status quo."

"I would like the right to choose my own blend as I do now," she said.

A record 140 million Americans, or 78 per cent of the U.S. civilian population, are protected by some form of health insurance, the Health Insurance Institute estimates.

Small Business Firms Can Get Tax Break

Stockholders - owners of some small business corporations can elect to pay individual rather than corporate income tax on company income, says Commerce Clearing House, national reporting authority on tax and business law.

Election to have the corporate income taxed directly to the stockholders is open to corporations which can save paying the corporate tax by qualifying for "tax option" status.

To make such an election, such firms must not have more than one class of stock nor more than ten shareholders, all of whom are either individuals or an estate, and none of whom is a nonresident alien, CCH said.

In order for this type of tax treatment to be valid, all the shareholders in a "tax option" corporation must make the election. Further, if more than 20 per cent of the corporation's gross receipts for any taxable year is derived from rents, royalties, dividends, interest, annuities and gains from sales or exchanges of stock or securities, the election cannot be made.

Where shareholders elect "tax option" treatment, they include in their own income for tax purposes the current taxable income of the corporation, both that income which is disbributed and that which is not distributed.

Generally, this income is treated as ordinary income to the shareholder without retention of any special characteristics it might have had in the hands of the corporation.

However, in the case of long-term capital gains, the special characteristics carry over to the shareholder level. A 1964 Congressional amendments lets a tax option corporation, which sells certain types of assets and distributes the proceeds within 2½ months after the close of its taxable year, elect to treat the distribution as having been made in the taxable year.

And, if a shareholder has been taxed on corporate earnings which were not at that time distributed, and the corporation in a later year distributes these earnings to the same shareholder, he is not required to pay any additional tax on the earnings, CCH said.

The undistributed taxable income is taxable to the shareholder in the taxable year which coincides with the end of the corporation's taxable year. Distributions which are taxable to the shareholder are taxable to him in the year received.

If a corporation has a net operating loss during a year for which a "tax option" election is in effect, a shareholder can deduct on his individual return his proportionate share of the loss. Also, a deceased shareholder will be allowed this deduction even though he dies before the end of the corporation's taxable year, according to the IRS Code provisions.

Where "tax option" treatment has been elected, the basis of a shareholder's stock is increased for any of the corporate earnings taxed to him which are not then distributed, although this basis is later reduced if the tax - paid corporate earnings are distributed.

The basis of the stock of a shareholder is also reduced for any corporate losses passed through to him. But the losses he may take are limited to the basis he has for the stock, plus the basis of any debt of the corporation to the shareholder, the CCH report said.

Stock Owner Takes on New Responsibilities

By MORTON YARMON
Distributed by
NEA Special Services

Once you buy shares of stock — whether only a few or a large number — don't feel your responsibilities to yourself are at an end, any more than you would ignore the fate of a business if you become a partner in it.

Even if your intention is to hold on to these shares of stock as a long-term investment, you should watch what is happening to the company in question. For it is always possible that the factors that made you consider its shares as this long-range investment may change, forcing you to want to sell them without delay. No company is so secure in this fast-changing world that its fortunes can't suddenly turn round and take a swift dip. You need only examine a list of companies that were making huge profits a few years ago to realize how true this is.

Here is a brief summary of some of the things you should do after you have become a stockholder:

—Follow the news of business and of the securities markets. Newspapers are your best source of such news, along with specialized financial publications and financial reporting services.

—Read all reports, particularly the annual reports, of the corporations in which you own shares.

—Evaluate the dividend news about your own securities and those of other companies similarly situated.

—Exercise your rights, such as those permitting you to buy more stock, for they have considerable value to you.

—Hold periodic discussions with your broker and banker where you review your holdings.

—Analyze these holdings early in December of each year, to see how you can benefit from switches that will affect your tax situation.

—Attend stockholder meetings, or at least keep yourself informed about what happens at such meetings. If you don't attend, learn about the proxies so that you can sign or refuse to sign them intelligently and as the situation seems to warrant.

Burial Firms Asked to Set Up Stringent Code

Funeral and burial firms in the Rocky Mountain area are being asked this week to adopt a stringent ethics and fair practice code developed by the Better Business Bureau in Denver.

Believed to be the first of its kind in the nation, the Code is primarily aimed at the "pay now—die later" pre-arranged funeral plans being increasingly promoted in this area as well as other parts of the country. The promotions attracted the attention of several congressional investigating committees during the last session of Congress.

The Colorado State Legislature appointed a special "funeral problems committee" which held public hearings throughout the summer months. The commitee has proposed stringent regulations to correct a previously adopted law which State officials say is "unworkable", and to protect an investment of more than $12 million by an estimated 19,000 Colorado families who have signed contracts to pay for their funerals in ful before they have use for them.

Not only are officials and funeral industry leaders concerned about the security of the large sums of money being deposited and the promises of performance years hence, but a relatively new innovation, the sale of caskets on a pre-need "lay away" play, has created problems in public protection.

The BBB Code, already adopted by the major established firms who do 80 per cent of the pre-need business in the Denver area, is intended to establish "ground rules" to prevent public deception, to protect the security of funds and give plan purchasers an advance idea of what to expect, and what to avoid. Under its provisions, the purchaser of a pre-need play may terminate or rescind the contract within fifteen days after purchase.

Each of the Code provisions is aimed at a specific practice which has been subject of public complaint to the BBB, or has created adverse criticism as to ethical practice.

Complaints which cannot be resolved by mutual agreement between buyer and seller may be arbitrated by an impartial committee. The firm must abide by the committee's decision or face expulsion from BBB membership.

W. Dan Bell, President and general manager of the Bureau, said that the Code was developed by a special committee of the Board of Directors, and was re-drafted seven times before it was accepted as a practical set of guide-lines.

He said that it will be widely distributed to churches, members of Congress and the State Legislature and other interested persons in an effort to redefine the image of responsibility and performance of the funeral industry.

"The considerable publicity resulting from the Mitford book, the congressional and state inquiries and the public questioning of practices of a minority of the industry, have adversely reflected on all funeral and burial firms," Bell said. "This Code of Ethics not only provides guide-lines by which the public may protect itself, but also gives the industry an opportunity to reinforce public confidence through self-regulation."

Bell said that any one can obtain a copy of the code and list of subscribing firms by writing to the Better Business Bureau, 1230 California Street, Denver, Colorado.

Peanut Butter Battle Rages In Washington

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — In everything from halting prose to lyric poetry, peanut butter lovers are telling the government what they hope to find when they pry the lid off the jar.

One goober gourmet, stirred by memories of what the delicacy used to taste like in his childhood, sent the following to George P. Larrick, commissioner of food and rugs:

"I think it's time you will agree,

For people of the whole countree

To speak as one (no stammer or stutter)

To demand some peanuts in our peanut butter.

"Too long we've endured homogenization,

And the tasteless goo of dehydration.

Give us the kind with the oil on top,

On the other hand, an Arizona boy who evidently likes his the modern way, creamy and smooth with plenty of additives to give it zing and zest, implored the government as follows: "I am 11 years old and I love peanut butter very much. I would be happy if the government kept its peanut-picking hands out of the jar."

The occasion for this symposium about the toothsome spread is a four-year-old effort by the government to set standards for peanut butter. Its current proposal is that peanuts make up at lease 90 per cent of the total weight.

Manufacturers generally object to this, and also to a proposed ban on certain liquid sweeteners, and some non-peanut oils.

More than 1,000 letters from the general public have come in to the Food and Drug Administration.

A canadian doctor, writing from St. Petersburg, Fla., said: "I have spent 10 winters here and always bring down a winter's supply from Canada. It is ground up nuts and salt. Not a fancy mess of nuts and chemicals that tastes like anything but peanuts."

But a North Carolina woman plumped for "the peanut butter status quo."

"I would like the right to choose my own blend as I do now," she said.

A record 140 million Americans, or 78 per cent of the U.S. civilian population, are protected by some form of health insurance, the Health Insurance Institute estimates.

Small Business Firms Can Get Tax Break

Stockholders - owners of some small business corporations can elect to pay individual rather than corporate income tax on company income, says Commerce Clearing House, national reporting authority on tax and business law.

Election to have the corporate income taxed directly to the stockholders is open to corporations which can save paying the corporate tax by qualifying for "tax option" status.

To make such an election, such firms must not have more than one class of stock nor more than ten shareholders, all of whom are either individuals or an estate, and none of whom is a nonresident alien, CCH said.

In order for this type of tax treatment to be valid, all the shareholders in a "tax option" corporation must make the election. Further, if more than 20 per cent of the corporation's gross receipts for any taxable year is derived from rents, royalties, dividends, interest, annuities and gains from sales or exchanges of stock or securities, the election cannot be made.

Where shareholders elect "tax option" treatment, they include in their own income for tax purposes the current taxable income of the corporation, both that income which is disbributed and that which is not distributed.

Generally, this income is treated as ordinary income to the shareholder without retention of any special characteristics it might have had in the hands of the corporation.

However, in the case of long-term capital gains, the special characteristics carry over to the shareholder level. A 1964 Congressional amendments lets a tax option corporation, which sells certain types of assets and distributes the proceeds within 2½ months after the close of its taxable year, elect to treat the distribution as having been made in the taxable year.

And, if a shareholder has been taxed on corporate earnings which were not at that time distributed, and the corporation in a later year distributes these earnings to the same shareholder, he is not required to pay any additional tax on the earnings, CCH said.

The undistributed taxable income is taxable to the shareholder in the taxable year which coincides with the end of the corporation's taxable year. Distributions which are taxable to the shareholder are taxable to him in the year received.

If a corporation has a net operating loss during a year for which a "tax option" election is in effect, a shareholder can deduct on his individual return his proportionate share of the loss. Also, a deceased shareholder will be allowed this deduction even though he dies before the end of the corporation's taxable year, according to the IRS Code provisions.

Where "tax option" treatment has been elected, the basis of a shareholder's stock is increased for any of the corporate earnings taxed to him which are not then distributed, although this basis is later reduced if the tax - paid corporate earnings are distributed.

The basis of the stock of a shareholder is also reduced for any corporate losses passed through to him. But the losses he may take are limited to the basis he has for the stock, plus the basis of any debt of the corporation to the shareholder, the CCH report said.

● ANOTHER COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Frank Carpin, former Notre Dame athlete, may confuse a lot of people next season. Columbus of the International League drafted him from the Columbus, Ga., roster.

The southpaw pitcher goes from the Yankee chain to the Pittsburgh Pirate system. In 1964, Carpin compiled a 5-3 record at Richmond, Va., in the International League. He started only two games but led the league in game appearances with 69. His earned run record for 97 innings was 2.78.

He was drafted at the Houston winter meetings for $12,000.

Stock Owner Takes on New Responsibilities

By MORTON YARMON
Distributed by
NEA Special Services

Once you buy shares of stock — whether only a few or a large number — don't feel your responsibilities to yourself are at an end, any more than you would ignore the fate of a business if you become a partner in it.

Even if your intention is to hold on to these shares of stock as a long-term investment, you should watch what is happening to the company in question. For it is always possible that the factors that made you consider its shares as this long-range investment may change, forcing you to want to sell them without delay. No company is so secure in this fast-changing world that its fortunes can't suddenly turn round and take a swift dip. You need only examine a list of companies that were making huge profits a few years ago to realize how true this is.

Here is a brief summary of some of the things you should do after you have become a stockholder:

—Follow the news of business and of the securities markets. Newspapers are your best source of such news, along with specialized financial publications and financial reporting services.

—Read all reports, particularly the annual reports, of the corporations in which you own shares.

—Evaluate the dividend news about your own securities and those of other companies similarly situated.

—Exercise your rights, such as those permitting you to buy more stock, for they have considerable value to you.

—Hold periodic discussions with your broker and banker where you review your holdings.

—Analyze these holdings early in December of each year, to see how you can benefit from switches that will affect your tax situation.

—Attend stockholder meetings, or at least keep yourself informed about what happens at such meetings. If you don't attend, learn about the proxies so that you can sign or refuse to sign them intelligently and as the situation seems to warrant.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Freedom of Choice

For many years the residents of Ivywild have resisted the pressures exerted on them by their big neighbor to the north to [illegible] up, pay up and become a part of the city of Colorado Springs. But Ivywild has always preferred to remain outside the city limits and the grasping hands of the city tax collectors.

In all its long history, Ivywild has never incorporated nor had any formal "city government." It has never had, nor felt the need of, a police force. It has its own water district and its own fire district, a volunteer organization that has proved its efficiency on many occasions.

The Ivywild Improvement Society, a cooperative organization, has been responsible for many of the improvements in the suburb, including the erection of street signs, without the use of tax money. In fact, Ivywild, over the years, has been a shining example of how a thriving community with a growing population could get along very well without a town or city government, thereby proving such governments are not really anything but expensive and unnecessary luxuries.

Such an example, under their very noses, has always been a thorn in the side (if you will pardon a mixed metaphor) of the city fathers of Colorado Springs, for, more than anything else, a politician wants to feel NEEDED. He may know, in his heart, that he is really an unnecessary burden on the people. But, if he can get the people to believing he is their benefactor it acts as a dope on his conscience and puts it to sleep. Finally, with conscience at rest, he begins to believe his own propaganda, and that's when he really gets to be a big and expensive nuisance.

With Ivywild ever present to prove they weren't really necessary, the city fathers felt somewhat constrained and ill at ease whenever the suburb was mentioned in polite society. Besides, they have always looked upon Ivywild as fair game for the city tax coffers. If they could only enlighten the citizens enough to get them to vote for annexation and taxation, the politicians dreamed, they will learn to love us. But the citizens of Ivywild remained unenlightened and free from all the "blessings" the politicians could have brought them.

But finally, with the aid of the state government and the blessing of the governor, whom many are losing their Love for, it appears that it will be made so that little, independent suburbs, such as Ivywild, will no longer have any freedom of choice in the matter of annexation. They can be gobbled up at will by their larger neighbors, as soon as a pending bill is pushed through the state legislature, which appears probable.

The only alternative open to Ivywild, or other suburbs so situated, is to incorporate itself into a city and adopt a city government of its own. But, even this being preferable to being absorbed by the octopus to the north, Ivywild is taking steps to incorporate. It is now or never. The new law, when in effect, specifically forbids suburbs from incorporating as towns in order to prevent annexation. They MUST submit to being swallowed up by their overgrown neighbors.

We believe that Ivywild, under tremendous political pressure, is being forced to chose the lesser of two evils. But a choice between evils is no choice at all. They, the residents, should be allowed to choose between evil and good.

However, in view of the circumstances, we believe Ivywild has made a wise choice and is to be commended for its independent spirit, which is all too lacking in many communities today.

Since we believe in one man, one government, or that each individual should govern himself, it follows that we believe many small governments are preferable to one big one.

It is just possible that a few of the other outlying suburbs in the area will incorporate on their own while they still have time. But time is running out.

Do You Fare Well, Welfare?

STOCKHOLM — The Swedish sales tax of 6.5 per cent will rise to [illegible] per cent in July if a budget proposal submitted to Parliament is approved. The sales tax and other levies must be hiked to raise more cash to pay for Sweden's already whopping Welfare State programs — socialized medicine and sick pay, free education, farm subsidies, unemployment grants. The Swedish motorist may pay more for gasoline. The government wants to raise the price from 60 cents a gallon to 61 cents.

Creeping Totalitarianism

All of us are quite familiar with powerful propaganda aimed at deriding the totalitarian state. We do not like dictatorships. We abhor kings. We are, so far as doctrine and heritage and inclination are concerned, a free people and hostile to tyrants.

But the grim irony of our situation is found, not in our professed beliefs, which are splendid, but in our actions which deny the convictions we profess. Officially, in America, we praise private enterprise. Yet in this country, the state has become by far the largest capitalist. We are in process of building a totalitarian state, with its foundations, like that of the Russians, resting upon the industrial and business operations of the nation. A recent study by the National Industrial Conference Board, for example, reveals seven major areas of governmental advance.

1. Federal, state and local governments today are purchasing 23 per cent of the total industrial and business output. In 1929, government purchased only 9 per cent.

2. Government employment is on the increase and government employment agencies are encroaching in fields once exclusively and rightfully private. Today, our various governments, directly or indirectly, provide some 18.5 million jobs. That is more than one fourth of the U.S. total of gainfully employed.

3. Back in 1930 the government was providing about 6 per cent of the total electric power generated in this country. Today, government-owned facilities are generating nearly 25 per cent of the total U.S. output.

4. We used to think of Sears or Wards as the largest retail outlets in the world. Some private chain stores are enormous with outlets in many places. A few years ago, governments hardly operated in these areas at all. Today, sales at military commissaries and post exchanges have grown to about $2.3 billion annually. This makes government retail selling the fourth largest such operation in the country.

5. We are told that we still don't have socialized medicine in this country and there are many who are quite vocal in opposing it. Did you know that we have already socialized our medical profession to the place where government is spending some $8 billion annually in the field of health, thus accounting for about one fourth of all health expenditures in the United States?

6. Federal spending in research has now grown astronomically. A relatively few years ago research was considered so risky and so costly that it was rightfully reserved for what we call the "private" sector. Let private persons risk their own funds, but keep the taxpayer's money safe from such uncertainties. Today, the federal government is spending about two thirds of all money spent on research. Indeed, it has moved into this area so powerfully that private expenditures in this area are being reduced.

7. Building of government buildings in the past several years is now accounting for about 30 per cent of all building and construction in the United States. Early in the postwar years, U. S. government construction accounted for only 22 per cent of all building in the nation.

Through these processes and many more, the government in its various branches is growing to dominate the people of this country.

Think back to a city of 100,000 population about 1865, right at the close of the Civil War. It had a city hall and a few county offices, particularly if it happened to be a county seat. Think now of Colorado Springs, a city still somewhat short of a 100,000 population. We have a city hall. We also have city officials, operations, caretakers and whatnot, housed in 30 locations outside of the city hall.

Think of El Paso County. We have what amounts to two court houses plus various functions, officials and whatnot housed in at least eight other locations.

Then think of the federal government. We have at least two dozen federal installations in and around Colorado Springs.

This is what is known as bureaucracy. And it arises in this country, which presumably is disenchanted with big government, with totalitarian power, with royalty and with tyranny. Yet each and every one of these agencies, bureaus and functionaries is paid for by your taxes.

This is the way totalitarianism is installed. Rarely does it emerge to be thrust upon a people all at once. It creeps upon us like a damp fog and quietly engulfs us, even while we are protesting our aversion to tyranny and total rule.

FAVORS TAX

To the Editor:

"City businessmen are considering running a slate of anti-sales tax candidates in the April election. . . ."

This statement, along with others made at the time the sales tax issue was before Council, gives me some concern for the future of our city. The attitude of these merchants, while understandable, is nevertheless selfish in nature. Their objections, as I understand them, stem not from what is best for the city of Colorado Springs, nor from what is best for the majority of the individuals who comprise that community, but rather from what is best for their individual businesses.

I happen to be among those who favor the sales tax or other equitable means of decreasing property taxes. My position in this regard is primarily a selfish one. Theirs, in opposition, is equally selfish.

My purpose herein is not to debate the relative merits of the sales and property taxes, but rather to ask for deliberation by both voters and candidates.

Each year our City Council is faced with a great many decisions. A number of these have an impact upon our community equal to or greater than that of the sales tax. By this very nature, these decisions will frequently and adversely effect a substantial number of people in their individual capacities. We expect the decisions to be made for the long-range benefit of our city, and not for individuals. Therefore, it is rare that we have such vociferous objections from the injured parties.

I feel that our present City Council has done a tremendous job during a period of unparalleled growth; and that they have dealt wisely with the many new problems that accompany such growth. They have been far from selfish in their approach. They work long hours, without compensation, too frequently without commendation, and at great personal sacrifice. I marvel that such fine individuals and businessmen as Mr. Hoth, Mr. Johnson and Mr. McCleary are willing and able to serve another term.

If the merchants — who are so concerned about the effect of a city sales tax on their business — desire to run for the City Council, I hope that they will do so only after they have done a little "soul-searching." Are they prepared to act on the sales tax issue from the standpoint of the community's interest — or only their own? Will they take a similar approach to each of the multitudinous problems that confront Council? Are they prepared to see their own business decline because of their office? (As they should know, some people take vehement exception to the expressed viewpoints of councilmen.) Are they prepared to give the time, and can they afford to take the time away from their personal business, that is required of a councilman? Are they, by virtue of their education and background, capable of impartially representing this splendid community?

If they can answer affirmatively to the foregoing questions, I sincerely hope that they will run. They are then the type of men that I feel we have — and need. However, they probably will not be willing to run on so limited a platform as "anti-sales tax."

A COMPARISON

To the Editor:

Someone should compare Johnson's Great Society with Welch's Birch Society, to help us all better understand both.

There must be similarities, since American patriots by the millions support both.

There must be differences since all Communists oppose the Birch Society and support the Great Society.

UPHOLDS HONOR CODE

To the Editor:

— and so the land was cleared. Beautiful, magnificent structures were erected. Learned people were gathered from around the world and brought to this place. It took many years of planning and at last, upon its completion, it became known as the United States Air Force Academy, where young intelligent boys were placed — to be molded into men — the future officers of our United States Air Force — men who may some day become great leaders of our beloved country — men of courage, integrity, vision and honor.

Honor, a sometimes quality, an intangible thing that cannot be shot into the veins — any more than can love, greed, Christianity, thievery, wisdom and the weakness to bow to temptation — all the good and all the bad things that exist within each of us.

But, within each of us lies the power to learn the good things and the strength to unlearn the bad.

When one is dishonored and exposed publicly there must be great bitterness — but consider the bewilderment and heart ache when one is exposed to himself—and sees himself, perhaps for the first time, through his own eyes and the eyes of God — for this is the greatest punishment of all.

As the wife of a military man, I fully understand the meaning of the Honor Code. I realize the necessity of it from a security standpoint — for in this very insecure and troubled era in which we find ourselves living, it is an absolute necessity. Security could determine our way of life, or death.

But now I speak out only as a human being with many weaknesses — and as the mother of a son and a daughter to whom I pray I can teach good from bad, right from wrong and the difference between caution and fear. Perhaps, with God's help, I can.

So let us neither condemn nor condone — let us be glad that the more than 2,000 men can look at themselves without flinching and let us pray that the others, who surely must be suffering, may go on to pick up the pieces and perhaps become better men, men who can profit from this experience. May God bless and help them.

The Local Scene

Cradle To the Grave Sports

By RUFUS L. PORTER

"There seems to be some question," I said, "whether too much comfort is good for humanity. Too much leisure, too many luxuries and too much comfort soften up people, make them indolent and pleasure loving and too much income makes them slaves to luxury, until they come to regard luxuries as necessities, according to what I read some place."

"There's nothing wrong with any of those things," said Adam Lyre, "if they are taken in moderation. Hasn't humanity been striving for those very things for centuries? Why should we spurn a little of the comfort our forefathers would have given their eye-teeth for? And why work 70 hours a week if you can get the job done in 40 or 35? And as for luxuries, who is to draw the line between them and necessities? It has been a couple of generations since Oscar Wilde said, 'Give me the luxuries of life and I can do without the necessities.' To him the luxuries were necessary."

"Lump them altogether," I said, "comfort, leisure, caviar and champagne — they're all luxuries, and according to the book, they're harmful."

"Sure they are," said Adam, "if you over indulge. They get to be a habit, the same as alcohol. You have to learn how to handle them. And if you can not take them or let them alone, you better stay off them in the first place."

"The government wants everybody to go into sports," I said, "and they have set up a huge bureau with a lot of sports-minded people to train everybody how to play. This might be good. If they play hard, they might get tired enough to be uncomfortable."

"No chance," said Adam, "hard play comes from hard competition, and competition between the voters simply won't be allowed. They don't want one voter, or one team of voters, showing any superiority over another. That might lose them votes. Besides, if a voter got killed in a rough game, who would take his place at the polls?

"The way I get the picture, they want everybody, but everybody, to play games from the cradle to the grave, and if they played hard those two spots might not be too far apart. No, they want everybody to play mild, non-competitive, easy games with no thought of do or die in an attempt to win. After all, the losers are just as important as the winners. Without them there could be no winners."

"Then why all this stress on sports for leisure time?" I asked, "isn't that to keep the people from growing soft from too much comfort in their new-found leisure? We have more leisure than ever nowadays and, with automation coming up, we will soon have much more."

"What would be the best thing for people to do with all this new-found leisure, in your opinion?" asked Adam.

"A little more playing, certainly," I said, "but much of their time could, and should, be spent in reading good literature and trying to gain a little culture, improve their minds, do some constructive thinking, that would give them less time for comfort and luxuries and, in time, they would come to see that they weren't all important, as many believe them to be now."

"You are naive," said Adam "Why do you suppose they want to make sure everybody is busy playing games in their spare time? If they're busy playing, they won't have time to soak up any culture, or improve their minds and maybe learn to think. The last thing they want a voter to do is start thinking."

"You don't think any good will come of the proposed plan then?" I said.

"Good will come to the politicians," said Adam. "If they did not think so, they wouldn't be spending our money on it."

Nation's Press

And I Quote

From Ocean City, N.J. Sentinel-Ledger: One thing the United States Supreme Court cannot do is declare the United States Constitution unconstitutional. If the court could do so, it might attack the make-up of the United States Senate which, with two senators from each state regardless of size, is clearly defying the court fiat that representation in state legislatures must be on the basis of population.

If you think children don't know the value of money, try giving one a nickel. — From Indianola (Ia.) Tribune

From Grayslake, Ill., Times: Despite the assault on poverty by the administration, some of the programs suggested may not be effective. For instance, make-work jobs in the non-profit area are no substitute for the challenge of getting and holding a job on one's own merits. They are more likely to encourage dependency on others than the self-reliance and self-discipline which enable a young person to find his own place in the world. . .In the final analysis, youths need jobs in industry, not temporary government-generated jobs. And to employ youths, industry needs greater profit opportunities and fewer restrictive practices of government that dampen the business climate.

These Days

The View From Ruritania

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The foreign minister of Ruritania was in one of his I-told-you-so moods.

"The trouble with you Americans," he said, "is that you never try to see the world as it looks from the other side of the fence. Or maybe I should say from the other side of the barricades—only you don't recognize them as barricades. You want peace, and so you assume that everybody must want peace. But whoever told you that Mao Tse-tung wants peace? Or Nasser? Or Ben Bella? Or even Brezhnev and Kosygin, except to protect their dissatisfied and vulnerable colonial system in eastern Europe?

"Here you are trying to face Mao Tse-tung down and bring him to a conference table. You think that sporadic shows of force will impress upon him that you really mean business about not being pushed out of South Viet Nam. But you don't recognize the fact that the so-called 'Yenan way' of the Chinese Communists is to combine infinite patience with complete long-term intransigence. You forget that Mao and his mates were willing to make that long march overland into the hills of Northwest China and dig in to wait for years until the time came when they could snap back. Mao outlasted the Japanese; then he outlasted Chiang Kai-shek. What makes you think that old Mao — or his successors — won't outlast you in Viet Nam, particularly when it is not Red Chinese cities or factories that you are hitting whenever you are sufficiently goaded into retaliation against Ho Chi Minh?

"You in America are always mistaking a temporary lull or a temporary pause in the Cold War for a return of a dove to the western ark. Last spring your Senator Fulbright was plugging the line that everything had changed, and that you should take a new look at your foreign policy. Well, sure. So your President Johnson decides that he'll be a cagey fellow and try to drum up a world consensus for peaceful amelioration. He's working it out fine, but suddenly that old goulash statesman, Nikita Khrushchev, finds that he's out on his ear.

"The new boys in Moscow do not seem particularly warlike at first, and it's true they don't want a real atomic blow-off. So your Lyndon decides to get himself invited to Russia for some high-level palaver about peace everywhere. Then the Congo starts to blow up. Nasser and Ben Bella begin forwarding Czech arms to Congolese rebels. The Red Chinese move into Burundi, and it is more luck than you deserve that they are forced out again. Sukarno takes Indonesia out of the UN. The Russians stay in the UN, but fix it so nobody can vote, which may be just what suits their purposes. Kosygin visits North Viet Nam and McGeorge Bundy goes to South Viet Nam.

"The word is spread that the U.S., that paper tiger, is about to make a deal that will get it off the hook in Southeast Asia when — wham! — the lid blows off, Americans in South Viet Nam get bushwhacked, and Lyndon Johnson — who is always good when his anger and his patriotism are forced to coincide — stands up and plays the man.

"We in Ruritania understand Johnson's retaliatory moods, but what we can't understand is why he doesn't realize that they lose all force when they turn out to be one-shot affairs. You may not believe the old Marxist saying that you have to be hammer or anvil in a war, but Mao Tse-tung knows better.

"What beats us in Ruritania is that you have good cards and won't play them. You didn't listen to your Richard Nixon when, at the time of Dienbienphu, he tried to get you to help the French. You don't listen to your General Wedemeyer, who has been urging for a long time that you try to enlist the free Asiatic nations in the cause of the South Vietnamese. If a few transports loaded with Filipino and Taiwan soldiers were to dock at South Viet Nam ports, and if you were to ship a few landing craft to Chiang Kai-shek in Taiwan, it might get through to Mao Tse-tung that you cared for freedom more than you care for peace. Whatever happened to SEATO, anyway?

"Oh, it could be that you'll get other lulls in the Cold War and will survive a few more retreats. But get it out of your heads that everybody in the world must want what you want. Mao Tse-tung isn't interested in the Great Society or the future of the Democratic party. He's interested in the Yenan way, which is to seep like water into every stronghold that the West still holds."

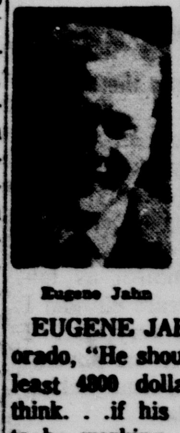
Joseph Brady

Fred Berger

JOSEPH BRADY, 1520 N. Corona, "Oh. . .I'd say he should be making around 4800 dollars a year, for two. That's if he's going to be starting a family and all."

FRED BERGER, 1507 E. Platte, "Well. . .between $300 and $350 a month I think. He should have the money to start buying a house, a car, a T.V. . . . you know, the necessities . . . He shouldn't get married until he can afford to live, of course."



Eugene Jahn

David Clark

EUGENE JAHN, 1721 W. Colorado, "He should be making at least 4800 dollars a year, I think. . .if his wife isn't going to be working. He should definitely be able to meet the emergency bills which always come up unexpectedly."

DAVID CLARK, Plainview, Texas, "I'm just newly wed. . . I'm making about $320 per month. . .it's enough if you can do without some things. . . .I think it's enough to start on."

Mrs. D. Clark

Mrs. K. Knowles

Mrs. DAVID CLARK, Plainview, Texas, "Well. . . .we're doing it on around $300 a month. . .I'm going to school. . . it's enough really, if you can do without some of the luxuries."

Mrs. KATHLEEN KNOWLES, 611 N. Cascade, "Seems to me it doesn't make much difference . . .all you really need is something to eat and a place to stay. We got along fine with a pan and some chopsticks. . .we did not need a bunch of stuff. Sure, money and comfort are nice. . . there's time for that."

Wit and Whimsy

A farmer and a college professor were traveling together on a train. They got tired of talking and reading, so the professor suggested they play riddles.

Professor: "Every time you miss a riddle, you give me a dollar, and very time I miss a riddle, I'll give you a dollar."

Farmer: "You're better educated than I am, I'll give you fifty cents."

The professor agreed, and the farmer made up the first riddle.

Farmer: "What has three legs walking and two legs flying."

The professor didn't know, so he gave the farmer a dollar. The farmer didn't know either, so he gave the professor fifty cents.

Mrs. Newlywed had not come out very well in her first experience with the cook-book and gas range. She ran to the telephone and called up her mother.

Mrs. Newlywed (sobbed): "Mother, I can't understand it. The recipe says clearly, 'Bring to boil on brisk fire, stirring for two minutes. Then beat it for ten minutes'. . .and when I came back again it was burned to a crisp!"

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Freedom of Choice

For many years the residents of Ivywild have resisted the pressures exerted on them by their big neighbor to the north to join up, pay up and become a part of the city of Colorado Springs. But Ivywild has always preferred to remain outside the city limits and the grasping hands of the city tax collectors.

In all its long history, Ivywild has never incorporated nor had any formal "city government." It has never had, nor felt the need of, a police force. It has its own water district and its own fire district, a volunteer organization that has proved its efficiency on many occasions.

The Ivywild Improvement Society, a cooperative organization, has been responsible for many of the improvements in the suburb, including the erection of street signs, without the use of tax money. In fact, Ivywild, over the years, has been a shining example of how a thriving community with a growing population could get along very well without a town or city government, thereby proving such governments are not really anything but expensive and unnecessary luxuries.

Such an example, under their very noses, has always been a thorn in the side (if you will pardon a mixed metaphor) of the city fathers of Colorado Springs, for, more than anything else, a politician wants to feel NEEDED. He may know, in his heart, that he is really an unnecessary burden on the people. But, if he can get the people to believing he is their benefactor it acts as a dope on his conscience and puts it to sleep. Finally, with conscience at rest, he begins to believe his own propaganda, and that's when he really gets to be a big and expensive nuisance.

With Ivywild ever present to prove they weren't really necessary, the city fathers felt somewhat constrained and ill at ease whenever the suburb was mentioned in polite society. Besides, they have always looked upon Ivywild as fair game for the city tax coffers. If they could only enlighten the citizens enough to get them to vote for annexation and taxation, the politicians dreamed, they will learn to love us. But the citizens of Ivywild remained unenlightened and free from all the "blessings" the politicians could have brought them.

But finally, with the aid of the state government and the blessing of the governor, whom many are losing their Love for, it appears that it will be made so that little, independent suburbs, such as Ivywild, will no longer have any freedom of choice in the matter of annexation. They can be gobbled up at will by their larger neighbors, as soon as a pending bill is pushed through the state legislature, which appears probable.

The only alternative open to Ivywild, or other suburbs so situated, is to incorporate itself into a city and adopt a city government of its own. But, even this being preferable to being absorbed by the octopus to the north, Ivywild is taking steps to incorporate. It is now or never. The new law, when in effect, specifically forbids suburbs from incorporating as towns in order to prevent annexation. They MUST submit to being swallowed up by their overgrown neighbors.

We believe that Ivywild, under tremendous political pressure, is being forced to chose the lesser of two evils. But a choice between evils is no choice at all. They, the residents, should be allowed to choose between evil and good.

However, in view of the circumstances, we believe Ivywild has made a wise choice and is to be commended for its independent spirit, which is all too lacking in many communities today.

Since we believe in one man, one government, or that each individual should govern himself, it follows that we believe many small governments are preferable to one big one.

It is just possible that a few of the other outlying suburbs in the area will incorporate on their own while they still have time. But time is running out.

Do You Fare Well, Welfare?

STOCKHOLM — The Swedish sales tax of 6.5 per cent will rise to [illegible] per cent in July if a budget proposal submitted to Parliament is approved. The sales tax and other levies must be hiked to raise more cash to pay for Sweden's already whopping Welfare State programs — socialized medicine and sick pay, free education, farm subsidies, unemployment grants. The Swedish motorist may pay more for gasoline. The government wants to raise the price from 60 cents a gallon to 61 cents.

Creeping Totalitarianism

All of us are quite familiar with powerful propaganda aimed at deriding the totalitarian state. We do not like dictatorships. We abhor kings. We are, so far as doctrine and heritage and inclination are concerned, a free people and hostile to tyrants.

But the grim irony of our situation is found, not in our professed beliefs, which are splendid, but in our actions which deny the convictions we profess. Officially, in America, we praise private enterprise. Yet in this country, the state has become by far the largest capitalist. We are in process of building a totalitarian state, with its foundations, like that of the Russians, resting upon the industrial and business operations of the nation. A recent study by the National Industrial Conference Board, for example, reveals seven major areas of governmental advance.

1. Federal, state and local governments today are purchasing 23 per cent of the total industrial and business output. In 1929, government purchased only 9 per cent.

2. Government employment is on the increase and government employment agencies are encroaching in fields once exclusively and rightfully private. Today, our various governments, directly or indirectly, provide some 18.5 million jobs. That is more than one fourth of the U.S. total of gainfully employed.

3. Back in 1930 the government was providing about 6 per cent of the total electric power generated in this country. Today, government-owned facilities are generating nearly 25 per cent of the total U.S. output.

4. We used to think of Sears or Wards as the largest retail outlets in the world. Some private chain stores are enormous with outlets in many places. A few years ago, governments hardly operated in these areas at all. Today, sales at military commissaries and post exchanges have grown to about $2.3 billion annually. This makes government retail selling the fourth largest such operation in the country.

5. We are told that we still don't have socialized medicine in this country and there are many who are quite vocal in opposing it. Did you know that we have already socialized our medical profession to the place where government is spending some $8 billion annually in the field of health, thus accounting for about one fourth of all health expenditures in the United States?

6. Federal spending in research has now grown astronomically. A relatively few years ago research was considered so risky and so costly that it was rightfully reserved for what we call the "private" sector. Let private persons risk their own funds, but keep the taxpayer's money safe from such uncertainties. Today, the federal government is spending about two thirds of all money spent on research. Indeed, it has moved into this area so powerfully that private expenditures in this area are being reduced.

7. Building of government buildings in the past several years is now accounting for about 30 per cent of all building and construction in the United States. Early in the post-war years, U. S. government construction accounted for only 22 per cent of all building in the nation.

Through these processes and many more, the government in its various branches is growing to dominate the people of this country.

Think back to a city of 100,000 population about 1865, right at the close of the Civil War. It had a city hall and a few county offices, particularly if it happened to be a county seat. Think now of Colorado Springs, a city still somewhat short of a 100,000 population. We have a city hall. We also have city officials, operations, caretakers and whatnot, housed in 30 locations outside of the city hall.

Think of El Paso County. We have what amounts to two court houses plus various functions, officials and whatnot housed in at least eight other locations.

Then think of the federal government. We have at least two dozen federal installations in and around Colorado Springs.

This is what is known as bureaucracy. And it arises in this country, which presumably is disenchanted with big government, with totalitarian power, with royalty and with tyranny. Yet each and every one of these agencies, bureaus and functionaries is paid for by your taxes.

This is the way totalitarianism is installed. Rarely does it emerge to be thrust upon a people all at once. It creeps upon us like a damp fog and quietly engulfs us, even while we are protesting our aversion to tyranny and total rule.

FAVORS TAX

To the Editor:

"City businessmen are considering running a slate of anti-sales tax candidates in the April election. . . ."

This statement, along with others made at the time the sales tax issue was before Council, gives me some concern for the future of our city. The attitude of these merchants, while understandable, is nevertheless selfish in nature. Their objections, as I understand them, stem not from what is best for the city of Colorado Springs, nor from what is best for the majority of the individuals who comprise that community, but rather from what is best for their individual businesses.

I happen to be among those who favor the sales tax or other equitable means of decreasing property taxes. My position in this regard is primarily a selfish one. Theirs, in opposition, is equally selfish.

My purpose herein is not to debate the relative merits of the sales and property taxes, but rather to ask for deliberation by both voters and candidates.

Each year our City Council is faced with a great many decisions. A number of these have an impact upon our community equal to or greater than that of the sales tax. By this very nature, these decisions will frequently and adversely effect a substantial number of people in their individual capacities. We expect the decisions to be made for the long-range benefit of our city, and not for individuals. Therefore, it is rare that we have such vociferous objections from the injured parties.

I feel that our present City Council has done a tremenduous job during a period of unparalleled growth; and that they have dealt wisely with the many new problems that accompany such growth. They have been far from selfish in their approach. They work long hours, without compensation, too frequently without commendation, and at great personal sacrifice. I marvel that such fine individuals and businessmen as Mr. Hoth, Mr. Johnson and Mr. McCleary are willing and able to serve another term.

If the merchants — who are so concerned about the effect of a city sales tax on their business — desire to run for the City Council, I hope that they will do so only after they have done a little "soul-searching." Are they prepared to act on the sales tax issue from the standpoint of the community's interest — or only their own? Will they take a similar approach to each of the multitudinous problems that confront Council? Are they prepared to see their own business decline because of their office? (As they should know, some people take vehement exception to the expressed viewpoints of councilmen.) Are they prepared to give the time, and can they afford to take the time away from their personal business, that is required of a councilman? Are they, by virtue of their education and background, capable of impartially representing this splendid community?

If they can answer affirmatively to the foregoing questions, I sincerely hope that they will run. They are then the type of men that I feel we have — and need. However, they probably will not be willing to run on so limited a platform as "anti-sales tax."

A COMPARISON

To the Editor:

Someone should compare Johnson's Great Society with Welch's Birch Society, to help us all better understand both.

There must be similarities, since American patriots by the millions support both.

There must be differences since all Communists oppose the Birch Society and support the Great Society.

To the Editor:

— and so the land was cleared. Beautiful, magnificent structures were erected. Learned people were gathered from around the world and brought to this place. It took many years of planning and at last, upon its completion, it became known as the United States Air Force Academy, where young intelligent boys were placed — to be molded into men — the future officers of our United States Air Force — men who may some day become great leaders of our beloved country — men of courage, integrity, vision and honor.

Honor, a sometimes quality, an intangible thing that cannot be shot into the veins — any more than can love, greed, Christianity, thievery, wisdom and the weakness to bow to temptation — all the good and all the bad things that exist within each of us.

But, within each of us lies the power to learn the good things and the strength to unlearn the bad.

When one is dishonored and exposed publicly there must be great bitterness — but consider the bewilderment and heart ache when one is exposed to himself—and sees himself, perhaps for the first time, through his own eyes and the eyes of God — for this is the greatest punishment of all.

As the wife of a military man, I fully understand the meaning of the Honor Code. I realize the necessity of it from a security standpoint — for in this very insecure and troubled era in which we find ourselves living, it is an absolute necessity. Security could determine our way of life, or death.

But now I speak out only as a human being with many weaknesses — and as the mother of a son and a daughter to whom I pray I can teach good from bad, right from wrong and the difference between caution and fear. Perhaps, with God's help, I can.

So let us neither condemn nor condone — let us be glad that the more than 2,000 men can look at themselves without flinching and let us pray that the others, who surely must be suffering, may go on to pick up the pieces and perhaps become better men, men who can profit from this experience. May God bless and help them.

The Local Scene

By RUFUS L. PORTER

"There seems to be some question," I said, "whether too much comfort is good for humanity. Too much leisure, too many luxuries and too much comfort soften up people, make them indolent and pleasure loving and too much income makes them slaves to luxury, until they come to regard luxuries as necessities, according to what I read some place."

"There's nothing wrong with any of those things," said Adam Lyre, "if they are taken in moderation. Hasn't humanity been striving for those very things for centuries? Why should we spurn a little of the comfort our forefathers would have given their eye-teeth for? And why work 70 hours a week if you can get the job done in 40 or 35? And as for luxuries, who is to draw the line between them and necessities? It has been a couple of generations since Oscar Wilde said, 'Give me the luxuries of life and I can do without the necessities.' To him the luxuries were necessary."

"Lump them altogether," I said, "comfort, leisure, caviar and champagne — they're all luxuries, and according to the book, they're harmful."

"Sure they are," said Adam, "if you over indulge. They get to be a habit, the same as alcohol. You have to learn how to handle them. And if you can not take them or let them alone, you better stay off them in the first place."

"The government wants everybody to go into sports," I said, "and they have set up a huge bureau with a lot of sports-minded people to train everybody how to play. This might be good. If they play hard, they might get tired enough to be uncomfortable."

"No chance," said Adam, "hard play comes from hard competition, and competition between the voters simply won't be allowed. They don't want one voter, or one team of voters, showing any superiority over another. That might lose them votes. Besides, if a voter got killed in a rough game, who would take his place at the polls?

"The way I get the picture, they want everybody, but everybody, to play games from the cradle to the grave, and if they played hard those two spots might not be too far apart. No, they want everybody to play mild, non-competitive, easy games with no thought of do or die in an attempt to win. After all, the losers are just as important as the winners. Without them there could be no winners."

"Then why all this stress on sports for leisure time?" I asked, "isn't that to keep the people from growing soft from too much comfort in their new-found leisure? We have more leisure than ever nowadays and, with automation coming up, we will soon have much more."

"What would be the best thing for people to do with all this new-found leisure, in your opinion?" asked Adam.

"A little more playing, certainly," I said, "but much of their time could, and should, be spent in reading good literature and trying to gain a little culture, improve their minds, do some constructive thinking, that would give them less time for comfort and luxuries and, in time, they would come to see that they weren't all important, as many believe them to be now."

"You are naive," said Adam "Why do you suppose they want to make sure everybody is busy playing games in their spare time? If they're busy playing, they won't have time to soak up any culture, or improve their minds and maybe learn to think. The last thing they want a voter to do is start thinking."

"You don't think any good will come of the proposed plan then?" I said.

"Good will come to the politicians," said Adam. "If they did not think so, they wouldn't be spending our money on it."

And I Quote

From Ocean City, N.J. Sentinel-Ledger: One thing the United States Supreme Court cannot do is declare the United States Constitution unconstitutional. If the court could do so, it might attack the make-up of the United States Senate which, with two senators from each state regardless of size, is clearly defying the court fiat that representation in state legislatures must be on the basis of population.

If you think children don't know the value of money, try giving one a nickel. — From Indianola (Ia.) Tribune

From Grayslake, Ill., Times: Despite the assault on poverty by the administration, some of the programs suggested may not be effective. For instance, make-work jobs in the non-profit area are no substitute for the challenge of getting and holding a job on one's own merits. They are more likely to encourage dependency on others than the self-reliance and self-discipline which enable a young person to find his own place in the world. . .In the final analysis, youths need jobs in industry, not temporary government-generated jobs. And to employ youths, industry needs greater profit opportunities and fewer restrictive practices of government that dampen the business climate.

You may not believe the old Marxist saying that you have to be hammer or anvil in a war, but Mao Tse-tung knows better.

"What beats us in Ruritania is that you have good cards and won't play them. You didn't listen to your Richard Nixon when, at the time of Dienbienphu, he tried to get you to help the French. You don't listen to your General Wedemeyer, who has been urging for a long time that you try to enlist the free Asiatic nations in the cause of the South Vietnamese. If a few transports loaded with Filipino and Taiwan soldiers were to dock at South Viet Nam ports, and if you were to ship a few landing craft to Chiang Kai-shek in Taiwan, it might get through to Mao Tse-tung that you cared for freedom more than you care for peace. Whatever happened to SEATO, anyway?

"Oh, it could be that you'll get other lulls in the Cold War and will survive a few more retreats. But get it out of your heads that everybody in the world must want what you want. Mao Tse-tung isn't interested in the Great Society or the future of the Democratic party. He's interested in the Yenan way, which is to seep like water into every stronghold that the West still holds."

Joseph Brady

Fred Berger

JOSEPH BRADY, 1520 N. Corona, "Oh. . .I'd say he should be making around 4800 dollars a year, for two. That's if he's going to be starting a family and all."

FRED BERGER, 1507 E. Platte, "Well. . .between $300 and $350 a month I think. He should have the money to start buying a house, a car, a T.V. . . . you know, the necessities . . . He shouldn't get married until he can afford to live, of course."

EUGENE JAHN, 1721 W. Colorado, "He should be making at least 4800 dollars a year, I think. . .if his wife isn't going to be working. He should definitely be able to meet the emergency bills which always come up unexpectedly."

DAVID CLARK, Plainview, Texas, "I'm just newly wed. . . I'm making about $320 per month. . .it's enough if you can do without some things. . . .I think it's enough to start on."

Mrs. D. Clark

Mrs. K. Knowles

Mrs. DAVID CLARK, Plainview, Texas, "Well. . . .we're doing it on around $300 a month. . .I'm going to school. . . it's enough really, if you can do without some of the luxuries."

Mrs. KATHLEEN KNOWLES, 611 N. Cascade, "Seems to me it doesn't make much difference . . .all you really need is something to eat and a place to stay. We got along fine with a pan and some chopsticks. . .we did not need a bunch of stuff. Sure, money and comfort are nice. . . there's time for that."

Wit and Whimsy

A farmer and a college professor were traveling together on a train. They got tired of talking and reading, so the professor suggested they play riddles.

Professor: "Every time you miss a riddle, you give me a dollar, and very time I miss a riddle, I'll give you a dollar."

Farmer: "You're better educated than I am, I'll give you fifty cents."

The professor agreed, and the farmer made up the first riddle.

Farmer: "What has three legs walking and two legs flying."

The professor didn't know, so he gave the farmer a dollar. The farmer didn't know either, so he gave the professor fifty cents.

Mrs. Newlywed (sobbed): "Mother, I can't understand it. The recipe says clearly, 'Bring to boil on brisk fire, stirring for two minutes. Then beat it for ten minutes'. . .and when I came back again it was burned to a crisp!"

Pearl Bailey Leaves Hospital; 'No Damage'

By DICK BIESER

HOLLYWOD (AP) — It may be a matter of weeks before audiences can again hear the deep tones of Pearl Bailey's singing, but her departure from the hospital was made on a happy note.

The verdict of her doctors: No permanent damage from heart strain.

Miss Bailey, 46, left Mt. Sinai Hospital Wednesday after more than two weeks of treatment for exhaustion. Doctors said the entertainer was well rested, but they prescribed an additional period of convalescence at her San Fernando Valley home.

If all goes well, she may be able to return to nightclub work some time next month, her doctors said.

"Pearly Mae" — as she's known to her fans — entered the hospital Feb. 1 after completing an engagement as Las Vegas, Nev. The singer had remained on duty at the Riviera Hotel two extra days because her successor, Debbie Reynolds, was suffering from a virus infection and couldn't open on scheduled.

Physicians diagnosed her condition as heart strain from overwork, and Miss Bailey was placed in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Two days of tests, however, indicated that no permanent damage had resulted. The singer then was confined to bed for a complete rest.

The Negro entertainer is the wife of Louis Bellson Jr., 41, a drummer.

Miss Bailey and Bellson, who is white, were married in London Nov. 19, 1952. During the ceremony, performed in the Caxton Hall registry office, a five-piece band played a jive tune.

Miss Bailey once previously suffered from exhaustion. A matinee performance in Philadelphia was canceled in 1954 when the singer became over tired.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — Until President Johnson makes a further decision concerning the new reprisal policy in Viet Nam, the nation presumably is going to have to wait for a detailed explanation of what the Administration honestly hopes to accomplish with U. S. air strikes.

This decision possibly will be made this week. It involves the question of whether our reprisal bombings on North Viet Nam should be stepped up promptly into a major air raid on industrial targets in the vital area of Hanoi, the capital.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff and presumably Defense Secretary McNamara favor such expansion of our retaliatory pressure. This is on the basis that, from a military viewpoint, bombings just north of the South Viet Nam border are ineffectual, as no vital installations are in the area.

This Pentagon estimate overlooks, according to the State Department, the view that the main purpose of the restricted air attacks is political. In other words, they are a limited response, aimed at convincing Hanoi of the risks of stepped-up Viet Cong activities.

Until the President decides that on the next significant provocation we will hit back in the same restricted area, or deliberately go after the bigger and more important targets to the north, it is obvious that the Administation's policy lacks inherent toughness.

Once Johnson has chosen between the hawks and doves among his advisers, a report to the nation may be expected. Either in the form of a Presidential TV address or in a "white paper" in which the State Department would define the U.S. diplomatic and military position in the crisis.

This is the most logical explanation for Johnson's delay, despite broad demands, to explain what is going on and why.

Full-Dress Crisis Speech After a Decision

Within the Administration there is a general consensus that the President must side with the hawks if developments show that our air atacks to date have increased rather than diminished Viet Cong activities against our South Viet Namese bases.

Such a decision would likely be kept secret. But once it were made, it would then be possible for Johnson to go before the public in a full-dress crisis speech.

This could come before any atack on the Hanoi installations was launched. For example, it has been suggested, the President in his full-dress report might say — for the information of Peking and Moscow — that we are in South Viet Nam to stay until the situation is cleared up and we are getting mighty annoyed by the increased tempo of Viet Cong guerrila warfare.

But with such warnings could be coupled a peace proposal — along the line that any time Ho Chi Minh wants to stop the Communist pressures within South Viet Nam we would be willing to sit down and talk.

Johnson Keeps Control on Retaliation

In this connection, the Pentagon view is proposing air attacks, if necessary, on Hanoi industrial tragets, is that such a threat would be most effective on Ho Chi Minh. The Communist boss, our military is convinced, does not want the economy of North Viet Nam destroyed after such proud efforts to build it up since the 1954 Red takeover.

The military pressures on Johnson in connection with air reprisal strategy are, it should be emphasized, an outgrowth of the way the President has personally handled the entire retaliatory problem. He has kept firm control throughout.

The fact that Johnson has so exercised his authority is novel, if for no other reason that we appear to be wholly involved now in an undeclared war in South Viet Nam.

Yet in a war, whether undeclared or not, the military customarily takes over the strategy and tactics designed to result in victory. So it is novel for the President to be calling the signals in what is now going on in Southeast Asia. For that matter, he is also calling the signals on the South Viet Namese Air Force. Like the U. S. Air Force, it can make no strike against North Viet Nam without a White House go-ahead.

Key Points on Whether to Bomb Hanoi

This Presidential activity on the operational level points up the importance attached to the political and diplomatic aspects of the air strikes to date. And it amphasizes the way those two elements will figure in Johnson's decision as to whether Hanoi should be a military target.

Much has been made of the fact that the President has not delivered what could be considered a detailed report on Viet Nam since his address last August when our Navy bombers hit back after the attack on our destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin.

But Johnson did unburden himself on an ad-lib basis of a most frank estimate of the Viet Nam situation in a speech at Eufaula, Okla., last Sept. 25.

There are those that say you ought to go north and drop bombs, to try to wipe out the supply lines, and they think that would escalate the war," Johnson said extemporaneously.

"We don't want our American boys to do the fighting for Asian boys. We don't want to get involved in a nation with 700 million people and get tied down in a land war in Asia."

Cinderella Role Is Given To Cinderella

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cinderella story is a journalistic cliche beloved by generations of reporters and, particularly, press agents: the understudy who finally went on and wowed the audience; the singer in the chorus who took on "Lucia di Lammermoor" on five minutes notice and had the critics standing and yelling.

In this context, the story of Lesley Ann Warren is the classic. She is the Cinderella-girl of "Cinderella" itself, a really unknown young dancer-singer who almost a year ago was chosen by Richard Rodgers to play the title role in the new, rewritten production production of the old fairy tale. It will be seen on CBS next Monday night.

In one way, Lesley Ann's recent history has been more that of "The Sleeping Princess" than "Cinderalla." Rodger's 90-minute musical was taped way back last October. Since then the young New Yorker has been patiently awaiting discovery — by playing in the national company of "110 in the Shade."

In fact, on the night television audiences will be seeing the young woman for the first time, she will playing her featured part in a Toronto theatre, presumably with her fingers crossed.

The slender, graceful performer was auditioned by Rodgers twice. The first time she tried to sing "My Funny Valentine," but was so tense that the gentle Rodgers suggested she read lines instead. Called back, she felt more secure and, out of all the hundreds of applicants was chosen.

"Cinderella" was originally produced and broadcast several years ago for CBS and for a time held the all-time record for the estimated size of its audience. But Rodgers was not happy with his work, and changed it from broad farce to the delicate mood of a classic fairy tale.

The 90-minute special will include plenty of Rodgers music, including one song written for "South Pacific" but cut out when the show ran too long.

Lesley Ann, in her early 20s, has her eye on a film career. She has been offered several contracts, but thinks she would rather wait until just the right part comes along. The right part, obviously, will be one also suited to Audrey Hepburn, whom Lesley Ann resembles in face, figure and voice.

Most eminent fan of CBS' "I've Got a Secret" obviously is the President of the United States. For the second time since he entered the White House, Johnson telephoned the program Monday night. This time it followed the appearance of his grade school teacher. The first call, over a year ago, came when a guest's secret was that, as a 6th grade student he was spanked by his teacher, one Lyndon Baines Johnson.

Another of the President's favorite shows is reputed to be "Gunsmoke," which CBS recently renewed for another season, its 11th.

Fate of "The Defenders," CBS' most honored entertainment show, will be decided before the week is out. It has been in ratings trouble since it was moved into a difficult late-evening Thursday spot this year.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Wives, clip out this Case Record and place it beside your husband's dinner plate. For American men often rate only a "D" grade (sometimes an "F" in their love artistry. And many young suitors are as quantity-minded as the Indians who boasted of the many scalps dangling from their belts. Send for the sex booklet below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-414: Dr. Sam Sheppard was released from the Ohio prison last summer.

And within a few days, he married an attractive German heiress who had been writing to him for several years.

Her name was Ariane and she explained their romance in a series of newspaper articles.

Therein she mentioned that she sent Dr. Sheppard some large colored bath towels.

But when she had mentioned her intention of mailing him those towels, he asked her to use them herself and then send them to him without having them laundered.

For he wanted to feel the extra closeness of her person by thus having towels that she had personally used!

Yesterday I mentioned the vital role that the sense of touch plays in producing romance, as well as in maintaining it.

For love flourishes on the tactile sense, much as flowers demand water in order to reach full bloom.

Women (as well as children) get a double thrill out of an effectionate pat on the back or a quick hug, or even momentarily to rub cheek against cheek.

And a girl also likes to run her fingers through her boy friend's hair or stroke his forehead and snuggle down against his shoulder.

But thoughtless males act as voracious in the realm of love as when hungry teen-agers sit down at the table and bolt their food in wolfish style, after which they rush away without a single compliment to the cook.

"Dr. Crane," I have often had girls explain, "I'd much rather have a date with an older man than with a boy of my own age.

"For the older men are more artistic in their love making.

"They will caress you and keep their arm around you but not act as if they are so starved for kisses that they ignore all the nice little evidences of courtship.

"In fact, they whet a girl's romantic interests until she is eager for more.

"But younger men rush in with little finesse or understanding of female psychology.

"They seem more interested in quick conquest so they can rush on to a different girl.

"And they will often boast their many previous girl friends.

"Young men thus seem quantity-minded. They want to add girls to their string of conquests, much as the Indians boasted of the many scalps on their belt.

"But older men are experienced and work up a girl's emotions by tantalizing slowness and caresses. So they make the better lovers."

Men, you better heed those comments for they are the universal remarks of women.

Chronic complaints reach me from wives who also lament that their husbands rush into romance with little finesse or prelude.

"They offer us wives no more romantic build-up than they render to a sirloin steak!" is the way one cultured wife describes it.

So send for the booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents and learn how to avoid divorce!

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

NO DAYDREAMING

DUKE, Okla. (AP) — There will be no windows for students to look through at the completely underground school being built in this southwest Oklahoma town.

The school for 250 students, with roof and walls of 12-inch concrete, will also serve as a community fallout shelter for 1,950 persons and provide tornado shelter.

The school board, in deciding on the new facility, cited the advantages of having no windows to replace, no outer walls to paint, no hail or wind damage, no outside distractions and a minimizing of allergy problems.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

Editors note: This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q — I gave my wife a fur coat for Christmas. Can I deduct the excise tax I had to pay on it whe nI itemize my deductions?

A — No. Federal excise taxes are not deductible. However, any state or local general sales tax you paid on the purchase of the coat can be deducted.

Q — My wife and I are filing separate returns. In the instruction book are tables showing what the tax will be for those who take the 10 per cent standard deduction and those who take the new minimum standard deduction. I do better with the minimum standard deduction table while my wife does better with the 10 per cent standard deduction table. Can we each use the one which benefits us most?

A — The law on this says that when couples file separate returns, they must handle their deductions the same way. In other words, if one takes the 10 per cent standard deduction so must the other. If one takes the minimum standard deduction so must the other. Therefore, you must both use the same table.

This also applies for those who itemize deductions. If a husband itemized so must his wife when separate returns are filled.

Q — Under the nex tax law, will Internal Revenue still figure the tax for you when the card form, 1040A, is filed?

A — Yes, we will if your income is under $5,000.

However, if you are a married individual filing separately, we are required by law to use the 10 per cent standard deduction when figuring your tax. If using the new minimum standard deduction will be to your advantage, be sure to figure out your own tax this year.

Q — I am a college student. To cover the expenses of my room and board, I work in the school cafeteria. I receive no money for my work, just get my room and board paid for. Is there any tax liability for me?

A — The value of the room and board you receive should be handled as compensation to you for personal services. If this value amounted to $600 or more last year, you must file a tax return even if you had no other source of income. There are situations, however, where meals and lodging are furnished for the convenience of the employer, and in these situations no taxable income results.

Q — I sold my home last year and my wife and I are moving to Florida next month. We are over 65. Doesn't the new tax law remove any income tax on the proceeds from this sale?

A — Under certain conditions it does.

There is no tax to pay if you sold the house for $20,000 or less provided that you were 65 years of age on the date of the sale and you owned and occupied the house as your principal residence for at least five of the last eight years preceding the sale. You must make an election to exclude your gain from income, and only one such elections can be made by a taxpayer during his lifetime. during his lifetime.

If you sold the house for more than $20,000 and you qualify for the special tax treatment described above, then only a percentage of your profits will be taxable. This percentage is figured by taking the adjusted sales price of the house (what you received minus certain expenses of fixing up the house in order to sell it) and comparing the $20,000 figure to it. If the adjusted sales price was $30,000 then the ratio would be $20,000 to $30,000 or two-thirds of whatever profits you realized will be tax free if you so elect. Also, tax on part of the remaining gain may be postponed if you purchase a new home.

Q — I am a widow .Last year I was able to deduct $600 as child care expenses for the care of my two little girls while I went to work. Can I deduct any more than this year under the new law? My expenses are higher than what I was allowed to deduct last year.

A — Yes. For those who qualify for the child care deduction the amounts have been increased and certain provisions liberalized.

Now up to $900 may be deducted when there are two or more dependents for which this expense is necessary. The income ceiling has been raised, too. Generally, married women must file jointly with their husbands and must reduce the deduction by the amount by which their combined adjusted gross income exceeds $6,000. Under the old law, the reduction started when income went over $4,500.

Q — I am divorced. Under a court order I have to pay $10 a week for the support of my 8-year-old daughter. Can I deduct this amount?

A — Payments for the support of a minor child are not deductible nor are they taxable to your former wife. However, if you provide more than one-half the support of your daughter you may claim her as a dependent. This would qualify you for a $600 dependency exemption.

Since both your former wife and you can't claim your daughter's exemption, you will have to establish who provided more than one-half of the child's support.

Q — Is it true that I have to file a return to get a refund? I am a high school student and earned less than $500 last year. The store where I worked withheld income taxes from my paycheck.

A — Yes, that's right. File your return and attach the W-2 form your employer sends you. The card form 1040A will most likely suit your purposes.

You may want to consider taking your refund in U.S. savings bonds rather than cash. This is a good way to build up your savings.

Q— I drive a cab, and some of my income comes from the tips I receive from customers. I know that tips are taxable. What kind of records should I keep of this money for tax purposes?

Former 'Boss Con' Now Aids Ex-Convicts

By JAMES E. DWYER

CHICAGO (AP) — Twenty-two years ago Bill Sands was a "boss con," a convict ruler of San Quentin Prison society. Now he is helping tough exconvicts become tough enough to survive in civilian society.

Creator of Freedom House, Inc., Kansas City, Kan., a rehabilitation center for exconvicts, Sands, 45, gets "down to the gutter right quick" when counseling convicts.

"I know how they think," he said Wednesday in an interview, "and they don't buy the do-gooder approach."

Sands says the philosophy he attempts to instill in convicts is: "If I can do it, why can't you?"

Compared to a national average of four out of every five exconvicts, only five out of 172 Freedom House graduates, have gone back to prison, said Sands.

Why?

Jack G. Young, superintendent of the Minnesota State Reformatory for men, says, "Sands understands the convicts' predicament."

Said Sands: "They (the convicts) think they're smart and everybody on the outside is a square john or a dummy. I tell them if they're so smart, how come they're behind bars and the dummies are free."

Sands says that his work is motivated by a compassion for society rather than for the individual convicts.

"We are paying one hell of a tax bill to maintain prisons in this country," he said.

With the backing of multimillionaire W. Clement Stone, Sands plans to expand the Freedom House program nationally.

"We've been able to reach some cons that were considered unreachable," Sands said. "Prison toughness is hard to break, but it can become an asset on the outside. It gives them the drive to work harder than the average guy."

Cinderella Role Is Given To Cinderella

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cinderella story is a journalistic cliche beloved by generations of reporters and, particularly, press agents: the understudy who finally went on and wowed the audience; the singer in the chorus who took on "Lucia di Lammermoor" on five minutes notice and had the critics standing and yelling.

In this context, the story of Lesley Ann Warren is the classic. She is the Cinderella-girl of "Cinderella" itself, a really unknown young dancer-singer who almost a year ago was chosen by Richard Rodgers to play the title role in the new, rewritten production production of the old fairy tale. It will be seen on CBS next Monday night.

In one way, Lesley Ann's recent history has been more that of "The Sleeping Princess" than "Cinderalla." Rodger's 90-minute musical was taped way back last October. Since then the young New Yorker has been patiently awaiting discovery — by playing in the national company of "110 in the Shade."

In fact, on the night television audiences will be seeing the young woman for the first time, she will playing her featured part in a Toronto theatre, presumably with her fingers crossed.

The slender, graceful performer was auditioned by Rodgers twice. The first time she tried to sing "My Funny Valentine," but was so tense that the gentle Rodgers suggested she read lines instead. Called back, she felt more secure and, out of all the hundreds of applicants was chosen.

"Cinderella" was originally produced and broadcast several years ago for CBS and for a time held the all-time record for the estimated size of its audience. But Rodgers was not happy with his work, and changed it from broad farce to the delicate mood of a classic fairy tale.

The 90-minute special will include plenty of Rodgers music, including one song written for "South Pacific" but cut out when the show ran too long.

Lesley Ann, in her early 20s, has her eye on a film career. She has been offered several contracts, but thinks she would rather wait until just the right part comes along. The right part, obviously, will be one also suited to Audrey Hepburn, whom Lesley Ann resembles in face, figure and voice.

Most eminent fan of CBS' "I've Got a Secret" obviously is the President of the United States. For the second time since he entered the White House, Johnson telephoned the program Monday night. This time it followed the appearance of his grade school teacher. The first call, over a year ago, came when a guest's secret was that, as a 6th grade student he was spanked by his teacher, one Lyndon Baines Johnson.

Another of the President's favorite shows is reputed to be "Gunsmoke," which CBS recently renewed for another season, its 11th.

Fate of "The Defenders," CBS' most honored entertainment show, will be decided before the week is out. It has been in ratings trouble since it was moved into a difficult late-evening Thursday spot this year.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Wives, clip out this Case Record and place it beside your husband's dinner plate. For American men often rate only a "D" grade (sometimes an "F" 'in their love artistry. And many young suitors are as quantity-minded as the Indians who boasted of the many scalps dangling from their belts. Send for the sex booklet below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-414: Dr. Sam Sheppard was released from the Ohio prison last summer.

And within a few days, he married an attractive German heiress who had been writing to him for several years.

Her name was Ariane and she explained their romance in a series of newspaper articles.

Therein she mentioned that she sent Dr. Sheppard some large colored bath towels.

But when she had mentioned her intention of mailing him those towels, he asked her to use them herself and then send them to him without having them laundered.

For he wanted to feel the extra closeness of her person by thus having towels that she had personally used!

Yesterday I mentioned the vital role that the sense of touch plays in producing romance, as well as in maintaining it.

For love flourishes on the tactile sense, much as flowers demand water in order to reach full bloom.

Women (as well as children) get a double thrill out of an effectionate pat on the back or a quick hug, or even momentarily to rub cheek against cheek.

And a girl also likes to run her fingers through her boy friend's hair or stroke his forehead and snuggle down against his shoulder.

But thoughtless males act as voracious in the realm of love as when hungry teen-agers sit down at the table and bolt their food in wolfish style, after which they rush away without a single compliment to the cook.

"Dr. Crane," I have often had girls explain, "I'd much rather have a date with an older man than with a boy of my own age.

"For the older men are more artistic in their love making.

"They will caress you and keep their arm around you but not act as if they are so starved for kisses that they ignore all the nice little evidences of courtship.

"In fact, they whet a girl's romantic interests until she is eager for more.

"But younger men rush in with little finesse or understanding of female psychology.

"They seem more interested in quick conquest so they can rush on to a different girl.

"And they will often boast their many previous girl friends.

"Young men thus seem quantity-minded. They want to add girls to their string of conquests, much as the Indians boasted of the many scalps on their belt.

"But older men are experienced and work up a girl's emotions by tantalizing slowness and caresses. So they make the better lovers."

Men, you better heed those comments for they are the universal remarks of women.

Chronic complaints reach me from wives who also lament that their husbands rush into romance with little finesse or prelude.

"They offer us wives no more romantic build-up than they render to a sirloin steak!" is the way one cultured wife describes it.

So send for the booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents and learn how to avoid divorce!

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

DUKE, Okla. (AP) — There will be no windows for students to look through at the completely underground school being built in this southwest Oklahoma town.

The school for 250 students, with roof and walls of 12-inch concrete, will also serve as a community fallout shelter for 1,950 persons and provide tornado shelter.

The school board, in deciding on the new facility, cited the advantages of having no windows to replace, no outer walls to paint, no hail or wind damage, no outside distractions and a minimizing of allergy problems.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

Internal Revenue Service

Editors note: This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q — I gave my wife a fur coat for Christmas. Can I deduct the excise tax I had to pay on it whe nI itemize my deductions?

A — No. Federal excise taxes are not deductible. However, any state or local general sales tax you paid on the purchase of the coat can be deducted.

Q — My wife and I are filing separate returns. In the instruction book are tables showing what the tax will be for those who take the 10 per cent standard deduction and those who take the new minimum standard deduction. I do better with the minimum standard deduction table while my wife does better with the 10 per cent standard deduction table. Can we each use the one which benefits us most?

A — The law on this says that when couples file separate returns, they must handle their deductions the same way. In other words, if one takes the 10 per cent standard deduction so must the other. If one takes the minimum standard deduction so must the other. Therefore, you must both use the same table.

This also applies for those who itemize deductions. If a husband itemized so must his wife when separate returns are filled.

Q — Under the nex tax law, will Internal Revenue still figure the tax for you when the card form, 1040A, is filed?

A — Yes, we will if your income is under $5,000.

However, if you are a married individual filing separately, we are required by law to use the 10 per cent standard deduction when figuring your tax. If using the new minimum standard deduction will be to your advantage, be sure to figure out your own tax this year.

Q — I am a college student. To cover the expenses of my room and board, I work in the school cafeteria. I receive no money for my work, just get my room and board paid for. Is there any tax liability for me?

A — The value of the room and board you receive should be handled as compensation to you for personal services. If this value amounted to $600 or more last year, you must file a tax return even if you had no other source of income. There are situations, however, where meals and lodging are furnished for the convenience of the employer, and in these situations no taxable income results.

Q — I sold my home last year and my wife and I are moving to Florida next month. We are over 65. Doesn't the new tax law remove any income tax on the proceeds from this sale?

A — Under certain conditions it does.

There is no tax to pay if you sold the house for $20,000 or less provided that you were 65 years of age on the date of the sale and you owned and occupied the house as your principal residence for at least five of the last eight years preceding the sale. You must make an election to exclude your gain from income, and only one such elections can be made by a taxpayer during his lifetime.

If you sold the house for more than $20,000 and you qualify for the special tax treatment described above, then only a percentage of your profits will be taxable. This percentage is figured by taking the adjusted sales price of the house (what you received minus certain expenses of fixing up the house in order to sell it) and comparing the $20,000 figure to it. If the adjusted sales price was $30,000 then the ratio would be $20,000 to $30,000 or two-thirds of whatever profits you realized will be tax free if you so elect. Also, tax on part of the remaining gain may be postponed if you purchase a new home.

Q — I am a widow .Last year I was able to deduct $600 as child care expenses for the care of my two little girls while I went to work. Can I deduct any more than this year under the new law? My expenses are higher than what I was allowed to deduct last year.

Phrasings

BY MORRIS FRASER

Abe, Walsh and Trotters

During a potpurri of chatter Tuesday, Ed McGuire, publicity man for the hither-to-come Harlem Globetrotters, gave this advice to a young sportswriter.

"Don't ever give up your enthusiasm for sports. Once you do, your work will never be any good."

ED McGUIRE
Superfluous Job

McGuire lives up to this maxim. The former Chicago American sportswriter can keep a listener so engrosse in tales of boxing, personalities and of course basketball a la Globetrotter, that a ham dinner can disappear unnoticed and untasted. tasted.

McGuire is the vanguard of the 39th edition of the "Magicians of Basketball." His job is to indoctrinate publicity media into the well-known joys of Abe Saperstein's cage wizardry, and if a doctor could inject penecillin with equal facility, this world would be a less painful place in which to live.

McGuire has been spreading the word for just a few years, one of four rovers who extol Harlem's most famous sons. He is not reluctant in the least to discuss one of his predecessers, Tommy Walsh, one of the more colorful tub-thumpers in old, started work for the Globetrotters in the late 1940's. Abe Marylander, local promoter, recalls Walsh's great memory.

"Walsh and I had promoted a couple of boys in a boxing match way back in the '20s. Time passed and one day Walsh walks into my office, but I don't remember said, 'I remember you from somewhere.' I said, 'If you do, it's gotta be from Colorado, because I haven't been out of the state.'

"We talk for a while and he mentions some of the boxers he's promoted. That's when I remember him, but he already knew he had seen me somewhere."

McGuire took over for another story concerning Walsh and the late Doc Kearns, king of promoters.

"On Derby Eve in Louisville, they had boxing matches. [illegible] in Mick[illegible] Walk[illegible] someone. But the other guy backed out shortly before the fight. Kearns called Walsh and wanted him to dig up another fighter.

"Walsh said he had a Pole who could hit hard but that was about all. Kearns said bring him, he would be better than nothing.

"So the two boys climb into the ring and the Pole floored Walker, who was light-heavyweight champ. The bell saved Walker that time. The same thing happened the next round. The Pole decked Walker, but he was saved by the bell.

"In the third round Walker got hit again, only this time the bell wasn't going to save him—too much time left. Walsh was pretty pleased about this when he looked up and there was Kearns across the ring hitting the bell to end the round."

McGuire tooted the horns of the old Chicgo Cardinals of the National Football League and later was publicty man for the short-lived American Basketball League.

"Abe Saperstein helped that league quite a bit," McGuire said as he got down to the duties of promoting. "He introduced the three-point basket, which one California conference still uses.

"And Abe has another idea which would be great for basketball.

"Now if a basketball player is under 6-4, the pros won't even look at him. Abe believes there are a lot of good players who just don't have the height to make it in the pros.

"Well, Abe would like to see three or four pro leagues to accomodate more players, but he has another idea for all leagues.

"He would like to move the basket out 15 feet from the end line, instead of the three feet which it now is. And he'd take off the backboard, so you could shoot from all around the basket. That way the ball would bounce any direction and you eliminate a lot of the reason for having tall men.

"The little guy can get the rebound and move out quicker, because he's faster and generally a better ball-handler. And with the baskets closer together you get rid of a lot of that dead space in the middle of the court."

The Globetrotters are, of course, well-known all over the world. McGuire's job of promoting them is superfluous. But he enjoys it and can create more enthusiasm by dropping names than an ordinary agent can by plugging his team.

"You know that Wilt Chamberlain used to play for the Trotters? Well, every time we're in the area his NBA team is, he does his best to see us. Willie Mays, Ernie Banks—all of them make it a point to see the Trotters."

The Globetrotters are in such demand in Colorado Springs that they have been booked for two nights, Feb. 26-27, in the City Auditorium. Marylander got the double date because of the turn-away crowds in years previous.

"I hope the crowds still have to be turned away," grinned Marylander. "But I also hope more people can see the team this year. That's why we set up two dates."

Heading this edition of the Trotters is Showboat Hall, comic pivot man. Others who will bounce into town are seven-foot Bill Garner, 6-9 Manny Oliver, and 6-8 J. C. Gipson. Others include Murphy Summons, one of the Trotter dribbling aces, Hallie Bryant, player-coach Bobby Milton, Paul Putnam, Mel Davis and Doug Himes.

McGuire denies that any of the Globetrotters' three teams are superior to any other. And he can cite a very good reason to prove his point.

"The players shift around a lot. Gipson may play on all the teams, for instance. It's never static. But all the players are well-matched. If Showboat couldn't perform some night, Gipson might step in as comic. These players are different from the Goose Tatum era. If Goose missed a game, you missed him. Now someone just steps in and takes over."

Besides the basketball game with the New York Nationals, the show will include six acts. Headliner is Peg-Leg Bates, dancer-emcee. Others are trampolinist Steve Parry, acrobat-pantomimist Mike LeMay, finger balancer George Lee, acrobatic juggler Lee Marx and table tennis stars Richard Bergman and Lee Daljoon.

With a lineup like that, one might feel vaudeville really isn't dead. And with an advance man like Ed McGuire, one really wouldn't care if it were—he's a show in himself.

Palmer, Indians Get First Round Victories; Meet in Hockey Finals

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Palmer and Cheyenne Mountain meet tonight in a rematch of last year's high school hockey tournament finals.

The Terrors staved off a tenacious Wasson team Wednesday night, 5-4, and Cheyenne breezed to a 4-0 victory over Fountain Valley. The first round losers will meet for third place at 6:45 p.m. today in the Broadmoor World Arena. The championship game is slated for 8:30 p.m., but probably will start a bit later, due to an awards program between matches.

Last winter Palmer knocked off Cheyenne, 4-2, in the finals to cap a 14-0 season. Neither team is anywhere near a perfect year (both are 9-4), but both showed a better brand of hockey than they had played during the latter part of the regular season.

With Palmer a man short, the T-Birds rapped in a go-ahead goal at 4:25. Hugh Wallnutt took a pass from Mike Johnston and rammed it from the middle under goalie Don Astley's left armpit. But Palmer came back at 7:54 as Andrews shot in a short one and, with tender John Wendt on the ice after the save, Greg Nelson picked up the rebound and put it home.

Cheyenne broke to a quick 1-0 lead with 17 seconds gone on a fluke goal. Doug Heyliger broke alone down the right boards and slapped a 45-foot shot directly at all-league goalie Torney Smith. The puck took a bad hop off Smith's stick and jumped into the net.

Center Jeff Thatcher, the league's outstanding player skating on the No. 2 line, pulled out Cheyenne's third goal with 5:01 elapsed in the second stanza. Defenseman Dave Guy shoved a puck through the legs of a Fountain Valley player and Thatcher picked it up in mid-ice. Thatcher rushed in on goal and nailed the puck to the cords over Smith's leg.

Malcolm Moore ended the scoring at 7:22 after a neat bit of skating by Thatcher. The Indian center raced down ice with the puck, vaulted a defenseman's skate and roared goalward. Moore was stationed in the middle, took the pass and rammed it home.

Fountain Valley pressed for a face-saving goal in the third period and gave the Indian defense some trouble. But only four shots could get past the Indian blockade and Sandy Dee gained his fourth shutout of the season.

Fountain Valley brought up heavyweight winger Lee Bartholomew to play this game as Tim Boddington was out with an injury. The Danes lost forward David Low with a shoulder separation. Mark Von Engeln, another injured Dane, returned to the ice Wednesday.

Report of College Cage Fix Rekindles Scandal Rumors

NEW YORK (AP) — Disclosure of fix charges involving the Seattle University - Idaho game of last Jan. 22 caused apprehension today that a new widespread college basketball gambling scandal may be uncovered.

If so, it would be the fourth fix scandal to shake college basketball in 20 years.

Charlie Williams, the captain and higher scorer of the Seattle University team and his teammate, Peller Phillips Jr., were arrested at their Seattle homes Wednesday night by the Federal Burau of Investigation. Each is 21 and a senior.

The FBI also announced that Leo Casale, 24, a Chicago tavern owner, was taken into custody in Chicago.

The FBI charged that they "did conspire with each other to carry into effect a scheme or plan in commerce to influence a sporting contest by bribery." The FBI gave no further details.

Williams and Phillips were released in $1,000 bail each at their arraignment before U.S. Commissioner Walter Reseburg, Jr. for a hearing March 1. Casale is to be arraigned before a U.S. Commissioner in Chicago today. If convicted, they face a possible five-year prison term and $10,000 fine or both.

The first scandal in the sport came in January, 1945, the second in February, 1951 and the third in March, 1961.

Numerous star players, including some All-America choices, from many major schools were indicted on charges of having conspired to throw games or shave points.

The 1945 scandal involved five Brooklyn College players who admitted they accepted bribes to throw their game with Akron scheduled for Jan. 31, 1945 at Boston Garden. The District Attorney of Kings County, N.Y., disclosed the fix on Jan. 29 and the game was immediately canceled.

In February, 1951, the collegiate world was shocked by the disclosure that three star players for City College of New York had been arrested for accepting bribes. At the time, CCNY was the kingpin in college basketball having won the 1950 national collegiate title and the NIT tournament in an unprecedented grand slam.

In the end, evidence from the office of Frank Hogan, New York District Attorney, showed that between 1947-50, 86 games had been fixed at Madison Square Garden and in arenas in 22 other cities in 17 states by 32 players on 7 teams including such basketball powers as the University of Kentucky and Bradley University.

In March, 1961, Hogan's office disclosed another scandal that before it was over involved 37 players from 22 major colleges. Hogan's evidence showed that the players accepted money from so-called bribe masters of some $750 to $4,450 to fix games.

Jack Molinas was tried on a charge of conspiring to fix 25 games in the 1961 scandal. He was convicted as was Salvatore Sollazzo on a similar charge arising from the 1951 scandal.

White, Bigos and Smith confessed to taking $18,500 in bribes to fix seven games. Layne got $2,890 and the others amounts from $750 to $5,000.

"I'll never be able to figure out why we did it," Groza said in an interview several years ago. "Guess we got caught up in the (post-war) times. . .it was being done by other teams. . .so we went along."

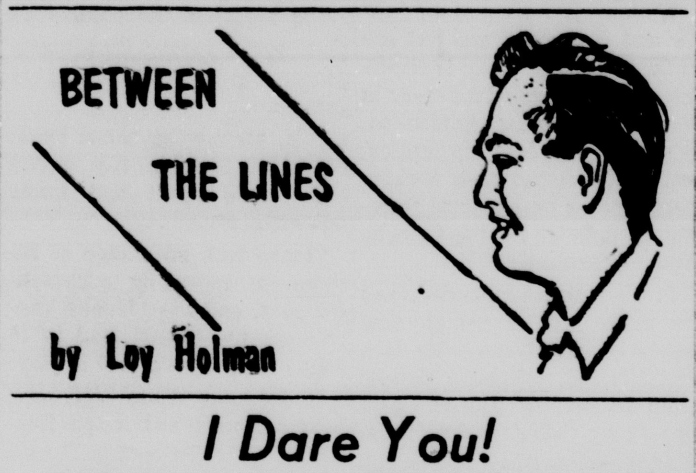
BETWEEN THE LINES

by Loy Holman



I Dare You!

In the hey day of Ohio Stat football, when Hopalong Cassidy and his teammates were tearing up the turf of the Big Ten and the whole country, the guy wheeling and dealing at quarterback of that great team was Dave Leggett.

Legett, now an Air Force captain stationed at Ent AFB here in the Springs, was the one who was running the show on the field for Woodie Hayes' marauding band of Buckeyes. In their age of "three yards and a cloud of dust," he was in on some of the most brutal ball that has ever been played.

This is only to point out that Leggett has come through a school of hard knocks at one time or another, and is not easily moved emotionally. On the other hand, he has been rubbing elbows for years with many of the world's top athletes and he has a deep feeling about sports, those who play the game, and the affects athletics can have on young men and women.

"Knowing him as I do, I'm sure he means every word," Leggett said. "And when I first read this I could almost feel tears coming because of sincerity."

With that, I felt it worthy to reprint in this space a letter written by Clif Cushman, one of this country's fine trackmen. It was originally intended for the youth of Grand Forks, N.D. this fall, but it could well have been directed toward every aspiring athlete in the land.

Besides through athletics, there is a connection between Cushman and Legett in that both are serving in the Air Force. It was Leggett who brought the written thoughts of Cushman to our attention.

The letter is as follows:

"Don't feel sorry for me. I feel sorry for some of you!

"You may have seen the U.S. Olympic Trails on television recently. If so, you watched me hit the fifth hurdle, fall and lie on the track in an inglorious heap of skinned elbows, bruised hips, torn knees, and injured pride, unsuccessful in my attempt to make the Olympic Team for the second time.

"In a split second all the many years of training, pain, sweat, blisters and agony of running were simply and irrevocably wiped out. But I tried! I would much rather fail knowing I had put forth an honest effort than never to have tried at all.

"This is not to say that everyone is capable of making the Olympic Team. However, each of you is capable of trying to make your own personal "Olympic Team," whether it be the high school football team, the glee club, the honor roll, or whatever your goal may be. Unless your reach exceeds your grasp, how can you be sure what you can attain?

"And don't you think there are things better than cigarettes, hot - rod cars, school drop-outs, excessive make-up, and duck-tail grease-cuts?

"Over 15 years ago I saw a star—first place in the Olympic Games. I literally started to run after it. In 1960 I came within three yards of grabbing it; this year I stumbled, fell and watched it recede four more years away.

"Certainly, I was very disappointed in falling flat on my face. However, there is nothing I can do about it now but get up, pick the cinders from my wounds, and take one more step followed by one more and one more, until the steps turn into miles and the miles into success.

"I know I may never make it. The odds are against me but I have something in my favor—desire and faith. From the Bible in Romans 5:3-5 has always been an inspirational meaning to me in this regard. '. . . we rejoice in our suffering knowing that suffering produces endurance, and endurance produces character, and character produces hope, and hope does not disappoint us . . . ' at least I am going to try.

"How about you? Would a little extra effort on your part bring up your grade average? Would you have a better chance to make the football team if you stayed an extra 15 minutes after practice and worked on you blocking?

"Let me tell you something about yourselves. You are taller and heavier than any past generation in this country. You are spending more money, enjoying more freedom, and driving more cars than ever before, yet many of you are very unhappy.

"Some of you have never known the satisfaction of doing you best in sports, the joy of excelling in class, the wonderful feeling of completing a job, any job, and looking back on it knowing that you have done your best.

"I dare you to have your hair cut and not wilt under the comments of your so-called friends. I dare you to clean up your language. I dare you to honor your father and mother. I dare you to go to church without having to be compelled to so so by your parents.

"I dare you to unselfishly help someone less fortunate than yourself and enjoy the wonderful feeling that goes with it. I dare you to become physically fit. I dare you to read a book that is not required in school. I dare you to look up at the stars, not down at the mud, and set your sights on one of them that, up to now, you thought unattainable.

"There is plenty of room at the top, but no room for anyone to sit down.

"Who knows? You may be surprised at what you can achieve with sincere effort. So get up, pick the cinders out of your wounds and take one more step.

"I dare you!"

CC Cage Star Breaks Ankle Bone

Coach Leon "Red" Eastlack of Colorado College said Wednesday that basketball star, Phil LeCuyer, suffered a bone fracture in his ankle during the Colorado Mines game at Golden Tuesday night.

LeCuyer, a former all-state player at Greeley High School, had joined the Tigers for the first time since coming to CC in late December and had quickly turned into one of the team's top performers. Tuesday, he had scored 11 of CC's first 16 points and was leading a strong Tiger effort when he was felled with what appeared to be an ankle sprain just seconds before the end of the first half. It was discovered Wednesday that the bone had been broken.

The Tigers, obviously without LeCuyer, will conclude their season this weekend in a pair of games with Doane College of Crete, Neb. at the City Auditorium.

Sam Peshut Leads AFA Past Regis

DENVER—With clear-cut control of the rebounding, the Air Force Academy shot their way to an easy 79-56 victory over Regis College here Wednesday night before a slim crowd of about 1,000 in the Regis Fieldhouse.

The Falcons hit 50 per cent of their shots from the floor and held a rebound edge of 57-83, using the latter to keep command of the game after going ahead for good at 12-11 early in the contest.

Sam Peshut, a junior, paced the Falcons with 28 points, including 12 on six straight baskets which put the AFA out of reach midway through the first half. This was the fifth of the last seven games by the Cadets in which Peshut has been the scoring leader, and Wednesdays was a personal career high for him.

Other Air Force leaders were all sophomores, with guard Pete Hugdahl getting 16, center Walt Edgerly 12, and guard Fred Budinger 10 to round out those scoring in double figures for the winners.

Peshut also led the Cadets in rebounding with 15.

Regis was led by 5-10 junior guard Tony Reed with 14 points. Sophomore guard Don Chavez had 13 and forward Jay Coakley had 10.

The loss left de-emphasized Regis with a 5-15 record for the season. Air Force now stands at 8-10 on the year, and the Falcons will next meet Valpariso at the AFA this Saturday night.

Abe, Walsh and Trotters

During a potpurri of chatter Tuesday, Ed McGuire, publicity man for the hither-to-come Harlem Globetrotters, gave this advice to a young sportswriter.

"Don't ever give up your enthusiasm for sports. Once you do, your work will never be any good."

ED McGUIRE
Superfluous Job

McGuire lives up to this maxim. The former Chicago American sportswriter can keep a listener so engrosse in tales of boxing, personalities and of course basketball a la Globetrotter, that a ham dinner can disappear unnoticed and untasted. tasted.

McGuire is the vanguard of the 39th edition of the "Magicians of Basketball." His job is to indoctrinate publicity media into the well-known joys of Abe Saperstein's cage wizardry, and if a doctor could inject penecillin with equal facility, this world would be a less painful place in which to live.

McGuire has been spreading the word for just a few years, one of four rovers who extol Harlem's most famous sons. He is not reluctant in the least to discuss one of his predecessers, Tommy Walsh, one of the more colorful tub-thumpers in old, started work for the Globetrotters in the late 1940's. Abe Marylander, local promoter, recalls Walsh's great memory.

Walsh, now a spry 83 years Trotter history.

"Walsh and I had promoted a couple of boys in a boxing match way back in the '20s. Time passed and one day Walsh walks into my office, but I don't remember said, 'I remember you from somewhere.' I said, 'If you do, it's gotta be from Colorado, because I haven't been out of the state.'

"We talk for a while and he mentions some of the boxers he's promoted. That's when I remember him, but he already knew he had seen me somewhere."

McGuire took over for another story concerning Walsh and the late Doc Kearns, king of promoters.

"On Derby Eve in Louisville, they had boxing matches. [illegible] in [illegible] Walk- [illegible] someone, but the other guy backed out shortly before the fight. Kearns called Walsh and wanted him to dig up another fighter.

"Walsh said he had a Pole who could hit hard but that was about all. Kearns said bring him, he would be better than nothing.

"So the two boys climb into the ring and the Pole floored Walker, who was light-heavyweight champ. The bell saved Walker that time. The same thing happened the next round. The Pole decked Walker, but he was saved by the bell.

"In the third round Walker got hit again, only this time the bell wasn't going to save him—too much time left. Walsh was pretty pleased about this when he looked up and there was Kearns across the ring hitting the bell to end the round."

McGuire tooted the horns of the old Chiago Cardinals of the National Football League and later was publicity man for the short-lived American Basketball League.

"Abe Saperstein helped that league quite a bit," McGuire said as he got down to the duties of promoting. "He introduced the three-point basket, which one California conference still uses.

"And Abe has another idea which would be great for basketball.

"Now if a basketball player is under 6-4, the pros won't even look at him. Abe believes there are a lot of good players who just don't have the height to make it in the pros.

"Well, Abe would like to see three or four pro leagues to accomodate more players, but he has another idea for all leagues.

"He would like to move the basket out 15 feet from the end line, instead of the three feet which it now is. And he'd take off the backboard, so you could shoot from all around the basket. That way the ball would bounce any direction and you eliminate a lot of the reason for having tall men.

"The little guy can get the rebound and move out quicker, because he's faster and generally a better ball-handler. And with the baskets closer together you get rid of a lot of that dead space in the middle of the court."

The Globetrotters are, of course, well-known all over the world. McGuire's job of promoting them is superfluous. But he enjoys it and can create more enthusiasm by dropping names than an ordinary agent can by plugging his team.

"You know that Wilt Chamberlain used to play for the Trotters? Well, every time we're in the area his NBA team is, he does his best to see us. Willie Mays, Ernie Banks—all of them make it a point to see the Trotters."

The Globetrotters are in such demand in Colorado Springs that they have been booked for two nights, Feb. 26-27, in the City Auditorium. Marylander got the double date because of the turn-away crowds in years previous.

"I hope the crowds still have to be turned away," grinned Marylander. "But I also hope more people can see the team this year. That's why we set up two dates."

Heading this edition of the Trotters is Showboat Hall, comic pivot man. Others who will bounce into town are seven-foot Bill Garner, 6-9 Manny Oliver, and 6-8 J. C. Gipson. Others include Murphy Summons, one of the Trotter dribbling aces, Hallie Bryant, player-coach Bobby Milton, Paul Putnam, Mel Davis and Doug Himes.

McGuire denies that any of the Globetrotters' three teams are superior to any other. And he can cite a very good reason to prove his point.

"The players shift around a lot. Gipson may play on all the teams, for instance. It's never static. But all the players are well-matched. If Showboat couldn't perform some night, Gipson might step in as comic. These players are different from the Goose Tatum era. If Goose missed a game, you missed him. Now someone just steps in and takes over."

Besides the basketball game with the New York Nationals, the show will include six acts. Headliner is Peg-Leg Bates, dancer-emcee. Others are trampolinist Steve Parry, acrobat-pantomimist Mike LeMay, finger balancer George Lee, acrobatic juggler Lee Marx and table tennis stars Richard Bergman and Lee Daljoon.

With a lineup like that, one might feel vaudeville really isn't dead. And with an advance man like Ed McGuire, one really wouldn't care if it were—he's a show in himself.

Palmer, Indians Get First Round Victories; Meet in Hockey Finals

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Palmer and Cheyenne Mountain meet tonight in a rematch of last year's high school hockey tournament finals.

The Terrors staved off a tenacious Wasson team Wednesday night, 5-4, and Cheyenne breezed to a 4-0 victory over Fountain Valley. The first round losers will meet for third place at 6:45 p.m. today in the Broadmoor World Arena. The championship game is slated for 8:30 p.m., but probably will start a bit later, due to an awards program between matches.

Last winter Palmer knocked off Cheyenne, 4-2, in the finals to cap a 14-0 season. Neither team is anywhere near a perfect year (both are 9-4), but both showed a better brand of hockey than they had played during the latter part of the regular season.

With Palmer a man short, the T-Birds rapped in a go-ahead goal at 4:25. Hugh Wallnutt took a pass from Mike Johnston and rammed it from the middle under goalie Don Astley's left armpit. But Palmer came back at 7:54 as Andrews shot in a short one and, with tender John Wendt on the ice after the save, Greg Nelson picked up the rebound and put it home.

Cheyenne broke to a quick 1-0 lead with 17 seconds gone on a fluke goal. Doug Heyliger broke alone down the right boards and slapped a 45-foot shot directly at all-league goalie Torney Smith. The puck took a bad hop off Smith's stick and jumped into the net.

Center Jeff Thatcher, the league's outstanding player skating on the No. 2 line, pulled out Cheyenne's third goal with 5:01 elapsed in the second stanza. Defenseman Dave Guy shoved a puck through the legs of a Fountain Valley player and Thatcher picked it up in midice. Thatcher rushed in on goal and nailed the puck to the cords over Smith's leg.

Malcolm Moore ended the scoring at 7:22 after a neat bit of skating by Thatcher. The Indian center raced down ice with the puck, vaulted a defenseman's skate and roared goalward. Moore was stationed in the middle, took the pass and rammed it home.

Fountain Valley pressed for a face-saving goal in the third period and gave the Indian defense some trouble. But only four shots could get past the Indian blockade and Sandy Dee gained his fourth shutout of the season.

Fountain Valley brought up heavyweight winger Lee Bartholomew to play this game as Tim Boddington was out with an injury. The Danes lost forward David Low with a shoulder separation. Mark Von Engeln, another injured Dane, returned to the ice Wednesday.

Report of College Cage Fix Rekindles Scandal Rumors

NEW YORK (AP) — Disclosure of fix charges involving the Seattle University - Idaho game of last Jan. 22 caused apprehension today that a new widespread college basketball gambling scandal may be uncovered.

If so, it would be the fourth fix scandal to shake college basketball in 20 years.

Charlie Williams, the captain and higher scorer of the Seattle University team and his teammate, Peller Phillips Jr., were arrested at their Seattle homes Wednesday night by the Federal Burau of Investigation. Each is 21 and a senior.

The FBI also announced that Leo Casale, 24, a Chicago tavern owner, was taken into custody in Chicago.

The FBI charged that they "did conspire with each other to carry into effect a scheme or plan in commerce to influence a sporting contest by bribery." The FBI gave no further details.

Williams and Phillips were released in $1,000 bail each at their arraignment before U.S. Commissioner Walter Reseburg, Jr. for a hearing March 1. Casale is to be arraigned before a U.S. Commissioner in Chicago today. If convicted, they face a possible five-year prison term and $10,000 fine or both.

The first scandal in the sport came in January, 1945, the second in February, 1951 and the third in March, 1961.

Numerous star players, including some All-America choices, from many major schools were indicted on charges of having conspired to throw games or shave points.

The 1945 scandal involved five Brooklyn College players who admitted they accepted bribes to throw their game with Akron scheduled for Jan. 31, 1945 at Boston Garden. The District Attorney of Kings County, N.Y., disclosed the fix on Jan. 29 and the game was immediately canceled.

In February, 1951, the collegiate world was shocked by the disclosure that three star players for City College of New York had been arrested for accepting bribes. At the time, CCNY was the kingpin in college basketball having won the 1950 national collegiate title and the NIT tournament in an unprecedented grand slam.

In the end, evidence from the office of Frank Hogan, New York District Attorney, showed that between 1947-50, 86 games had been fixed at Madison Square Garden and in arenas in 22 other cities in 17 states by 32 players on 7 teams including such basketball powers as the University of Kentucky and Bradley University.

In March, 1961, Hogan's office disclosed another scandal that before it was over involved 37 players from 22 major colleges. Hogan's evidence showed that the players accepted money from so-called bribe masters of some $750 to $4,450 to fix games.

Jack Molinas was tried on a charge of conspiring to fix 25 games in the 1961 scandal. He was convicted as was Salvatore Sollazzo on a similar charge arising from the 1951 scandal.

White, Bigos and Smith confessed to taking $18,500 in bribes to fix seven games. Layne got $2,890 and the others amounts from $750 to $5,000.

"I'll never be able to figure out why we did it," Groza said in an interview several years ago. "Guess we got caught up in the (post-war) times. . .it was being done by other teams. . .so we went along."

In the hey day of Ohio Stat football, when Hopalong Cassidy and his teammates were tearing up the turf of the Big Ten and the whole country, the guy wheeling and dealing at quarterback of that great team was Dave Leggett.

Legett, now an Air Force captain stationed at Ent AFB here in the Springs, was the one who was running the show on the field for Woodie Hayes' marauding band of Buckeyes. In their age of "three yards and a cloud of dust," he was in on some of the most brutal ball that has ever been played.

This is only to point out that Leggett has come through a school of hard knocks at one time or another, and is not easily moved emotionally. On the other hand, he has been rubbing elbows for years with many of the world's top athletes and he has a deep feeling about sports, those who play the game, and the affects athletics can have on young men and women.

"Knowing him as I do, I'm sure he means every word," Leggett said. "And when I first read this I could almost feel tears coming because of sincerity."

With that, I felt it worthy to reprint in this space a letter written by Clif Cushman, one of this country's fine trackmen. It was originally intended for the youth of Grand Forks, N.D. this fall, but it could well have been directed toward every aspiring athlete in the land.

Besides through athletics, there is a connection between Cushman and Legett in that both are serving in the Air Force. It was Leggett who brought the written thoughts of Cushman to our attention.

The letter is as follows:

"Don't feel sorry for me. I feel sorry for some of you!

"You may have seen the U.S. Olympic Trails on television recently. If so, you watched me hit the fifth hurdle, fall and lie on the track in an inglorious heap of skinned elbows, bruised hips, torn knees, and injured pride, unsuccessful in my attempt to make the Olympic Team for the second time.

"In a split second all the many years of training, pain, sweat, blisters and agony of running were simply and irrevocably wiped out. But I tried! I would much rather fail knowing I had put forth an honest effort than never to have tried at all.

"This is not to say that everyone is capable of making the Olympic Team. However, each of you is capable of trying to make your own personal "Olympic Team," whether it be the high school football team, the glee club, the honor roll, or whatever your goal may be. Unless your reach exceeds your grasp, how can you be sure what you can attain?

"And don't you think there are things better than cigarettes, hot-rod cars, school drop-outs, excessive make-up, and duck-tail grease-cuts?

"Over 15 years ago I saw a star—first place in the Olympic Games. I literally started to run after it. In 1960 I came within three yards of grabbing it; this year I stumbled, fell and watched it recede four more years away.

"Certainly, I was very disappointed in falling flat on my face. However, there is nothing I can do about it now but get up, pick the cinders from my wounds, and take one more step followed by one more and one more, until the steps turn into miles and the miles into success.

"I know I may never make it. The odds are against me but I have something in my favor—desire and faith. From the Bible in Romans 5:3-5 has always been an inspirational meaning to me in this regard. '. . . we rejoice in our suffering knowing that suffering produces endurance, and endurance produces character, and character produces hope, and hope does not disappoint us . . . ' at least I am going to try.

"How about you? Would a little extra effort on your part bring up your grade average? Would you have a better chance to make the football team if you stayed an extra 15 minutes after practice and worked on you blocking?

"Let me tell you something about yourselves. You are taller and heavier than any past generation in this country. You are spending more money, enjoying more freedom, and driving more cars than ever before, yet many of you are very unhappy.

"Some of you have never known the satisfaction of doing you best in sports, the joy of excelling in class, the wonderful feeling of completing a job, any job, and looking back on it knowing that you have done your best.

"I dare you to have your hair cut and not wilt under the comments of your so-called friends. I dare you to clean up your language. I dare you to honor your father and mother. I dare you to go to church without having to be compelled to so so by your parents.

"I dare you to unselfishly help someone less fortunate than yourself and enjoy the wonderful feeling that goes with it. I dare you to become physically fit. I dare you to read a book that is not required in school. I dare you to look up at the stars, not down at the mud, and set your sights on one of them that, up to now, you thought unattainable.

"There is plenty of room at the top, but no room for anyone to sit down.

"Who knows? You may be surprised at what you can achieve with sincere effort. So get up, pick the cinders out of your wounds and take one more step.

"I dare you!"

CC Cage Star Breaks Ankle Bone

Coach Leon "Red" Eastlack of Colorado College said Wednesday that basketball star, Phil LeCuyer, suffered a bone fracture in his ankle during the Colorado Mines game at Golden Tuesday night.

LeCuyer, a former all-state player at Greeley High School, had joined the Tigers for the first time since coming to CC in late December and had quickly turned into one of the team's top performers. Tuesday, he had scored 11 of CC's first 16 points and was leading a strong Tiger effort when he was felled with what appeared to be an ankle sprain just seconds before the end of the first half. It was discovered Wednesday that the bone had been broken.

The Tigers, obviously without LeCuyer, will conclude their season this weekend in a pair of games with Doane College of Crete, Neb. at the City Auditorium.

Sam Peshut Leads AFA Past Regis

DENVER—With clear-cut control of the rebounding, the Air Force Academy shot their way to an easy 79-56 victory over Regis College here Wednesday night before a slim crowd of about 1,000 in the Regis Fieldhouse.

The Falcons hit 50 per cent of their shots from the floor and held a rebound edge of 57-83, using the latter to keep command of the game after going ahead for good at 12-11 early in the contest.

Sam Peshut, a junior, paced the Falcons with 28 points, including 12 on six straight baskets which put the AFA out of reach midway through the first half. This was the fifth of the last seven games by the Cadets in which Peshut has been the scoring leader, and Wednesdays was a personal career high for him.

Other Air Force leaders were all sophomores, with guard Pete Hugdahl getting 16, center Walt Edgerly 12, and guard Fred Budinger 10 to round out those scoring in double figures for the winners.

Peshut also led the Cadets in rebounding with 15.

Regis was led by 5-10 junior guard Tony Reed with 14 points. Sophomore guard Don Chavez had 13 and forward Jay Coakley had 10.

The loss left de-emphasized Regis with a 5-15 record for the season. Air Force now stands at 8-10 on the year, and the Falcons will next meet Valpariso at the AFA this Saturday night.

Two Seattle Cagers Up On Bribery Charges

SEATTLE (AP) — Two Seattle University basketball stars and a Chicago tavern owner were arrested Wednesday night on bribery conspiracy charges involving a game with the University of Idaho.

Charlie Williams, captain of the Chieftains; a teammate, Peller Phillips, and Leo Casale, 24, of Chicago, were arrested in connection with the Jan. 22 game in Seattle. Casale was arrested in Chicago.

Seattle won the game 89-72.

Williams and Phillips were arraigned Wednesday night, and U.S. Commissioner Walter Reseburg Jr. released them on $1,000 bond each. The two Seattle players asked for a preliminary hearing, which Reseburg set for 4:30 p.m. EST March 1.

Casale is to be arraigned today in Chicago, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said.

The charge against Casale and the two 21-year-old Seattle University seniors is "that they did conspire with each other to carry into effect a scheme or plan in conspire to influence a sporting contest by bribery." The FBI said the maximum penalty is a $10,000 fine or five years in prison or both.

Williams is the son of a minister and is married and has one child. His major study is sociology, and he planned a career in social work after graduation. Seattle U. is a Jesuit institution, and Williams has been working part time as an assistant recreational director for the Catholic Youth Organization.

Phillips also is married, and his major studies are physical education and history. He is a fast 5-foot-10, 167-pound student from Detroit, by way of Coalinga Junior College in California.

Williams, a 6-foot, 154-pounder, was born in Colorado Springs, Colo., and played at Stadium High School in Tacoma. He is Seattle's high scorer, averaging 20 points per game and has been prominently mentioned as a contender for All-America honors.

Williams's highest number of points this season was 38 against Duquesne in Pittsburgh, a game Seattle lost 80-74. In the Idaho game, he scored 16 points, and Phillips accounted for eight.

Seattle has won its last 11 games and has an 18-7 season record.

The report of the game carried by the Seattle Post-Intelligencer the morning after the game said:

"SU, after being ahead by 24 points at 65-41 in the second half, came apart and made numerous errors . . ."

"Idaho took advantage of SU turnovers, caused by lackadaisical play, and the (Idaho) Vandals cut the Chiefs' lead to 16 points at 70-54 with 7:40 to play.

"Substitutes Elzie Johnson., Rick Mathews and Ralph Heyward boosted the lead to 21 with three minutes to play."

Idaho Coach Jim Goddard said Wednesday night in Spokane where his team and Gonzaga met, that about all he could recall of the Idaho-Seattle U. game was his team's performance.

"We got far behind in the first half," Goddard said, "and had so much work to do I really didn't pay much attention to what the other team was doing.

"We did catch up quite a bit at times, but we were pressing and hustling better, and I just thought it was a good job by Idaho."

Williams could not be reached for comment, and Phillips's wife said he would have no statement to make.

Eddie O'Brien., athletic director and a former basketball star for Seattle, said both boys were suspended from the team and the university for "admittedly having knowledge of a bribe attempt and for failing to report it."

But O'Brien added: "We're not judging them. That's not our business."

O'Brien said his first word of the investigation came Wednesday morning from FBI agents who interviewed SU players during the day.

Milnes said officials of the university cooperated fully in the investigation.

Don Wood, publicity representative for SU, said both players were expelled from the school for not reporting the alleged incident.

Coaches and other officials at Seattle were not available for comment. The FBI said they promised full cooperation with authorities.

Six Local Wrestlers Among Field As State Tournament Opens Tonight

By TOM CUSHMAN

Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

DENVER — Colorado Springs will have a six member team from two different schools as its representation in the first round of the Division I State Wrestling Tournament which opens tonight at the Auditorium-Arena in downtown Denver.

Opening matches are to get underway at 6 p.m. on four mats and first night competition is expected to run about four hours. The final three rounds of action, plus consolation matches, are to be spread out over Friday and Saturday with the finals scheduled for Saturday evening.

Only one district champion will be representing the local area at Denver but five others who qualified either by winning second place or defeating second place finishers in comeback matches will also be making a run at state championships.

Yogi Grancourt, who advanced to the quarter-finals a year ago, is expected to be the top contender from the local area. The Wasson star, who has an 18-1 record this season, was an all-state football player during the fall and has lost only to Carl Cox Jr. of Grand Junction while wrestling in the 165 pound class this winter.

The powerful Grandcourt, who can count nine pins among his 18 triumphs, will meet Hersh McGraw of Fort Collins in the first round. Grandcourt already owns two victories over the Collins' wrestler this year, pinning him in a dual meet early in the season and defeating him 6-2 in a quadrangular tournament at Wasson in early January.

If Grandcourt should advance through the first two rounds, he would possibly again face his lone conqueror. Cox, one of the stars of another outstanding Grand Junction team, opens against Mark Thompson of Jefferson and will be heavily favored to move into the semis.

In the 103 pound class Wasson will be represented by Terry Remy, the runner-up in that division in the district tournament last week. Remy has a rugged opening chore however as he faces Gil Espinoza of Boulder in the first round. Espinoza was the state champion in the 95 pound class last winter.

Archie Martinez of Wasson, who won his trip with a tremendous come-from-behind triumph in overtime in a comeback match at the Palmer Gymnasium Monday afternoon, will meet LeRoy Rose of Denver Manual in the first round of the 127 pound class. Rose was the Denver League champ. And Rick Clark, who posted an impressive 9-1 win over Ben Casaus of Pueblo Central in a Monday comeback match, wil go against Gale Eaton of Englewood in the 154 pound division. Eaton was one of the Colorado wrestlers chosen on the all-opponent team by the Japanese All-Stars who were here last month.

Air Academy High contributes the other two grapplers to the Colorado springs contingent. Arne Arneson, son of the Air Force Academy track coach, qualified in the 112 pound division at the District One tournament at Littleton last weekend by taking second place. He will have a rough first round opponent in Ernie Uliberra of Montrose, the champion of the Western Slope District which is generally regarded as the stronghold of the sport in Colorado.

The Academy's other representative is John Parsons, who won a berth in the 145 pound division by capturing a comeback match victory Monday at Littleton. He is scheduled to go against Bob Leisk of Denver Thomas Jefferson in the first round tonight.

The only other Will Rogers League school that has qualified members for the trip to Denver is conference champion, Canon City. The Tigers will have one of the tournament's favorites in Tom Firestack who will open his bid in the heavyweight division against Jim Robertson of Alameda. Canon City's Bill Martinez wilt battle Chuck Gecher of Alameda in the 103 pound class, Bill Burnahm of Canon will meet John Aragon of Pueblo East at 138, and the Tigers' Mike Merlino will tackle Ray Pisciotta of Pueblo Central at 145.

Mullen's Upset Gives Bucs New Chance at DPL Title

By CHARLIE DREUX

Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

"Our boys have three things which are vitally important to them and they are working towards that end," St. Mary's head coach related this week and the Pirate basketball mentor indicated that his Buccaneers are far from calling it quits.

Even though St. Mary's succumbed to the current Denver Parochial League pace setters from Regis and Mullen last week. The Bucs faltered against Regis a week ago last Sunday and torrid-scoring Mulen presented St. Mary's with its third DPL loss last Friday.

Their 82-73 loss to Mullen seemed fatal to the Pirates pennant hopes but fate took a hand the following Sunday as upset-minded St. Francis, a team that has been a power in past DPL campaigns, dumped then-once beaten Mullen, 64-62 in overtime. This puts Mullen and Regis in a two-way tie for first place with 12-2 records and gives St. Mary's another possible chance for the championship.

Regis and Mullen are scheduled for a rematch outing Friday and the loser of that contest will deadlock St. Mary's for second place (assuming the Pirates hurdle their Friday opponent, Machebeuf) via 12-3 won-loss records. Both St. Mary's and the loser of the Mullen-Regis game, which is scheduled Friday night at Mullen's gym, will depend upon one of the other DPL teams to knock off the winner and thus, end the championship in a three-way tie between St. Mary's, Regis and Mullen.

After Friday's Mullen-Regis crucial game, the Mustangs face Machebeuf (Sunday), Cathedral (Feb. 26) and winless Mt. Carmel (Feb. 28), while Regis has to get by Annunciation (Sunday) Holy Family (Feb. 26) and St. Joseph's (Feb. 28).

Wright's chargers must surpass Machebeuf (Friday), Annunciation (Sunday), St. Joseph's (Feb. 26) and St. Francis (Feb. 28) to remain in contention for the DPL title.

After dropping two straight conference games to Regis a week ago last Sunday, 44-35, and to high-scoring Mullen by a nine point margin of 82-73, the St. Mary's roundballers bounced back in their next encounter when they romped over Holy Family last Sunday, 68-47. This was the same Holy Family team the Bucs had to rally in overtime before they won the DPL first round tilt, 59-58.

But in the recent contest, the Pirates controled the backboards and took advantage of the ragged and foul-plagued Holy Family, which saw six of its regulars leave the game because of five personal fouls each, and raced to an overwhelming 68-47 decision.

Wright mentioned that his cagers' thinking is threefold: (1) they want the DPL title and haven't given up hopes of sharing the crown in a three way tie; (2) they hope to better the all-time record of victories recorded by St. Mary's 1962 team which won the school's first league title and registered the best record via a 20-2 won-loss record; and (3) they are working towards winning the State Parochial Championship, slated for March 5-7.

This year the State Paroke playoffs will be conducted at the Denver Auditorium Arena for the last two nights, March 6 and March 7. The opening date will pair the eight-team field in single games to be held at four netural sites.

And if the jinx holds ture, which has become tradition that the previous DPL champions have failed to win the State Paroke title, St. Mary's should be a strong contender for this year's championship. Unless fate intercedes for the Pirates to share the title with Mullen and Regis. But regardless of the outcome of the DPL, the Pirates will still be a State contender!

DU Turns Back Top Nodak Team

DENVER (AP) — Denver University fought back from a 4-1 first period deficit to capture a 5-4 decision over front-running North Dakota in a Western Collegiate Association hockey match Wednesday night.

Dennis Hextall, Terry Case Gerry Kell and Bob Stoyko hit for the Nodaks as they almost rushed the Pioneers off the ice in the first period. Don Cameron socked in DU's only tally.

The comeback started at 3:06 of the second period when Jerry Petrie got his first goal on an 18-foot shot. Petrie also scored the winning goal with 1:58 to play.

Jim Ross, a substitute, delivered Denver's tying goal at 3:54 of the third with a fleeting shot that surprised Nodak goalie Joe Lech, who was expecting a bullet that didn't materialize.

Schedule Trouble Cuts AFA Hockey Intended Slate

Because of difficulty in scheduling, the Air Force Academy's ice hockey club has been forced to cut short its season, according to Capt. Ted Beresford, coach of the Falcons.

The Air Force had intended to participate in the Colorado College Winter Carnival this weekend and have another game against the CC Freshman, but these games had to be cancelled because of a lack of sufficient ice time at the Colorado College rink.

During its first year of play, the Falcon club team posted victories over Notre Dame, Colorado's University's club squad and the Aspen Leafs. Losses were to Illinois, CU and last weekend to St. Mary's of Winona, Minn.

Beresford expressed satisfaction with the progress of the team during the season, considering the limited practice time allotted. It is hoped that in the near future the Academy will have a rink of its own and the team will be included on a varsity basis. Plans are being made for a fieldhouse at the AFA which will include an indoor artificial-ice rink.

Tucker Frederickson, Auburn's top ground gainer last season, was chosen No. 1 in the National Football League draft. That's because the New York Giants had first pick and took the 6-foot-2 tailback from Hollywood, Fla. He averaged 4.5 yards on 120 carries.

Two Seattle Cagers Up On Bribery Charges

SEATTLE (AP) — Two Seattle University basketball stars and a Chicago tavern owner were arrested Wednesday night on bribery conspiracy charges involving a game with the University of Idaho.

Charlie Williams, captain of the Chieftains; a teammate, Peller Phillips, and Leo Casale, 24, of Chicago, were arrested in connection with the Jan. 22 game in Seattle. Casale was arrested in Chicago.

Seattle won the game 89-72.

Williams and Phillips were arraigned Wednesday night, and U.S. Commissioner Walter Reseburg Jr. released them on $1,000 bond each. The two Seattle players asked for a preliminary hearing, which Reseburg set for 4:30 p.m. EST March 1.

Casale is to be arraigned today in Chicago, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said.

The charge against Casale and the two 21-year-old Seattle University seniors is "that they did conspire with each other to carry into effect a scheme or plan in conspire to influence a sporting contest by bribery." The FBI said the maximum penalty is a $10,000 fine or five years in prison or both.

Williams is the son of a minister and is married and has one child. His major study is sociology, and he planned a career in social work after graduation. Seattle U. is a Jesuit institution, and Williams has been working part time as an assistant recreational director for the Catholic Youth Organization.

Phillips also is married, and his major studies are physical education and history. He is a fast 5-foot-10, 167-pound student from Detroit, by way of Coalinga Junior College in California.

Williams, a 6-foot, 154-pounder, was born in Colorado Springs, Colo., and played at Stadium High School in Tacoma. He is Seattle's high scorer, averaging 20 points per game and has been prominently mentioned as a contender for All-America honors.

Williams's highest number of points this season was 38 against Duquesne in Pittsburgh, a game Seattle lost 80-74. In the Idaho game, he scored 16 points, and Phillips accounted for eight.

Seattle has won its last 11 games and has an 18-7 season record.

The report of the game carried by the Seattle Post-Intelligencer the morning after the game said:

"SU, after being ahead by 24 points at 65-41 in the second half, came apart and made numerous errors . . ."

"Idaho took advantage of SU turnovers, caused by lackadaisical play, and the (Idaho) Vandals cut the Chiefs' lead to 16 points at 70-54 with 7:40 to play.

"Substitutes Elzie Johnson,, Rick Mathews and Ralph Heyward boosted the lead to 21 with three minutes to play."

Idaho Coach Jim Goddard said Wednesday night in Spokane where his team and Gonzaga met, that about all he could recall of the Idaho-Seattle U. game was his team's performance.

"We got far behind in the first half," Goddard said, "and had so much work to do I really didn't pay much attention to what the other team was doing.

"We did catch up quite a bit at times, but we were pressing and hustling better, and I just thought it was a good job by Idaho."

Williams could not be reached for comment, and Phillips's wife said he would have no statement to make.

Eddie O'Brien., athletic director and a former basketball star for Seattle, said both boys were suspended from the team and the university for "admittedly having knowledge of a bribe attempt and for failing to report it."

But O'Brien added: "We're not judging them. That's not our business."

O'Brien said his first word of the investigation came Wednesday morning from FBI agents who interviewed SU players during the day.

Milnes said officials of the university cooperated fully in the investigation.

Don Wood, publicity representative for SU, said both players were expelled from the school for not reporting the alleged incident.

Coaches and other officials at Seattle were not available for comment. The FBI said they promised full cooperation with authorities.

In the above photo are four Wasson representatives, (from left), Terry Remy, who competes in the 103 pound class; Archie Martinez, who will wrestle at 127; Rick Clark, who wrestles at 154; and Yogi Grandcourt, the district champion at 165 and one of the top favorites in that division. In the photo at right are (from left), Arne Arneson, who will compete in the 112 pound class, and John Parsons, who is entered at 145. Both are from Air Academy High School. Six Local Wrestlers Among Field As State Tournament Opens Tonight

Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

DENVER — Colorado Springs will have a six member team from two different schools as its representation in the first round of the Division I State Wrestling Tournament which opens tonight at the Auditorium-Arena in downtown Denver.

Opening matches are to get underway at 6 p.m. on four mats and first night competition is expected to run about four hours. The final three rounds of action, plus consolation matches, are to be spread out over Friday and Saturday with the finals scheduled for Saturday evening.

Only one district champion will be representing the local area at Denver but five others who qualified either by winning second place or defeating second place finishers in comeback matches will also be making a run at state championships.

Yogi Grancourt, who advanced to the quarter-finals a year ago, is expected to be the top contender from the local area. The Wasson star, who has an 18-1 record this season, was an all-state football player during the fall and has lost only to Carl Cox Jr. of Grand Junction while wrestling in the 165 pound class this winter.

The powerful Grandcourt, who can count nine pins among his 18 triumphs, will meet Hersh McGraw of Fort Collins in the first round. Grandcourt already owns two victories over the Collins' wrestler this year, pinning him in a dual meet early in the season and defeating him 6-2 in a quadrangular tournament at Wasson in early January.

If Grandcourt should advance through the first two rounds, he would possibly again face his lone conqueror. Cox, one of the stars of another outstanding Grand Junction team, opens against Mark Thompson of Jefferson and will be heavily favored to move into the semis.

In the 103 pound class Wasson will be represented by Terry Remy, the runner-up in that division in the district tournament last week. Remy has a rugged opening chore however as he faces Gil Espinoza of Boulder in the first round. Espinoza was the state champion in the 95 pound class last winter.

Archie Martinez of Wasson, who won his trip with a tremendous come-from-behind triumph in overtime in a comeback match at the Palmer Gymnasium Monday afternoon, will meet LeRoy Rose of Denver Manual in the first round of the 127 pound class. Rose was the Denver League champ. And Rick Clark, who posted an impressive 9-1 win over Ben Casaus of Pueblo Central in a Monday comeback match, wil go against Gale Eaton of Englewood in the 154 pound division. Eaton was one of the Colorado wrestlers chosen on the all-opponent team by the Japanese All-Stars who were here last month.

Air Academy High contributes the other two grapplers to the Colorado springs contingent. Arne Arneson, son of the Air Force Academy track coach, qualified in the 112 pound division at the District One tournament at Littleton last weekend by taking second place. He will have a rough first round opponent in Ernie Uliberra of Montrose, the champion of the Western Slope District which is generally regarded as the stronghold of the sport in Colorado.

The Academy's other representative is John Parsons, who won a berth in the 145 pound division by capturing a comeback match victory Monday at Littleton. He is scheduled to go against Bob Leisk of Denver Thomas Jefferson in the first round tonight.

The only other Will Rogers League school that has qualified members for the trip to Denver is conference champion, Canon City. The Tigers will have one of the tournament's favorites in Tom Firestack who will open his bid in the heavyweight division against Jim Robertson of Alameda. Canon City's Bill Martinez wilt battle Chuck Gecher of Alameda in the 103 pound class, Bill Burnahm of Canon will meet John Aragon of Pueblo East at 138, and the Tigers' Mike Merlino will tackle Ray Pisciotta of Pueblo Central at 145.

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

"Our boys have three things which are vitally important to them and they are working towards that end," St. Mary's head coach related this week and the Pirate basketball mentor indicated that his Buccaneers are far from calling it quits.

Even though St. Mary's succumbed to the current Denver Parochial League pace setters from Regis and Mullen last week. The Bucs faltered against Regis a week ago last Sunday and torrid-scoring Mulen presented St. Mary's with its third DPL loss last Friday.

Their 82-73 loss to Mullen seemed fatal to the Pirates pennant hopes but fate took a hand the following Sunday as upset-minded St. Francis, a team that has been a power in past DPL campaigns, dumped then-once beaten Mullen, 64-62 in overtime. This puts Mullen and Regis in a two-way tie for first place with 12-2 records and gives St. Mary's another possible chance for the championship.

Regis and Mullen are scheduled for a rematch outing Friday and the loser of that contest will deadlock St. Mary's for second place (assuming the Pirates hurdle their Friday opponent, Machebeuf) via 12-3 won-loss records. Both St. Mary's and the loser of the Mullen-Regis game, which is scheduled Friday night at Mullen's gym, will depend upon one of the other DPL teams to knock off the winner and thus, end the championship in a three-way tie between St. Mary's, Regis and Mullen.

After Friday's Mullen-Regis crucial game, the Mustangs face Machebeuf (Sunday), Cathedral (Feb. 26) and winless Mt. Carmel (Feb. 28), while Regis has to get by Annunication (Sunday) Holy Family (Feb. 26) and St. Joseph's (Feb. 28).

Wright's chargers must surpass Machebeuf (Friday), Annunciation (Sunday), St. Joseph's (Feb. 26) and St. Francis (Feb. 28) to remain in contention for the DPL title.

After dropping two straight conference games to Regis a week ago last Sunday, 44-35, and to high-scoring Mullen by a nine point margin of 82-73, the St. Mary's roundballers bounced back in their next encounter when they romped over Holy Family last Sunday, 68-47. This was the same Holy Family team the Bucs had to rally in overtime before they won the DPL first round tilt, 59-58.

But in the recent contest, the Pirates controled the backboards and took advantage of the ragged and foul-plagued Holy Family, which saw six of its regulars leave the game because of five personal fouls each, and raced to an overwhelming 68-47 decision.

Wright mentioned that his cagers' thinking is threefold: (1) they want the DPL title and haven't given up hopes of sharing the crown in a three way tie; (2) they hope to better the all-time record of victories recorded by St. Mary's 1962 team which won the school's first league title and registered the best record via a 20-2 won-loss record; and (3) they are working towards winning the State Parochial Championship, slated for March 5-7.

This year the State Paroke playoffs will be conducted at the Denver Auditorium Arena for the last two nights, March 6 and March 7. The opening date will pair the eight-team field in single games to be held at four netural sites.

And if the jinx holds ture, which has become tradition that the previous DPL champions have failed to win the State Paroke title, St. Mary's should be a strong contender for this year's championship. Unless fate intercedes for the Pirates to share the title with Mullen and Regis. But regardless of the outcome of the DPL, the Pirates will still be a State contender!

DU Turns Back Top Nodak Team

DENVER (AP) — Denver University fought back from a 4-1 first period deficit to capture a 5-4 decision over front-running North Dakota in a Western Collegiate Association hockey match Wednesday night.

Dennis Hextall, Terry Case Gerry Kell and Bob Stoyko hit for the Nodaks as they almost rushed the Pioneers off the ice in the first period. Don Cameron socked in DU's only tally.

The comeback started at 3:06 of the second period when Jerry Petrie got his first goal on an 18-foot shot. Petrie also scored the winning goal with 1:58 to play.

Jim Ross, a substitute, delivered Denver's tying goal at 3:54 of the third with a floating shot that surprised Nodak goalie Joe Lech, who was expecting a bullet that didn't materialize.

Schedule Trouble Cuts AFA Hockey Intended Slate

Because of difficulty in scheduling, the Air Force Academy's ice hockey club has been forced to cut short its season, according to Capt. Ted Beresford, coach of the Falcons.

The Air Force had intended to participate in the Colorado College Winter Carnival this weekend and have another game against the CC Freshman, but these games had to be cancelled because of a lack of sufficient ice time at the Colorado College rink.

During its first year of play, the Falcon club team posted victories over Notre Dame, Colorado's University's club squad and the Aspen Leafs. Losses were to Illinois, CU and last weekend to St. Mary's of Winona, Minn.

Beresford expressed satisfaction with the progress of the team during the season, considering the limited practice time allotted. It is hoped that in the near future the Academy will have a rink of its own and the team will be included on a varsity basis. Plans are being made for a fieldhouse at the AFA which will include an indoor artificial-ice rink.

Tucker Frederickson, Auburn's top ground gainer last season, was chosen No. 1 in the National Football League draft. That's because the New York Giants had first pick and took the 6-foot-2 tailback from Hollywood, Fla. He averaged 4.5 yards on 129 carries.

Variety of Sports Fills AF's Weekend Calendar

Tailor-made for those who never seem to get their fill, no matter what the attraction, the Air Force Academy offers a full day of action this Saturday as the Falcon varsity winter sports program hits full stride.

How's this for a sample: Arriving at the Academy's Cadet Gymnasium at 1 p.m. you can watch fencing against the Colorado Fencing Club, then at 2 a few steps away there's a gymnastics meet between the AFA, UCLA and Nebraska, at 4 you can take in a rifle match with Colorado State U, Kansas and Wyoming, then it's on to the basketball floor for a 6 p.m. meeting between the varsity cagers and Valparaiso.

Sort of leaves you breathless. It's not expected that many will make the full tour, but any and all can be seen and all but the basketball is free of charge and open to the public.

Other AFA teams in action this weekend are the skiers at Lake Eldora, swimmers at Boulder, indoor track at Columbus, O., and wrestling at UCLA in Los Angels. All contests are Saturday, except the ski team starts Friday.

FENCING — The fencing team, like Ole Man River, just keeps rolling along. A weekend trip to Iowa City brought back two more victories for Coach Nick Toth's Cadets who have won all nine of this season's meets, and racked up 19 straight since their last loss in 1963.

The Falcons out-dueled Michigan State, 22-5, and the University of Iowa, 23-4, to run this year's mark to 9-0. Their victims so far include previously undefeated Notre Dame, and Illinois—the defending national champions.

GYMNASTICS—Probably the top attraction of the winter season will take place Saturday as the Air Force gymnastics team hosts Nebraska and UCLA in a double dual meet at 2 p.m. The Falcons, who scored easy wins over Utah and Brigham Young last Saturday, will put their outstanding 7-1-1 record on the line against two of the toughest teams on the schedule, as the Cadets continue their bid for the mythical area championships.

Both the Bruins and Cornhuskers have strong squads, and Saturday's meet should be a stem-winder. The Cadets will be led by their great all-around man, Terry Higgins, who paced the Air Force last week as they downed BYU by a 77-42 score, and Utah by a 76½-42½ margin.

SWIMMING — The surging Air Force swim team will make its last regularly scheduled appearance this week as the Cadets travel to Boulder and a Saturday engagement with Colorado and Nebraska.

The Falcons, who have not lost a dual meet since dropping a decision to powerful Iowa State last month, added consecutive win number five, Saturday, as they raced to an easy 72-23 victory over Oklahoma State at Stillwater.

Sophomore Steve Seigler paced the win, as he took firsts in the individual medley and the 200-yard breast stroke. His time in the latter was under the Academy record, but will not be counted due to the fact the OSU pool is not regulation length, and only 20-yard laps were swum.

The Cadets splashed to pool records in the medley relay, the 200-yard freestyle, and the 400-yard freestyle relay. Abramson, a soph from Jamaica Estates, N.Y., covered the 200-yard freestyle in 1:56.0, and the freestyle relay team of Ross Schenck, Ray Perkowski, Reel Talbott and Abramson lowered the mark to 3:21.8.

Coach Karl Kitt's grapplers put on their finest effort of the season last Saturday as they eased past a rugged New Mexico mat team, 17-11. The win was the first of the year for the Cadets and leaves them with a 1-7 mark for the season. The victory over the Lobos was also the last home appearance for the Cadets who finish up with UCLA, Kansas State and Colorado on the road, in addition to the MIWA Tournament at Bozeman, Mont.

Earlier in the week, the Falcons lost to Colorado State College, 22-5, but Kitt lauded his grapplers for their first real effort of the year. Said Kitt, "Every match against Colorado State was close, and our boys battled all the way. I knew if we duplicated that performance against the Lobos, we could win. If anything, they did even better. We'll be tough the rest of the year."

INDOOR TRACK — Coach Arne Arnesen's track team will also be on the road this week as the Falcon thinclads participate in the Ohio State Indoor Relays at Columbus, Ohio. Arnesen will take a 20-man team to Ohio, led by All-American Jim Murphy who will get the stiffest competition of the year in the two-mile.

Last Saturday the Cadets ran in the Michigan State Relays, and walked off with a hat full of honors, although no team standings were kept. Said Arnesen, "The individual efforts in the meet were up to and beyond our training at this time. The stamina displayed in running both the preliminaries and finals means greater things to come."

Murphy took the only blue ribbon for the Falcons, as he covered the tow - mile in 9:01.4, a new meet and fieldhouse record. In winning, he defeated Notre Dame's Bill Clark who had edged Murphy in the NCAA Cross Country Championships.

Other high finishers were Ken Clark with a fourth in the shot. His heave of 53-5¾ was a new Academy record. Dale Stovall and Royce Woodell each won heats in the 600, with Stovall finishing second in the finals. Bob Foley and Tad Oelstrom duplicated the heat victories in the 1,000. The pair finished fourth and fifth in the finals.

Senior hurdler Dave Dick won his heat in the 70-yard high hurdles and placed second in the finals, and the AFA shuttle hurdle relay team finished third in that event.

Ohio May Get Shot At Title

Ohio University may get a chance to win the national collegiate basketball championship this year after all.

The Bobcats from the Mid-American Conference were beaten by Michigan in last year's Mid-east regionals final at Minneapolis after upsetting Louisville and Kentucky, but weren't favored to make the NCAA championship tournament this season.

They climbed back into contention Wednesday night by defeating the favored Miami of Ohio 65-55. It was the first league defeat for the Redskins and set up a possible playoff for the Mid-American championship and the NCAA berth since both figure to end their MAC campaign tied at 11-1.

"I never wanted to win one more," said Jim Snyder, coach of Ohio University, after the game at Athens, Ohio. Don Hilt led the Bobcats with 16 points. Jeff Gehring and Charley Coles each got 14 for the Redskins.

Duke's sixth-ranked Blue Devils, the only team in the Associated Press Top Ten to play, won their ninth straight with an easy 87-59 conquest of South Carolina at Columbia, S.C.

North Carolina scored a 69-68 road victory over N.C. State and Maryland, playing at home, beat Virginia 52-47 in other Atlantic Coast Conference games.

St. Louis took over second place in the Missouri Valley Conference by downing Louisville on the road 70-63 behind John Reuther's 26 points. The defeat dropped Louisville to third.

Creighton won its fifth straight by crushing Christian Brothers 103-65 at Omaha and Chicago Loyola snapped a six-game losing streak by beating Western Michigan 94-81 at Kalamazoo.

Walt Sahm's 24 points paced Notre Dame over Bowling Green 88-72 on the Falcons' home court. Willie Somerset scored 35 points and set a Duquesne career scoring record of 1,637 points in leading the Dukes over St. Francis, Pa., 108-91 at Altoona.

Bill Radcliffe tossed in 41 points to lead Navy over Hofstra 70-62 at Annapolis. Army downed Massachusetts 82-67 at West Point and Gonzaga topped Idaho 67-61 for a home court triumph in other games.

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Jockey Eddie Burns begins a five-day suspension Friday on the accusation of Santa Anita stewards that he was guilty of careless riding in the eight race last Tuesday.

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators take a long look today at the purchase of the New York Yankees by Columbia Broadcasting System and what it may mean to the future of baseball and other professional sports.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said in a prepared opening statement that the deal last year killed all chances for passage of legislation to exempt certain vital practices of professional sports from antitrust laws.

First witnesses before the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee, which Hart heads, were Yankee President, Dan Topping, CBS president Frank Stanton, and two other top CBS executives.

The hearings continue Friday and again next Tuesday and Wednesday. Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and American League President, Joe Cronare to appear Friday.

Hart said the legislation had cleared his subcommittee and the parent Judiciary Committee last year and "I was hopeful of passage."

But he added "then the CBS-Yankee acquisition occurred. In my opinion, it killed any hopes of passage of the legislation at the last session of Congress.

"The opposition to the bill triggered by the acquisition was, I feel, to some extent unjustified. Indeed, if this business transaction does have anti-competitive effects the possibility of a challenge of its legality would be increased if baseball were in fact under the antitrust laws."

In effect, the measure would extend to all sports the exemption for key activities from antitrust laws and place baseball, which now is exempt by court decision from antitrust regulation, on the same basis with other sports.

In general, Hart said, the subcommittee will study:

The potential effects of the $11.2 million Yankee-CBS deal on competition in organized baseball, primarily in the American League.

Possible effects on baseball as a whole.

Whether CBS would have an unfair advantage over other radio-television networks by virtue of its seat at baseball management meetings where contracts are approved for broadcasting major league games.

As of now, Hart said, "baseball by court decision enjoys a preferred status based on total exemption from the reach of the antitrust laws while football, hockey and basketball must operate within its confines."

The subcommittee is studying, in addition to pending legislation, whether any new laws are needed to protect public interest in professional sports activities.

Mikita Takes NHL Scoring Lead From Teammate, Hull

Denis DeJord is a goaltender and he doesn't exactly qualify for membership on the Chicago Black Hawks' high-scoring Scooter Line. But when the National Hockey League scoring lead is up for grabs, senior Scooter Stan Mikita isn't particular about who helps him — and that includes goalies.

Mikita, who won the scoring title last season, had been running second to teammate Bobby Hull's goal-scoring barrage all season long but a Hull slump followed by an injury which kept Bobby out for a week, gave Mikita his chance to close in. He didn't muff it.

That climaxed a three-goal third period comeback by the Hawks and a season-long comeback by Mikita whose 21 goals and 47 assists for 68 points puts him one point up on Hull's 38-29—67.

And the pass that started Mikita's ice-long dash came from goalie DeJordy who picked up an assist on the big score after surrendering four Ranger goals in the second period. New York led 4-2 before Mohns, Fred Stanfield and Mikita gave the league-leading Hawks their victory.

Montreal took over sole possession of second place, four points back of Chicago, by blanking Detroit 2-0 in the only other game played.

Charlie Hodge turned in the shutout, his third of the season. The little goalie, who has been splitting Canadien netminding chores with Gump Worsley for the last month, turned away 33 shots.

Henri Richard and Claude Provost scored power play goals for Montreal. Richard's 16th goal came on a rebound while Marcel Pronovost was serving a first period penalty and Provost's 21st went in just as Ted Lindsay finished serving two minutes in the second period.

Washington Takes Lead In Prep Poll

Denver George Washington the top-ranked team in Colorado during the first two weeks of this year's Denver Post prep poll, regained first place Wednesday after slipping as low as sixth just two weeks earlier.

The Patriots (11-2) jumped over last week's leader, Arvada, despite the fact that the Redskins continued winning over the past weekend. Greeley Central moved into the third spot, replacing Pueblo Central. The Wildcats tumbled a notch after falling to Centennial last Saturday. Centennial made the most noticeable advance, climbing from eighth to fifth place. The only area team mentioned is Harrison. The Will Rogers League leaders are ranked 15th.

The Denver League dominated the top 10 by placing four teams (Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and East) while the South Central has two (Central and Centennial), the Centennial League two (Hinkley and Littleton), the Jefferson County League one (Arvada), and the Northern League one (Greeley Central).

U.S. Pick in Three Events To Beat Canadian Skaters

It's been four years since an American figure skater won an international event and the strong U.S. team would like nothing better than reversing Canada's sweep of honors in 1963.

The biennial competition begins Friday morning with compulsory figures in men's singles. The compulsories in ladies' singles, pairs and ice dance are scheduled Saturday, while all four finals wil be skated Sunday afternoon.

The U.S. goes into the meet favored in three of the four events, but is given little chance of upsetting Canada's Petra Burka in ladies' singles. The 18-year-old Canadian is one of the leading contenders to win the world title in Colorado Springs, March 2-6. Peggy Fleming, 16, two-time U.S. champion from Pasadena, Calif., will be the Canadian's chief rival.

Gary Visconti of Detroit, Mich., and Scott Ethan Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J., are expected to hook up in a repeat of their men's singles title duel in last week's national meet at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Visconti upset the defending champion and Olympic bronze medalist and will be out to prove it was no fluke. Donald Knight of Dundas, Ont., is the Canadian champion.

The pairs competition will feature four brother and sister teams. Americans Ronald and Vivian Joseph of Highland Park, Ill., and Ronald and Cynthia Kauffman of Seattle have the edge over Canadians Paul and Susan Huehnergard of Agincourt, Ont., and Christopher and Alexis Shields of Toronto.

The possibility of a U.S. sweep in ice dance is not at all remote. The third place American team of Susan and Stan Urban of Buffalo, N.Y., hold an invitational victory over Canadian champions Carole Forrest of Scarborough, Ont., and Kevin Lethbridge of Willowdale, Ont.

Kristin Fortune of Northridge, Calif., and Dennis Sveum of Sun Valley, Calif., won the U.S. title, while Lorna Dyer and John Carrell, both of Seatte, placed second.

Swede Is Lone Foreign Survivor in Tennis Play

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — Jan-Erik Lundquist, outnumbered by Americans but possibly not outgunned, has moved into the quarter-finals of the U.S. National Indoor Tennis seeded Nicola Pietrangeli of

The tall, blonde Swede is the lone survivor of 17 foreign entries following upsets of first-seeded Manuel Santana of Spain, second-ranked Rafael Osuna of Mexico and fourth-seeded Nicola Pietrangeli of Italy.

Osuna, the Mexican champ, was the latest to fall. He was eliminated Wednesday night by young Cliff Richey of Dallas, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3. Richey's sister, Nancy, recently won the women's national indoor title.

All four seeded Americans — Chuck McKinley, Dennis Ralston, Arthur Ashe and Frank Froehling — have advanced to the round of eight.

Lundquist was seeded only No. 3 although he is reported by some to be the best in the world at playing indoors.

When he notified tournament director Bill Riordan of his arrival time, Lundquist wrote, "I'm looking forward to meeting you, and winning the tournament." Now, he gets the chance to do it.

Variety of Sports Fills AF's Weekend Calendar

Tailor-made for those who never seem to get their fill, no matter what the attraction, the Air Force Academy offers a full day of action this Saturday as the Falcon varsity winter sports program hits full stride.

How's this for a sample: Arriving at the Academy's Cadet Gymnasium at 1 p.m. you can watch fencing against the Colorado Fencing Club, then at 2 a few steps away there's a gymnastics meet between the AFA, UCLA and Nebraska, at 4 you can take in a rifle match with Colorado State U, Kansas and Wyoming, then it's on to the basketball floor for a 6 p.m. meeting between the varsity cagers and Valparaiso.

Sort of leaves you breathless. It's not expected that many will make the full tour, but any and all can be seen and all but the basketball is free of charge and open to the public.

Other AFA teams in action this weekend are the skiers at Lake Eldora, swimmers at Boulder, indoor track at Columbus, O., and wrestling at UCLA in Los Angels. All contests are Saturday, except the ski team starts Friday.

FENCING — The fencing team, like Ole Man River, just keeps rolling along. A weekend trip to Iowa City brought back two more victories for Coach Nick Toth's Cadets who have won all nine of this season's meets, and racked up 19 straight since their last loss in 1963.

The Falcons out-dueled Michigan State, 22-5, and the University of Iowa, 23-4, to run this year's mark to 9-0. Their victims so far include previously undefeated Notre Dame, and Illinois—the defending national champions.

GYMNASTICS—Probably the top attraction of the winter season will take place Saturday as the Air Force gymnastics team hosts Nebraska and UCLA in a double dual meet at 2 p.m. The Falcons, who scored easy wins over Utah and Brigham Young last Saturday, will put their outstanding 7-1-1 record on the line against two of the toughest teams on the schedule, as the Cadets continue their bid for the mythical area championships.

Both the Bruins and Cornhuskers have strong squads, and Saturday's meet should be a stem-winder. The Cadets will be led by their great all-around man, Terry Higgins, who paced the Air Force last week as they downed BYU by a 77-42 score, and Utah by a 76½-42½ margin.

SWIMMING — The surging Air Force swim team will make its last regularly scheduled appearance this week as the Cadets travel to Boulder and a Saturday engagement with Colorado and Nebraska.

The Falcons, who have not lost a dual meet since dropping a decision to powerful Iowa State last month, added consecutive win number five, Saturday, as they raced to an easy 72-23 victory over Oklahoma State at Stillwater.

Sophomore Steve Seigler paced the win, as he took firsts in the individual medley and the 200-yard breast stroke. His time in the latter was under the Academy record, but will not be counted due to the fact the OSU pool is not regulation length, and only 20-yard laps were swum.

The Cadets splashed to pool records in the medley relay, the 200-yard freestyle, and the 400-yard freestyle relay. Abramson, a soph from Jamaica Estates, N.Y., covered the 200-yard freestyle in 1:56.0, and the freestyle relay team of Ross Schenck, Ray Perkowski, Reel Talbott and Abramson lowered the mark to 3:21.8.

Coach Karl Kitt's grapplers put on their finest effort of the season last Saturday as they eased past a rugged New Mexico mat team, 17-11. The win was the first of the year for the Cadets and leaves them with a 1-7 mark for the season. The victory over the Lobos was also the last home appearance for the Cadets who finish up with UCLA, Kansas State and Colorado on the road, in addition to the MIWA Tournament at Bozeman, Mont.

Earlier in the week, the Falcons lost to Colorado State College, 22-5, but Kitt lauded his grapplers for their first real effort of the year. Said Kitt, "Every match against Colorado State was close, and our boys battled all the way. I knew if we duplicated that performance against the Lobos, we could win. If anything, they did even better. We'll be tough the rest of the year."

INDOOR TRACK — Coach Arne Arnesen's track team will also be on the road this week as the Falcon thinclads participate in the Ohio State Indoor Relays at Columbus, Ohio. Arnesen will take a 20-man team to Ohio, led by All-American Jim Murphy who will get the stiffest competition of the year in the two-mile.

Last Saturday the Cadets ran in the Michigan State Relays, and walked off with a hat full of honors, although no team standings were kept. Said Arnesen, "The individual efforts in the meet were up to and beyond our training at this time. The stamina displayed in running both the preliminaries and finals means greater things to come."

Murphy took the only blue ribbon for the Falcons, as he covered the tow - mile in 9:01.4, a new meet and fieldhouse record. In winning, he defeated Notre Dame's Bill Clark who had edged Murphy in the NCAA Cross Country Championships.

Other high finishers were Ken Clark with a fourth in the shot. His heave of 53-5¾ was a new Academy record. Dale Stovall and Royce Woodell each won heats in the 600, with Stovall finishing second in the finals. Bob Foley and Tad Oelstrom duplicated the heat victories in the 1,000. The pair finished fourth and fifth in the finals.

Senior hurdler Dave Dick won his heat in the 70-yard high hurdles and placed second in the finals, and the AFA shuttle hurdle relay team finished third in that event.

Ohio May Get Shot At Title

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio University may get a chance to win the national collegiate basketball championship this year after all.

The Bobcats from the Mid-American Conference were beaten by Michigan in last year's Mid-east regionals final at Minneapolis after upsetting Louisville and Kentucky, but weren't favored to make the NCAA championship tournament this season.

They climbed back into contention Wednesday night by defeating the favored Miami of Ohio 65-55. It was the first league defeat for the Redskins and set up a possible playoff for the Mid-American championship and the NCAA berth since both figure to end their MAC campaign tied at 11-1.

"I never wanted to win one more," said Jim Snyder, coach of Ohio University, after the game at Athens, Ohio. Don Hilt led the Bobcats with 16 points. Jeff Gehring and Charley Coles each got 14 for the Redskins.

Duke's sixth-ranked Blue Devils, the only team in the Associated Press Top Ten to play, won their ninth straight with an easy 87-59 conquest of South Carolina at Columbia, S.C.

North Carolina scored a 69-68 road victory over N.C. State and Maryland, playing at home, beat Virginia 52-47 in other Atlantic Coast Conference games.

St. Louis took over second place in the Missouri Valley Conference by downing Louisville on the road 70-63 behind John Reuther's 26 points. The defeat dropped Louisville to third.

Creighton won its fifth straight by crushing Christian Brothers 103-65 at Omaha and Chicago Loyola snapped a six-game losing streak by beating Western Michigan 94-81 at Kalamazoo.

Walt Sahm's 24 points paced Notre Dame over Bowling Green 88-72 on the Falcons' home court. Willie Somerset scored 35 points and set a Duquesne career scoring record of 1,637 points in leading the Dukes over St. Francis, Pa., 108-91 at Altoona.

Bill Radcliffe tossed in 41 points to lead Navy over Hofstra 70-62 at Annapolis. Army downed Massachusetts 82-67 at West Point and Gonzaga topped Idaho 67-61 for a home court triumph in other games.

Jockey Eddie Burns

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Jockey Eddie Burns begins a five-day suspension Friday on the accusation of Santa Anita stewards that he was guilty of careless riding in the eight race last Tuesday.

The stewards, who made their ruling Wednesday, said Burns caused interference going into the first turn while aboard Loukahi.

Senate Investigators Probe CBS's Purchase of Yankees

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators take a long look today at the purchase of the New York Yankees by Columbia Broadcasting System and what it may mean to the future of baseball and other professional sports.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said in a prepared opening statement that the deal last year killed all chances for passage of legislation to exempt certain vital practices of professional sports from antitrust laws.

First witnesses before the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee, which Hart heads, were Yankee President, Dan Topping, CBS president Frank Stanton, and two other top CBS executives.

The hearings continue Friday and again next Tuesday and Wednesday. Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and American League President, Joe Cronare are to appear Friday.

Hart said the legislation had cleared his subcommittee and the parent Judiciary Committee last year and "I was hopeful of passage."

But he added "then the CBS-Yankee acquisition occurred. In my opinion, it killed any hopes of passage of the legislation at the last session of Congress.

"The opposition to the bill triggered by the acquisition was, I feel, to some extent unjustified. Indeed, if this business transaction does have anti-competitive effects the possibility of a challenge of its legality would be increased if baseball were in fact under the antitrust laws."

In effect, the measure would extend to all sports the exemption for key activities from antitrust laws and place baseball, which now is exempt by court decision from antitrust regulation, on the same basis with other sports.

In general, Hart said, the subcommittee will study:

The potential effects of the $11.2 million Yankee-CBS deal on competition in organized baseball, primarily in the American League.

Possible effects on baseball as a whole.

Whether CBS would have an unfair advantage over other radio-television networks by virtue of its seat at baseball management meetings where contracts are approved for broadcasting major league games.

As of now, Hart said, "baseball by court decision enjoys a preferred status based on total exemption from the reach of the antitrust laws while football, hockey and basketball must operate within its confines."

The subcommittee is studying, in addition to pending legislation, whether any new laws are needed to protect public interest in professional sports activities.

Mikita Takes NHL Scoring Lead From Teammate, Hull

Denis DeJord is a goaltender and he doesn't exactly qualify for membership on the Chicago Black Hawks' high-scoring Scooter Line. But when the National Hockey League scoring lead is up for grabs, senior Scooter Stan Mikita isn't particular about who helps him — and that includes goalies.

Mikita, who won the scoring title last season, had been running second to teammate Bobby Hull's goal-scoring barrage all season long but a Hull slump followed by an injury which kept Bobby out for a week, gave Mikita his chance to close in. He didn't muff it.

That climaxed a three-goal third period comeback by the Hawks and a season-long comeback by Mikita whose 21 goals and 47 assists for 68 points puts him one point up on Hull's 38-29—67.

And the pass that started Mikita's ice-long dash came from goalie DeJordy who picked up an assist on the big score after surrendering four Ranger goals in the second period. New York led 4-2 before Mohns, Fred Stanfield and Mikita gave the league-leading Hawks their victory.

Montreal took over sole possession of second place, four points back of Chicago, by blanking Detroit 2-0 in the only other game played.

Charlie Hodge turned in the shutout, his third of the season. The little goalie, who has been splitting Canadien netminding chores with Gump Worsley for the last month, turned away 33 shots.

Henri Richard and Claude Provost scored power play goals for Montreal. Richard's 16th goal came on a rebound while Marcel Pronovost was serving a first period penalty and Provost's 21st went in just as Ted Lindsay finished serving two minutes in the second period.

Washington Takes Lead In Prep Poll

Denver George Washington the top-ranked team in Colorado during the first two weeks of this year's Denver Post prep poll, regained first place Wednesday after slipping as low as sixth just two weeks earlier.

The Patriots (11-2) jumped over last week's leader, Arvada, despite the fact that the Redskins continued winning over the past weekend. Greeley Central moved into the third spot, replacing Pueblo Central. The Wildcats tumbled a notch after falling to Centennial last Saturday. Centennial made the most noticeable advance, climbing from eighth to fifth place. The only area team mentioned is Harrison. The Will Rogers League leaders are ranked 15th.

The Denver League dominated the top 10 by placing four teams (Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and East) while the South Central has two (Central and Centennial), the Centennial League two (Hinkley and Littleton), the Jefferson County League one (Arvada), and the Northern League one (Greeley Central).

Allen McCune, who quarterbacked 13 of West Virginia's 19 touchdowns after taking over the signal calling job in mid-season, will be back with the Mountaineers next fall.

U.S. Pick in Three Events To Beat Canadian Skaters

It's been four years since an American figure skater won an international event and the strong U.S. team would like nothing better than reversing Canada's sweep of honors in 1963.

The biennial competition begins Friday morning with compulsory figures in men's singles. The compulsories in ladies' singles, pairs and ice dance are scheduled Saturday, while all four finals wil be skated Sunday afternoon.

The U.S. goes into the meet favored in three of the four events, but is given little chance of upsetting Canada's Petra Burka in ladies' singles. The 18-year-old Canadian is one of the leading contenders to win the world title in Colorado Springs, March 2-6. Peggy Fleming, 16, two-time U.S. champion from Pasadena, Calif., will be the Canadian's chief rival.

Gary Visconti of Detroit, Mich., and Scott Ethan Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J., are expected to hook up in a repeat of their men's singles title duel in last week's national meet at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Visconti upset the defending champion and Olympic bronze medalist and will be out to prove it was no fluke. Donald Knight of Dundas, Ont., is the Canadian champion.

The pairs competition will feature four brother and sister teams. Americans Ronald and Vivian Joseph of Highland Park, Ill., and Ronald and Cynthia Kauffman of Seattle have the edge over Canadians Paul and Susan Huehnergard of Agincourt, Ont., and Christopher and Alexis Shields of Toronto.

The possibility of a U.S. sweep in ice dance is not at all remote. The third place American team of Susan and Stan Urban of Buffalo, N.Y., hold an invitational victory over Canadian champions Carole Forrest of Scarborough, Ont., and Kevin Lethbridge of Willowdale, Ont.

Kristin Fortune of Northridge, Calif., and Dennis Sveum of Sun Valley, Calif., won the U.S. title, while Lorna Dyer and John Carrell, both of Seatte, placed second.

Swede Is Lone Foreign Survivor in Tennis Play

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — Jan-Erik Lundquist, outnumbered by Americans but possibly not outgunned, has moved into the quarter-finals of the U.S. National Indoor Tennis seeded Nicola Pietrangeli of

The tall, blonde Swede is the lone survivor of 17 foreign entries following upsets of first-seeded Manuel Santana of Spain, second-ranked Rafael Osuna of Mexico and fourth-seeded Nicola Pietrangeli of Italy.

Osuna, the Mexican champ, was the latest to fall. He was eliminated Wednesday night by young Cliff Richey of Dallas, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3. Richey's sister, Nancy, recently won the women's national indoor title.

All four seeded Americans — Chuck McKinley, Dennis Ralston, Arthur Ashe and Frank Froehling — have advanced to the round of eight.

Lundquist was seeded only No. 3 although he is reported by some to be the best in the world at playing indoors.

When he notified tournament director Bill Riordan of his arrival time, Lundquist wrote, "I'm looking forward to meeting you, and winning the tournament." Now, he gets the chance to do it.

Political Fund Raising Dinners Have Hazards

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Don't let the senator talk for an hour. Call in some contractors, they may owe the mayor a favor. Have plenty of pretty girls around to hustle drinks. And don't gamble with real money because you might get raided.

Those are some of the dos and don'ts of political fund raising dinners. Take it from Sidney Captain of Baltimore.

Young Republican leaders did Wednesday. Captain gave them a no-frills primer on the art of raising dollars at political dinners and parties.

Captain, a clothing manufacturer's representative who serves as GOP finance chairman in Baltimore County, suggested a cocktail party — perhaps with the mayor as host — is a good way to start selling tickets to a $100 a plate dinner.

"The people you want to invite to these cocktail parties will be your contractors, your builders, your banks, your savings and loan people," he said.

Captain said that's particularly true if the city has a Republican mayor or the county has Republican executives — these people feel "a certain amount of allegiance.

"They don't want to be left out in the cold," he said.

"See that there are hors douvres there, plenty of booze, plenty of charming girls," said Captain. After a few drinks, spring the real purpose of the affair.

"Get up and say, 'Who'll buy the first table,'" he suggested. Handle it like an auction. But a word of caution — make sure you have somebody lined up to buy that first ticket.

At the dinner itself "you sell your drinks at these dinners at a dollar a drink," he said. "The drink costs you 30 to 35 cents.

"You get a group of girls, try to make them pretty, try to make them slender, let them go out and hustle the drinks."

Captain suggested these rules:

"Give them all the booze they want at a buck a throw. I can't care, they can drink all night long.

Now try a Republican fun night.

"There's none of this political nonsense," he said. "It's a night of fun." On the fun night agenda: More drinks, dancing, dinner, and perhaps some gambling — with play money.

Captain suggested fund-raisers rent some gaming tables, and auction off play money so people can use them. "We don't play for real money because if your community is antigambling as mine is, they'll raid you," he said.

Political Fund Raising Dinners Have Hazards

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Don't let the senator talk for an hour. Call in some contractors, they may owe the mayor a favor. Have plenty of pretty girls around to hustle drinks. And don't gamble with real money because you might get raided.

Those are some of the dos and don'ts of political fund raising dinners. Take it from Sidney Captain of Baltimore.

Young Republican leaders did Wednesday. Captain gave them a no-frills primer on the art of raising dollars at political dinners and parties.

Captain, a clothing manufacturer's representative who serves as GOP finance chairman in Baltimore County, suggested a cocktail party — perhaps with the mayor as host — is a good way to start selling tickets to a $100 a plate dinner.

"The people you want to invite to these cocktail parties will be your contractors, your builders, your banks, your savings and loan people," he said.

Captain said that's particularly true if the city has a Republican mayor or the county has Republican executives — these people feel "a certain amount of allegiance.

"They don't want to be left out in the cold," he said.

"See that there are hors douvres there, plenty of booze, plenty of charming girls," said Captain. After a few drinks, spring the real purpose of the affair.

"Get up and say, 'Who'll buy the first table,' " he suggested. Handle it like an auction. But a word of caution — make sure you have somebody lined up to buy that first ticket.

At the dinner itself "you sell your drinks at these dinners at a dollar a drink," he said. "The drink costs you 30 to 35 cents.

"You get a group of girls, try to make them pretty, try to make them slender, let them go out and hustle the drinks."

Captain suggested these rules:

"Give them all the booze they want at a buck a throw. I can't care, they can drink all night long.

Now try a Republican fun night.

"There's none of this political nonsense," he said. "It's a night of fun." On the fun night agenda: More drinks, dancing, dinner, and perhaps some gambling — with play money.

Captain suggested fund-raisers rent some gaming tables, and auction off play money so people can use them. "We don't play for real money because if your community is antigambling as mine is, they'll raid you," he said.

SO WOMEN MUST BE DRIVEN HARDER, DR. LANIER...? IS THAT WHY ONLY TWO OF THE FIVE WHO ENTERED WITH MY CLASS ARE GRADUATING?
AND I SUPPOSE THERE WILL ONLY BE ONE AFTER YOU DISMISS ME!
I INVITED YOU TO SPEAK YOUR MIND! ONLY ACADEMIC OR PROFESSIONAL FAILURES CAN BRING DISMISSAL, MISS PALMER!
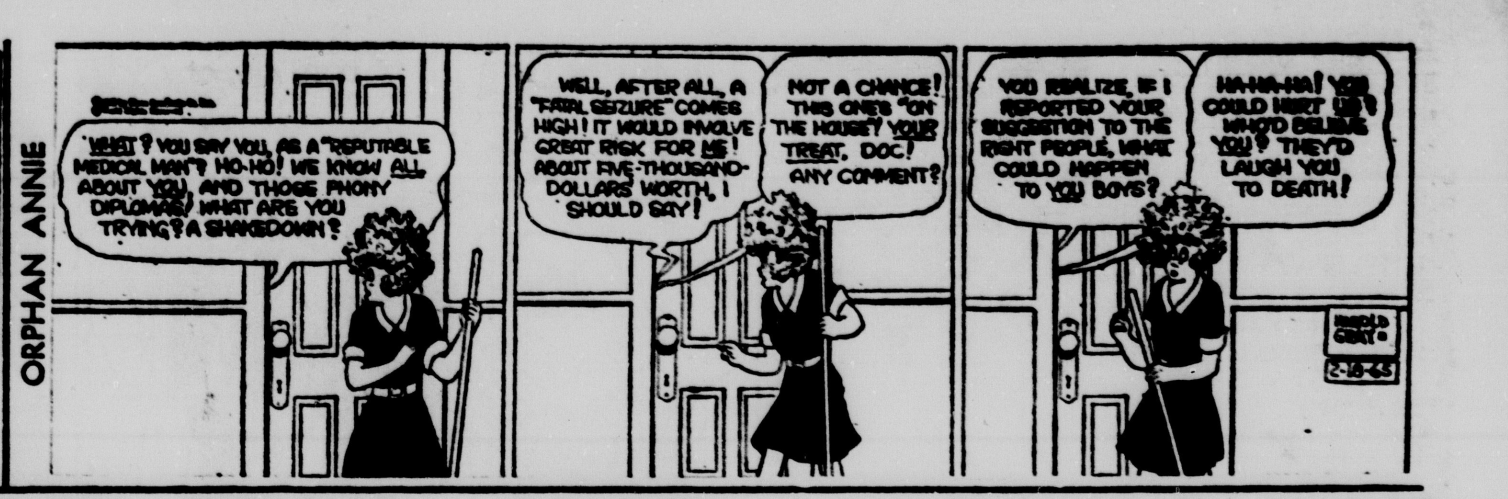
...BUT I KNOW A LITTLE MORE ABOUT IT THAN THAT!



ORPHAN ANNIE
WHAT? YOU SAY YOU, AS A "REPUTABLE MEDICAL MAN"? HO-HO! WE KNOW ALL ABOUT YOU, AND THOSE PHONY DIPLOMAS! WHAT ARE YOU TRYING? A SHAKEDOWN?
WELL, AFTER ALL, A "FATAL SEIZURE" COMES HIGH! IT WOULD INVOLVE GREAT RISK FOR ME! ABOUT FIVE-THOUSAND-DOLLARS' WORTH, I SHOULD SAY!
NOT A CHANCE! THIS ONE'S "ON THE HOUSE"! YOUR TREAT, DOC! ANY COMMENT?
YOU REALIZE, IF I REPORTED YOUR SUGGESTION TO THE RIGHT PEOPLE, WHAT COULD HAPPEN TO YOU BOYS?
HA-HA-HA! YOU COULD HURT US! WHO'D BELIEVE YOU? THEY'D LAUGH YOU TO DEATH!

SO WOMEN MUST BE DRIVEN HARDER, DR. LANIER...? IS THAT WHY ONLY TWO OF THE FIVE WHO ENTERED WITH MY CLASS ARE GRADUATING?
AND I SUPPOSE THERE WILL ONLY BE ONE AFTER YOU DISMISS ME!
I INVITED YOU TO SPEAK YOUR MIND! ONLY ACADEMIC OR PROFESSIONAL FAILURES CAN BRING DISMISSAL, MISS PALMER!
...BUT I KNOW A LITTLE MORE ABOUT IT THAN THAT!

ORPHAN ANNIE
"WHAT? YOU SAY YOU, AS A "REPUTABLE MEDICAL MAN"? HO-HO! WE KNOW ALL ABOUT YOU, AND THOSE PHONY DIPLOMAS! WHAT ARE YOU TRYING? A SHAKEDOWN?
WELL, AFTER ALL, A "FATAL SEIZURE" COMES HIGH! IT WOULD INVOLVE GREAT RISK FOR ME! ABOUT FIVE-THOUSAND-DOLLARS WORTH, I SHOULD SAY!
NOT A CHANCE! THIS ONE'S "ON THE HOUSE" YOUR TREAT, DOC! ANY COMMENT?
YOU REALIZE, IF I REPORTED YOUR SUGGESTION TO THE RIGHT PEOPLE, WHAT COULD HAPPEN TO YOU BOYS?
HA-HA-HA! YOU COULD HURT US! WHO'D BELIEVE YOU? THEY'D LAUGH YOU TO DEATH!

U. N. Delegates Try to Block Albanian Move

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — U.N. delegates made feverish efforts today to block Albania's attempt to force a U.S.-Soviet showdown over voting rights in the General Assembly. But the little Communist state stood fast.

Informants said if assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey is unable to legally sidetrack the demands by Albanian delegate Halim Budo for an end to the voting moratorium, he may postpone the assembly session scheduled this afternoon.

Budo sought to dispel the general suspicion that Red China pressured its small ally into the move which disrupted plans to recess the assembly until Sept. 1.

Budo demanded on Tuesday that the assembly vote to elect its steering committee, adopt an agenda and get to work. Quaison-Sackey averted a showdown by adjourning the session.

The Soviet bloc, from which Albania defected when the dispute between Moscow and Peking erupted more than two years ago, was reported incensed over the move.

The Soviet Union and 12 other nations are more than two years behind in their U.N. assessments because of failure to pay peacekeeping dues. They contend the dues are illegal because the Congo and Middle East operations were approved by the assembly instead of the Security Council.

The United States says it will invoke Article 19 of the U.N. Charter if a rollcall vote is called in the assembly.

ORGANIZED FOSSILS—This is just part of a collection of more than a million fossils recently acquired by the Chicago Natural History Museum. Bobby Baker Probe Still Unfinished Job

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bobby Baker probe and its stories about sex, payoffs, secret deals and big-shot politicians are unfinished business for the new Congress.

How much more of it will get a public airing by the Senate Rules Committee is a hot-potato issue.

The investigation of get-rich deals by Baker, former $19,600-a- year secretary to the Senate Democratic Majority, already has mentioned the White House and President Johnson himself, Congress members and others prominent on the Washington scene. It was an issue in the 1964 presidential and congressional election campaigns.

The Rules Committee's Democratic majority once drew the curtain on it last July, marking it a closed issue despite Republican cries of "whitewash" and "coverup." But the curtain wouldn't stay drawn.

The committee's Democratic members, with a 6-3 majority over Republican members, waited until after the November elections, however, to reopen the hearings and receive some of the juiciest and most conflicting testimony.

Now the Republican minority is giving every sign it will fight any Democratic plans to ring down the curtain again without a far more searching study of sex angles and various other reportedly lurid allegations voiced by the chief accusing witness in the hearings, insurance man Don B. Reynolds.

Through it all Baker has refused to answer questions as a witness. He invoked the Fifth Amendment and its protection against self - incrimination, explaining he was under investigation by a federal grand jury and the Internal Revenue Service.

Thus far the probe has produced more allegation, suggestion and unresolved conflict of testimony than solid proof that Baker, from his influential Senate post, actually swayed decisions by government agencies.

Among the major factors are these:

The continuing efforts to learn how Baker, one-time Senate page boy and protege of President Johnson, accumulated wealth which Baker himself counted at more than $2 million.

Conflicting charges and denials linking the names of Baker and Democratic politician Matthew H. McCloskey with an alleged $25,000 payoff to the 1960 Democratic presidential campaign fund from a government construction contract. McCloskey, former ambassador to Ireland and former chief fund raiser for the Democratic party, denied the allegations.

Reynolds' testimony that there had been a payoff and that he was its "bag man," McCloskey's denial, and Baker's refusal to testify left it a case of one man's word against another's.

Were beautiful women, some of them call girls, employed by influence peddlers to help swing secret political and business deals? If so, who was influenced and who were the women's employers? The public hearings for the most part have had no answers to these questions.

What is the truth about allegedly illegal pressure tactics to collect money from some officials of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. for the 1960 vice presidential campaign funds of Democrat Johnson and Republican Henry Cabot Lodge? The hearings have stayed out of this area, too.

As matters stood when the committee adjourned its hearings Dec. 9, the Democratic majority apparently planned to hear only one more witness, former White House aide Walter H. Jenkins.

Jenkins has been under medical and psychiatric care since he resigned his White House job last fall after disclosure that he twice had been arrested on morals charges. It was not clear whether his doctors would declare him sufficiently recovered to testify at any early date.

The Democratic majority's announced plan is to turn over to the Justice Department various unresolved matters. These include a still secret FBI report on the Washington adventures of Ellen Rometsch, a brunette West German beauty and reported friend of Baker and many others prominent in Washington.

The committee last month obtained copies of FBI files on Mrs. Rometsch but quickly returned them to the Justice Department without exploring them publicly. Its Democratic majority voted down Republican demands for at least a delayed decision on what to do about the files.

Mrs. Rometsch was whisked back to Germany in 1963 not long before Baker resigned under fire from his Senate job and the committee started investigating him.

Testimony has described both Baker and a Fifth Amendment pleading business associate as "partying" in New Orleans with Mrs. Rometsch and Baker's pretty secretary, Miss Nancy Carole Tyler. The associate is Paul Aguirre, a mortgage banker in Puerto Rico.

Standing grimly silent in the background and awaiting further developments is Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., whose lone-wolf investigations were a major factor in setting off the Baker probe.

Williams, a nonmember of the committee, had sat in on its December hearings to advise the Republican minority until he got into a row with its special counsel, Lennox P. McLendon, a Democrat.

Williams accused the committee of rejecting some evidence he had offered at a private session. McLendon said this was not true.

Williams quit the hearing room, declaring he would not return, would "cooperate" no more with its Democrats, but would continue his own investigations and publicly inform the Senate of his findings.

He added that he still had interesting material in his files on Baker.

The committee itself made public at its December hearings a letter from Williams urging it to obtain and check the FBI files on Mrs. Rometsch. His letter spoke of "several rather persistent rumors that these files will show a connection between Mrs. Rometsch, Mr. Baker and perhaps others associated with the United States Senate."

"I do not think that we as the Senate can allow these questions pertaining to call girls to be passed over without a thorough investigation as to whether or not the girls were used by Mr. Baker or others to influence legislative decisions or business contracts," Williams wrote.

The committee's chairman, Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., announced its majority vote to refrain from hearings on sex aspects. He said the majority felt it had "no legal right to probe into the private conduct of individuals."

Without elaboration, he said the FBI Rometsch files contained nothing related to the "official conduct" of any senator or other Capitol Hill personages.

RAINY LABORATORY

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—The "laboratory in the clouds" of Texas Southern College has been put into use. It is located in the Sierra Orinetal Mountains of old Mexico, about 250-miles south of Brownsville.

The college has built dormitories and a cook shack for students making field trips to study plant and animal life in the area. The laboratory is the area itself, where rainfall exceeds 125 inches a year.

Funeral Director Official Refuses Identification

DENVER (UPI) — A.J. Alcorn, secretary of the State Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers, was called on the carpet today by a Legislative Committee but refused to identify a "power-hungry politician" he said was trying to wreck the industry.

The committee, in a hastily-clad meeting, questioned Alcorn on a statement he issued saying an unidentified state senator wold wreck the funeral industry by a bill lowering the education requirements of undertakers.

Alcorn also is an undertaker and the secretary of the Funeral Director's Association in addition to being a state employe.

Alcorn's statement was contained in an announcement calling an urgent meeting of the undertaker's association to discuss educational requirements.

Senate Majority Leader Paul Wenke, R-Fort Collins, got a copy of the announcement.

Wenke is chairman of the legislative committee on funerals. He quickly called a meeting and summoned Alcorn.

The committee demanded to know who Alcorn was referring to when he said a power-seeking politician. Alcorn refused to answer.

"We in the funeral profession . . . .are facing the most crucial hours in the history of the profession in Colorado," Alcorn's announcement said.

"For the past 20 years we have been going forward in the matter of education. We have been considered by other states as progressive. But now we are faced with the desire of a state senator to go back, back to the days of the early 1930's.

"Are we going to let some power-seeking politician wreck the funeral profession?"

NOT SO QUICK

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Charles Cole, clerk of the U.S. district court here, picked out a jury panel of 25 names taken from six eastern Arkansas counties. A jury was to hear a damage case in which Nealon Quick, a grocer in the town of Cotton Plant in eastern Arkansas, was being sued. He mailed the lists of 25 prospective jurors to the lawyers on both sides. Quickly he heard a protest. Near the top of the list of prospective jurors was the name of Nealon Quick.

More Student Rioting May Be Expected

By PAUL DANISH

BERKELEY, Calif. (NEA) — For students at the nation's colleges and universities, this is the winter of their discontent.

Students on campuses in all parts of the country have staged a rash of demonstrations and protests on a wide array of national, international and local issues. No letup seems in sight as the spring semester opens.

The demonstrations cannot be compared with either the pantry raids of the '50s or the political activism of the '30s. They are far more relevant than the former, and far more sophisticated than the latter.

Protest action has been aimed at everything from new regulations governing the consumption of alcohol at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn. to policies restricting student political activity at the University of California, and almost everything in between.

At the University of Pennsylvania, several hundred students demonstrated against the construction of a new fine arts building on campus, on grounds that it would destroy one of the few tree-shaded open spots at the university.

At the University of Texas, the campus chapter of the Students for a Democratic Society picketed against the use of black face make - up in a campus minstrel show on grounds that it was degrading to the Negro and the university's Negro students.

At City University of New York, students organized a two-month campaign favoring free tuition, and worked to defeat candidates for the state legislature who opposed it.

Much student protest activity has centered on civil rights. At the University of Colorado, the campus chapter of the Congress on Racial Equality picketed a restaurant which had refused to hire a Negro girl. The restaurant gave her the job within an hour after the picketing began.

At Bradley, in Peoria, Ill., the university chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been trying to get a local barber to serve Negro customers. Its action attracted national attention and sparked several lawsuits.

Bradley and Colorado are not two isolated incidents. Most major colleges and universities have at least one student civil rights organization.

The attitude of most of these groups is that it is fine to sponsor speakers, raise money and write messages of support for the national organizations, but that their real function is to combat discrimination directly in their local communities.

Sometimes this will take the form of tutorial projects for the indigent Negroes or migrant workers, but as often it will take the form of nonviolent protest.

The biggest, longest and best organized protest, however, is at the University of California at Berkeley, where thousands of students have been contesting a ban on campus political activity since last September.

The ban, which prepented student political organizations from distributing literature, recruiting members, and soliciting funds in an area adjacent to the university's student union, has kept the 27,500 student campus in a periodic uproar since last fall. It also has caused U.S. educators to begin re-examining the relationship of the student to the university.

The situation made nationwide front page headlines last December when police arrested over 800 persons staging a sit-in.

Since then, a number of factions have tried to mediate the dispute with varying degrees of success. Chief hopes for a settlement seem to rest on the recent appointment of a new chancellor, and the decision of the Berkeley faculty to take an active part in the matter by overwhelmingly passing a resolution that substantially supported the students.

This last development is viewed as especially significant, since professors at most institutions are loath to enter disputes that do not directly affect teaching or research.

There is no single reason behind all the protests, but a good many of them, especially those aimed at university administrations, have centered on the issue of "In Loco Parentis." This is the question of to what extent the university can perform the disciplinary functions that would normally be performed by a student's parents.

A second, and probably more important, cause for protest is the student's feeling of alienation from the community in which he finds himself. American institutions of higher education have had to expand tremendously since the war to cope with increased enrollments and demands for higher academic standards.

In the process they often have neglected to do anything to give the student a meaningful sense of identity with the institution supposedly educating him.

As University of California President Clark Kerr has pointed out, there are many "walking wounded" on campus today. An oft - heard student complaint is that university officials are not consulting them on decisions affecting them.

Apparently this was the reason behind a demonstration at the University of Michigan, where a student political party demanded "campus democracy now," as well as more money for teaching, new student housing, better facilities, increased student wages, and a lower cost of living on campus.

It also seems to be behind a continuing student protest at the University of Illinois, where some students are objecting to an administration decision to build a million-dollar intramural building with student funds without soliciting student opinion.

During the Berkeley demonstrations, students pinned IBM cards to their clothing which bore the message: "I am a University of California Student. Do not bend, spindle or mutilate." And at an eastern college, students formed an organization called "The Ad Hoc Committee to Protest the Machine."

The recently concluded presidential campaign also contributed to student unrest. Students participated heavily in politics during the past year, and on a number of campuses this brought them into conflict with school regulations. On others, student involvement in national politics translated itself into a heightened awareness of campus - oriented issues.

Based on observation and interviews with protesting students, it would be a mistake to assume that the new rash of demonstrations is either campus high jinks or campus radicalism. The majority of those who join a demonstration do so usually because they feel the issue is relevant enough to merit it, almost never to "blow off steam."

Most students involved in protests are serious scholars with high grade averages, and they do not lightly put their high academic standing and their hard-won opportunities to enter graduate school on the line. Most campus issues cut sharply across traditional political lines, and often a student protest will involve both Goldwaterites and Socialists.

If there is any one reason for increased student protest, however, it would probably be the civil rights movement. The movement, which involved large numbers of politically active students from the beginning, convinced many of them that nonviolent demonstration could be as effective on the campus as it was off it. It also served to make them more sensitive to abuses of their own civil rights.

NOT AN ILL WIND

INDEPENDENCE, Kan. (AP) —Robert Penrod, local hotel manager, gave a salesman a check for a supply of meat. The salesman returned a short time later, bemoaning the fact that he had dropped the check and it had blown away. Penrod went with the salesman, dropped a blank check just like the original in the place where the man said the other had been lost. A gust of wind blew the blank check a block away and behind a building. Nearby, they found the original lost check.

Potential Strike Is Seen in U.S. Steel Industry

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — With most longshoremen back on the job, federal officials are bracing themselves for the next potential labor explosion — in the steel industry.

While no one is predicting a steel strike, or even whether over government intervention will be needed, the Labor Department is clearly uneasy over the possibilities.

Spokesmen insist, however, that beside the dock strike and possible steel troubles, prospects are for a generally peaceful year at the bargaining table even though about one-third of all union contracts — covering about 5 million workers — are up for renwal.

While some longshoremen are still on strike, most major ports are back in operation.

The most immediately worrisome aspect of the steel talks is the uncertainty over the election contest for president of the million-member AFL-CIO United Steelworkers of America.

"Nobody will be able to do a thing until we know who the leader is," said one government spokesman, referring to the contest betewen President David J. McDonald and Secretary-Treasurer I. W. Abel, for the presidency of the Steelworkers Union.

Abel has claimed victory, but official ballots are still being tabulated. McDonald forces are talking about a court fight if their man is declared the loser.

The union's talks with the steel industry were recessed pending the outcome of the elction and several weeks of bargaining time already have been lost. Steel contracts expire May 1.

While rejecting predictions of widespread labor strife the rest of the year, some Labor Departmnt officials concede that any of the major contract talks could erupt unexpectedly.

Aerospace, textiles, rubber, aluminum, canning and construction are some of the big negotiations coming up.

New York City newspapers, shut down for 114 days in late 1962 and early 1963, are locked in another tough set of negotiations with union printers. The contracts of 10 New York newspaper unions expire March 30.

Despite a sharp rise in strikes during the past six months, the Labor Department insists the period looks worse than it really was because 1963 was so quiet.

Department spokesmen say such publicized strikes as last fall's auto walkouts and the current dock strike created a misleading impression of general labor strife.

The walkouts at General Motors, Ford and American Motors accounted for nearly one-third of the 23 million man-days of strike time last year.

While the figure may seem large, the Labor Department points out that the 23 million days were only .18 of 1 per cent of total working time in all nonfarm businesses and industries. The figure in 1963 was .13 of 1 per cent, a 19-year low.

One factor that leads government officials to hope for a generally quiet labor scene the rest of the year is the absence for the first time in years of any major rail dispute.

Although threatened nationwide rail strikes never quite materialized, the industry's fights with about a dozen unions became virtually a fulltime job for federal mediators the past few years.

WRONG-WAY DRIVERS—Statistics show that about 8 per cent of fatal freeway accidents are caused by wrong-way driving. Near Sacramento, Calif., engineers have been experimenting with a sign that warns wrong-way drivers with a horn and a blinking red light. The action is triggered by a detector buried in the pavement.

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — With most longshoremen back on the job, federal officials are bracing themselves for the next potential labor explosion — in the steel industry.

While no one is predicting a steel strike, or even whether over government intervention will be needed, the Labor Department is clearly uneasy over the possibilities.

Spokesmen insist, however, that beside the dock strike and possible steel troubles, prospects are for a generally peaceful year at the bargaining table even though about one-third of all union contracts — covering about 5 million workers — are up for renwal.

While some longshoremen are still on strike, most major ports are back in operation.

The most immediately worrisome aspect of the steel talks is the uncertainty over the election contest for president of the million-member AFL-CIO United Steelworkers of America.

"Nobody will be able to do a thing until we know who the leader is," said one government spokesman, referring to the contest betewen President David J. McDonald and Secretary-Treasurer I. W. Abel, for the presidency of the Steelworkers Union.

Abel has claimed victory, but official ballots are still being tabulated. McDonald forces are talking about a court fight if their man is declared the loser.

The union's talks with the steel industry were recessed pending the outcome of the elction and several weeks of bargaining time already have been lost. Steel contracts expire May 1.

While rejecting predictions of widespread labor strife the rest of the year, some Labor Departmnt officials concede that any of the major contract talks could erupt unexpectedly.

Aerospace, textiles, rubber, aluminum, canning and construction are some of the big negotiations coming up.

CHAPLIN GIRL HEADED FOR STARDOM: DIRECTOR

HOLLYWOOD — Three top magazines in the United States have writers in Spain covering Geraldine Chaplin, there making "Dr. Zhivago." Director David Lean, after working with her a week, said: "She has that indefinable spark that spells movie stardom. Personality seems to leap from the screen." Metro has two more commitments with her, but after this one she goes to Poland to appear in "We Will Go to the City" for an Italian company; then plays Anne Boleyn for Hal Wallis in "Anne of a Thousand Days" to be filmed in London. Peter O'Toole may be Henry VIII. The Spanish press had Geraldine engaged to three different men — one of whom she never met. A co-worker describes her as "unspoiled, unsophisticated, bright, amusing and a born mimic."

It looks as though Sophia Loren will star in a picture written and directed by Charlie Chaplin. They huddled while Sophia was working near Chaplin's home in Vevey, Switzerland.

Harold Lloyd never officially retired from the screen. He just quit after his experience with Preston Sturges. He's interested in everything, has the money to indulge imself, and unlike most stars, doesn't have to act to be happy. But Producer-Director Fielder Cook, his greatest fan, is out to get him for a straight acting role in "Laredo." Harold gave him no encouragement but invited him over for a visit.

Says Cook: "We spent an hour listening to music in his drawing room. I sat in the world's most comfortable chair. If I had that home, those 3,000 records and that chair I wouldn't do anything else either."

"And what did he say about acting again?" I asked.

"Well, he didn't say no. He promised to read my script. He could take his part and knock them out of the box." And win an oscar, too.

It's decision time again for Lucille Ball. I thought I'd get a head start on all the other reporters and called her at home early in the morning. "I'm just getting into my leotards," she said. "I'll stretch a bit and see if I can't get an answer. Then I'm going to the studio and stare at things." Her contract with CBS runs until 1970 and she gets paid whether she works or not. So does Desi Arnaz. Why knock themselves out?

Did you know that no star in a George Stevens picture ever won a best actress or actor Oscar. Yet Stevens was voted best director twice, won the D. W. Griffith and Irving Thalberg awards.

Carl Reiner, one of the highest paid writers here, took minimum salary to play the defense attorney in "Art of Love" with Dick Van Dyke. The preview cards called them both the greatest.

Jerry Lewis has a new toy. He's directing "The Family Jewels' from a helicopter in Ontario, Calif. When a pal asked what he'd do for an encore (he plays six characters in this one), he said he might dress up as a girl and play his own leading lady in the next.

Sammy Cahn got to Florida to play "Marriage on the Rocks" for Frank Sinatra (a mere formality since he hasn't turned down a song in over 20 years) and read an item in my column about his son, Steve. "I have blown it up and framed it," he said. "A letter from Steve in Hawaii recounts the 'fun' of being evacuated to high ground because of the tidal wave scare. You know what water could do to those electrified musicians! If it weren't that my son was involved, I might almost arrange for a tidal wave to hit the whole electric guitar industry."

Walter Shenson wires from London that he's offered Ringo's new wife, Maureen Cox, a role in the Beatles picture. Whether she accepts or not, you can bet she'll be going to Nassau where they'll be on location.

EYE SCANNING AND DREAMS

There are two kinds of sleep. Most of the time is spent in an unconscious state, unaware of our associations, memories, thoughts, and feelings. The brain waves, as registered on the electroencephalogram, are large and slow.

But every 90 minutes during sleep there are 10 to 15 minute periods of rapid eyeball movements (REMs). The brain waves quicken and become smaller; they resemble the pattern noted during the drowsy-waking interval. If the individual is awakened at this time, he almost always is found to have been dreaming. This second type of sleep is called REM, or paradoxical sleep. Dreams occur at this time but they usually are forgotten unless the person is awakened during the REM episodes.

Dreams are an essential component of sleep. Several months ago we wrote on an experiment in which a group of men were awakened at the first sign of REM and robbed of their dream Two things occurred: The REM periods came on sooner during sleep as though the mind needed to "get something off its chest." Meanwhile, the subject became anxious, irritable, and unable to concentrate after four or five dreamless night.

We are asked frequently whether dreams can occur in color. The answer is yes, more so when color adds meaning to a concept. This is more likely to happen during daytime naps, fever, intoxication, or when the brain is damaged by injury, tumor, or stroke.

I understand that a person must have normal color vision to recall dreaming in color. This suggests that REMS occur when the dreamer is scanning the visual scene. This is likely because blind people do not have periods of rapid eyeball movements.

Dr. Ven Delen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

B. P. writes: I am 14 years old. Five years ago I had chicken pox and still have dark bumps on my skin. They seem to be shrinking. Is there any way I can bleach them or speed the shrinkage?

REPLY

Let well enough alone, so long as an improvement is noted. Are you sure these bumps are not caused by acne?

MEASLES DURING PREGNANCY

Mrs. J. M. writes: Would an attack of regular measles during the second month of pregnancy harm the baby?

REPLY

This is questionable, even thought it is said that viruses may cause fetal defects. The situation is different with German measles.

FEVER BLISTERS

.R M. writes: Is there an effective salve for herpes simplex?

REPLY

These small blisters heal more rapidly when they are kept dry. As a result, salves are not as effective as alcohol, camphor, tincture of benzoin,, or a 15 per cent solution of trichloroacetic acid.

CAN'T TAKE IT

F. E. B. writes: Will you please explain a nervous breakdown exactly.

REPLY

This is a lay term for a mental (psychotic) disorder such as manic depression or schizophrenia. These breakdowns develop as a result of overwhelming stress to which the individual cannot adjust.

EYE SCANNING AND DREAMS

There are two kinds of sleep. Most of the time is spent in an unconscious state, unaware of our associations, memories, thoughts, and feelings. The brain waves, as registered on the electroencephalogram, are large and slow.

But every 90 minutes during sleep there are 10 to 15 minute periods of rapid eyeball movements (REMs). The brain waves quicken and become smaller; they resemble the pattern noted during the drowsy-waking interval. If the individual is awakened at this time, he almost always is found to have been dreaming. This second type of sleep is called REM, or paradoxical sleep. Dreams occur at this time but they usually are forgotten unless the person is awakened during the REM episodes.

Dreams are an essential component of sleep. Several months ago we wrote on an experiment in which a group of men were awakened at the first sign of REM and robbed of their dream Two things occurred: The REM periods came on sooner during sleep as though the mind needed to "get something off its chest." Meanwhile, the subject became anxious, irritable, and unable to concentrate after four or five dreamless night.

We are asked frequently whether dreams can occur in color. The answer is yes, more so when color adds meaning to a concept. This is more likely to happen during daytime naps, fever, intoxication, or when the brain is damaged by injury, tumor, or stroke.

I understand that a person must have normal color vision to recall dreaming in color. This suggests that REMS occur when the dreamer is scanning the visual scene. This is likely because blind people do not have periods of rapid eyeball movements.

Another manifestation of dreaming is grinding the teeth. Most dreamers clench the jaw muscles during the REM periods. The tooth grinder goes at the process more vigorously.

Dr. Ven Delen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

This is questionable, even thought it is said that viruses may cause fetal defects. The situation is different with German measles.

These small blisters heal more rapidly when they are kept dry. As a result, salves are not as effective as alcohol, camphor, tincture of benzoin,, or a 15 per cent solution of trichloroacetic acid.

New Laws Are Proposed to Combat Crime

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON (AP) — A thick package of new crime laws aimed both at fighting organized crime and salvaging the young criminal is under study by the Johnson administration.

Administration sources said today the crime package probably will place special stress on laws granting immunity to witnesses in certain categories of organized crime investigations.

While it is expected to propose major new laws in the fields of narcotics, arson, firearms and wiretapping, it will seek also to put federal money into the fight against juvenile delinquency.

It may even contain a thorough overhaul of bail practices to grant pre-trial freedom to eligible defendants even if they can't afford bail.

One source stressed that the crime bills are a long way from completion and may not be ready for Congress until spring.

These are the lines along which administration experts are thinking as they assemble the crime package, which will be accompanied by a special message from President Johnson:

—Immunity: Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach and his predecessor, Robert F. Kennedy, have pleaded for laws that will grant immunity from prosecution to witnesses in certain federal criminal investigations.

The laws being considered by the administration probably will deal with investigations of bankruptcy fraud and interstate travel in aid of racketeering. The bankruptcy dodge is one of organized crime's more recent incursions into legitimate business.

—Firearms: Johnson is likely to propose strict controls over the sale and registration of firearms — possibly forbidding their sale to minors under 18 and to persons with criminal records.

—Arson: Under consideration is a law to make arson in connection with interstate travel a federal offense. The Justice Department is convinced that gangsters have reaped millions in insurance money after burning buildings they own, either directly or through fronts.

—Narcotics: The administration is considering some sort of legislation that will primarily affect the users of narcotics.

—Wiretapping: Despite reversals in Congress, the administration plans once more to ask for a law permitting, under strict controls, the tapping of telephone lines in certain criminal investigations, and the use in court of evidence gained from such taps.

—Juvenile delinquency: The government would, under a proposal being considered, expand its system of "halfway houses" to improve the chances of young offenders to face society after they've been in prison.

—Police training: The administration is considering a bill under which the federal government would contribute to the training of local law enforcement officers. Still being debated is whether the aid would be strictly financial or involve federal personnel.

Red China May Be Mastermind In U.N. Crisis

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. delegates believe Peking was the mastermind behind Albania's demand Tuesday for a formal vote that would force the U.S.-Soviet showdown in the United Nations which the General Assembly has been striving to avoid.

Most diplomats refused to speak on the record, but they said privately it was obvious Red China was behind the sudden move by chief Albanian delegate Halim Budo, which caught other assembly members completely off guard.

"It looks as if some people want to wreck the United Nations," U.S. chief delegate Adlai E. Stevenson told reporters.

Asked if he thought Peking had a hand in it, Stevenson said he had no clues, then added, "I suppose so."

Most diplomats felt Albania would not have suddenly run counter to the wishes of the assembly unless the Chinese Communists had brought heavy pressure to bear. Budo waved aside newsmen who sought to question him after the stormy session.

"Everything I had to say I said on the assembly floor," he declared.

Budo sought the floor at the start of the meeting. It had promised to be a routine session to declare a long recess while a special committee tried to resolve the peacekeeping muddle that has paralyzed the assembly.

Delegates bolted upright when Budo declared the time had come to end the voting moratorium that has frozen assembly business since the session began Dec. 1.

Budo lashed out at the United States, accusing the Americans of "barbaric bombing" in North Viet Nam and trying to use the United Nations as a "screen for its actions in Indochina."

He then loosed a broadside at both the United States and the Soviet Union, declaring "we cannot tolerate the dominance of the United Nations by two powers at the expense of all the other members."

Budo proposed that the assembly decide at once by roll call to elect its steering committee, adopt an agenda and get to work.

Stammering with surprise, Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana declared the entire membership had agreed to the voteless procedure "in an overwhelming desire not to have a confrontation at the present session."

He appealed to Budo not to press his motion, but the Albanian insisted.

This touched off a series of appeals from Saudi Arabia, Ethiopia, Guinea, Liberia, Sweden, Cameroon and Cyprus. Budo stood his ground.

After conferring with U.N. legal experts, Quaison-Sackey resorted to his powers as president.

"If I correctly sense the feeling of the assembly, the assembly would like to adjourn until Thursday at 3 p.m.," Quaison-Sackey said. Budo raised his hand, then shrugged as Quaison-Sackey banged down the gavel.

Collision Covered By State Insurance

DENVER (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge William E. Doyle ruled Tuesday that Carl L. Hicken, 32, of Hideaway Park, Colo., was covered by a state insurance policy when his dump truck and a bus collided last March 26.

Hicken, the bus driver and 2 bus passengers were killed and 33 other passengers were hurt.

Five damage suits have been filed in the federal court against Hicken and the bus firm and four others in District Court at Golden. The crash was in Jefferson County, west of Denver.

A policy written by the American Surety Co. of New York provides for a maximum of $500,000 for each crash.

Inventor Says He Wants More Status

NEW YORK (AP) — Inventor Theodore A. Rich, who has 97 patents, says it's time that invention was regarded as a profession instead of a joke.

"People think of an inventor as a kind of nut who sits in an attic dreaming up gadgets," Rich says. "A professional inventor doesn't even rate a title as such in industry."

In addition to patents already granted, he has about 12 more pending. Now 59, Rich has averaged more than two patentable inventions a year since he was a $12.50-a-week technician at GE's Lynn,, Mass., laboraory in 1926.

His inventions have ranged from a World War II submarine detector to a device for keeping electric clocks on time. Most have been complex measuring devices for gauging radiation, electric current and the size and eletrical charge of air particles. His work with air particles has gained him wide recognition in atmospheric physics.

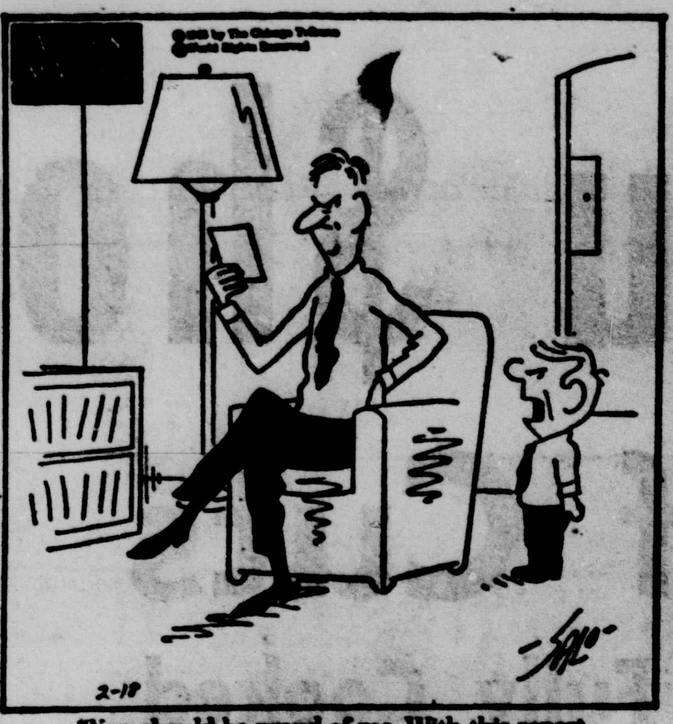
Rich said in an interview that he feels industry should encourage development of more idea men like himself — researchers who are essentially inventors rather than technical experts. While invention in industry often comes under the broad heading of research and development, he feels there is too much emphasis on analysis of facts, not enough on putting facts together.

"In a company like ours," Rich says, "about one-third of our products weren't even thought of 15 years ago. Now if that much of our business comes from inventors why shouldn't invention be regarded as a profession?"

Invention, he feels, is more imagination than brains.

"We're living in an age of the expert and the specialist who thinks he has to be right every time he opens his mouth," the inventor says. "To invent, you have to take a chance on being wrong."

Rich estimates that perhaps one of every 13 of his ideas have produced a patentable invention. So important have his ideas been that in 1960 the Institute of Electronic and Electrical Engineers presented him its Leeds Award for outstanding creative work in electrical measurement. His own company has three times given him its highest technical recognition,, the Charles A. Coffin award.



"You should be proud of me. With this report card another kid would want to drop out!"

Indonesia Takes Over U.S. Cultural Center

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—The American cultural center and library in Jakarta will be placed under Indonesian government supervision, the official Anatara news agency said today.

The center was seized Monday by the semiofficial National Front after a Communist-led demonstration protesting U.S. aerial strikes in North Viet Nam.

The agency said the decision to supervise the cultural center was announced by the third deputy premier, Chaerul Saleh, after a morning conference with President Sukarno.

The U.S. Embassy was not permitted to take any furniture or books from the center.

Air Pollution Control Is Being Sought

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Anthony J. Celebrezze, secretary of health, education and welfare, called for industry to help in solving the nation's problems in air and water pollution, he was touching upon a subject which occupies a substantial share of the attention of thousands of businessmen.

The days when most American rivers ran free and clean, when ground water could be tapped with little effort and water virtually could be had for the asking, are long gone from the national scene. Perhaps the average citizen is not as conscious as he should be of the nation's water problems, or not so acutely aware of them as may be the operator of a big manufacturing plant; the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) has been urging that he keep himself informed better than in the past.

Celebrezze, addressing a National Industrial Conference Board gathering in Washington this week, said that leaders in industry can help by supporting effective pollution control measures at the state and local levels.

Nam reports, in a review of a new book surveying water use in industry, notes that most pollution control measures are embodied in state legislation or in interstate regional compacts, although federal legislation passed in 1956 and amended in 1961 gives the national government some powers to intervene in situations involving interstate or navigable waters affecting interstate conditions.

Most major rivers pass through several states, each of which may have its own ideas on anti-pollution measures, the Nam review noted. It said that one of the most extensive and successful efforts to solve the conflicts in standards has been in the work of the Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission, formed by eight states in 1948.

The commission's job, the Nam noted, "was to reverse the trend of a half-century of indifference to river abuse.

"Through cooperative efforts and a program to spread understanding, it succeeded dramatically. Treatment plants now serve 90 per cent of the sewered population of the Ohio Valley, and four-fifths of the industrial establishments are operating waste control and treatment facilities rated adequate by the signatory states."

This "drainage basin concept," the NAM suggested, seemed to be the "only practical approach to water pollution control within the current framework of this nation's political structure."

But, while the NAM survey was intended primarily for scrutiny by industry, it emphasized that concern about water supplies should be felt by all citizens.

"Nothing could be more desirable than for the average citizen to keep himself so well informed that he can participate constructively in reaching the decisions that will always have to be made in the fields of water resources and water pollution," it said.

OFFERS ALLIANCE

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—The Communists have offered to ally themselves with the Peronists in next month's elections, it was reported Wednesday.

The Red Central Committee in Argentina announced Tuesday that Communists will support Peronist candidates in races not contested by the Reds. It asked the Peronists for reciprocal action.

Communist candidates are in the running only in provincial and local elections in Santa Fe, Mendoza and Chaco provinces.

Collision Covered By State Insurance

DENVER (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge William E. Doyle ruled Tuesday that Carl L. Hicken, 32, of Hideaway Park, Colo., was covered by a state insurance policy when his dump truck and a bus collided last March 26.

Hicken, the bus driver and 2 bus passengers were killed and 33 other passengers were hurt.

Five damage suits have been filed in the federal court against Hicken and the bus firm and four others in District Court at Golden. The crash was in Jefferson County, west of Denver.

A policy written by the American Surety Co. of New York provides for a maximum of $500,000 for each crash.

Inventor Says He Wants More Status

NEW YORK (AP) — Inventor Theodore A. Rich, who has 97 patents, says it's time that invention was regarded as a profession instead of a joke.

"People think of an inventor as a kind of nut who sits in an attic dreaming up gadgets," Rich says. "A professional inventor doesn't even rate a title as such in industry."

In addition to patents already granted, he has about 12 more pending. Now 59, Rich has averaged more than two patentable inventions a year since he was a $12.50-a-week technician at GE's Lynn,, Mass., laboraory in 1926.

His inventions have ranged from a World War II submarine detector to a device for keeping electric clocks on time. Most have been complex measuring devices for gauging radiation, electric current and the size and eletrical charge of air particles. His work with air particles has gained him wide recognition in atmospheric physics.

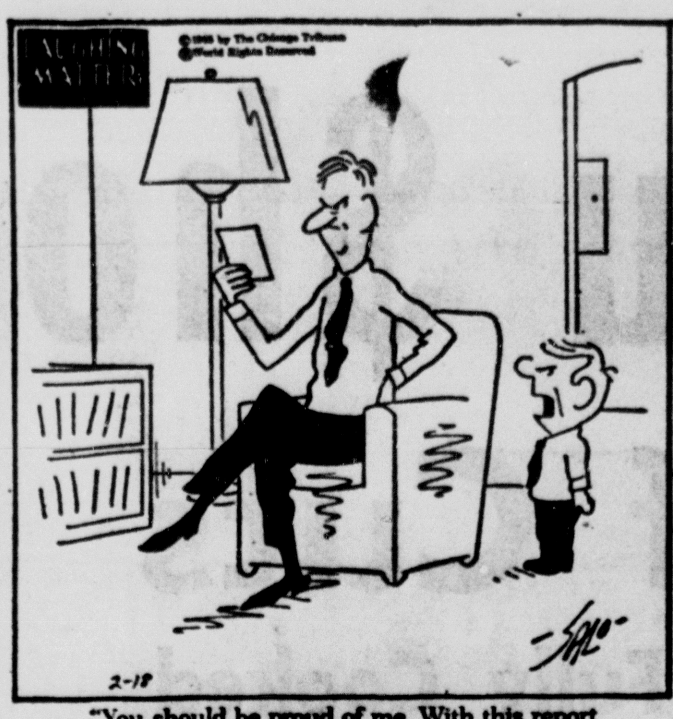
Rich said in an interview that he feels industry should encourage development of more idea men like himself — researchers who are essentially inventors rather than technical experts. While invention in industry often comes under the broad heading of research and development, he feels there is too much emphasis on analysis of facts, not enough on putting facts together.

"In a company like ours," Rich says, "about one-third of our products weren't even thought of 15 years ago. Now if that much of our business comes from inventors why shouldn't invention be regarded as a profession?"

Invention, he feels, is more imagination than brains.

"We're living in an age of the expert and the specialist who thinks he has to be right every time he opens his mouth," the inventor says. "To invent, you have to take a chance on being wrong."

Rich estimates that perhaps one of every 13 of his ideas have produced a patentable invention. So important have his ideas been that in 1960 the Institute of Electronic and Electrical Engineers presented him its Leeds Award for outstanding creative work in electrical measurement. His own company has three times given him its highest technical recognition,, the Charles A. Coffin award.



"You should be proud of me. With this report card another kid would want to drop out!"

Indonesia Takes Over U.S. Cultural Center

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)— The American cultural center and library in Jakarta will be placed under Indonesian government supervision, the official Anatara news agency said today.

The center was seized Monday by the semiofficial National Front after a Communist-led demonstration protesting U.S. aerial strikes in North Viet Nam.

The agency said the decision to supervise the cultural center was announced by the third deputy premier, Chaerul Saleh, after a morning conference with President Sukarno.

The U.S. Embassy was not permitted to take any furniture or books from the center.

Air Pollution Control Is Being Sought

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Anthony J. Celebrezze, secretary of health, education and welfare, called for industry to help in solving the nation's problems in air and water pollution, he was touching upon a subject which occupies a substantial share of the attention of thousands of businessmen.

The days when most American rivers ran free and clean, when ground water could be tapped with little effort and water virtually could be had for the asking, are long gone from the national scene. Perhaps the average citizen is not as conscious as he should be of the nation's water problems, or not so acutely aware of them as may be the operator of a big manufacturing plant; the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) has been urging that he keep himself informed better than in the past.

Celebrezze, addressing a National Industrial Conference Board gathering in Washington this week, said that leaders in industry can help by supporting effective pollution control measures at the state and local levels.

Nam reports, in a review of a new book surveying water use in industry, notes that most pollution control measures are embodied in state legislation or in interstate regional compacts, although federal legislation passed in 1956 and amended in 1961 gives the national government some powers to intervene in situations involving interstate or navigable waters affecting interstate conditions.

Most major rivers pass through several states, each of which may have its own ideas on anti-pollution measures, the Nam review noted. It said that one of the most extensive and successful efforts to solve the conflicts in standards has been in the work of the Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission, formed by eight states in 1948.

The commission's job, the Nam noted, "was to reverse the trend of a half-century of indifference to river abuse.

"Through cooperative efforts and a program to spread understanding, it succeeded dramatically. Treatment plants now serve 90 per cent of the sewered population of the Ohio Valley, and four-fifths of the industrial establishments are operating waste control and treatment facilities rated adequate by the signatory states."

This "drainage basin concept," the NAM suggested, seemed to be the "only practical approach to water pollution control within the current framework of this nation's political structure."

But, while the NAM survey was intended primarily for scrutiny by industry, it emphasized that concern about water supplies should be felt by all citizens.

"Nothing could be more desirable than for the average citizen to keep himself so well informed that he can participate constructively in reaching the decisions that will always have to be made in the fields of water resources and water pollution," it said.

OFFERS ALLIANCE

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—The Communists have offered to ally themselves with the Peronists in next month's elections, it was reported Wednesday.

The Red Central Committee in Argentina announced Tuesday that Communists will support Peronist candidates in races not contested by the Reds. It asked the Peronists for reciprocal action.

Communist candidates are in the running only in provincial and local elections in Santa Fe, Mendoza and Chaco provinces.

ome leaders in banking, nsit, utilities, education, con- uction and air defense who ve taken a look at tomorrow's obabilities think you shouldn't it to do something about em. They agree the city is re to stay, in fact will get big- r, but shouldn't be allowed to ow haphazardly as in the st.

"The city is still the market ace for ideas as well as goods d services," says David ckefeller, president of Chase nhattan Bank, New York, in e upcoming issue of the Gen- al Electric Forum. "The forts put into keeping our ies truly livable are basic to r national security."

"We must insure that our ies survive," counsels the mmander in chief of the orth American Air Defense mmand, Gen. John K. Ger- art, "as they contain the peo- e and the industry which uld make this survival mean- gful."

"Nuclear generating stations ld the important promise of aking our cities even clean- ," says Walker L. Cisler, airman of Detroit Edison, and resident of the Edison Electric stitute. "The time will cer- inly come when city dwellers ill welcome the clean, silent, fe nuclear generation stations s a good neighbor."

"The most crucial, frustrating roblem facing U.S. metro- olitan areas today is peak-hour raffic congestion," says San rancisco's B. R. Stokes, gener- l manager of the Bay Area apid Transit District. "Free- ays, though essential, are not y themselves enough."

And just ahead?

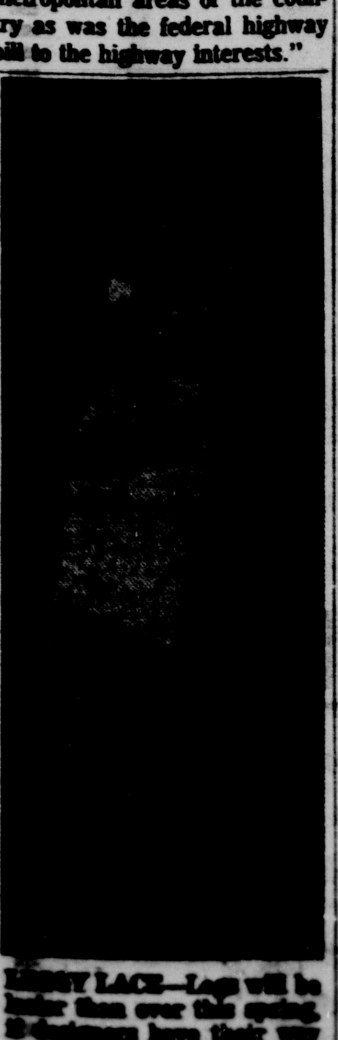
"In the United States there re 180 new towns of 1,000 acres r more in the planning stage or eing built," notes Richard W. O'Neill, editor in chief of House nd Home magazine. "When completed, they will eventually house close to 15 million people nd may represent a total outlay of as much as $100 billion. In full swing, they could account for as much as 20 per cent of housing's annual production."

How to deal with the problems that this expansion will intensify?

Rockefeller feels that government money, except for public facilities such as roads, schools and parks, can't do the trick alone. He calls for "active partnership between private enterprise and government agencies at all levels."

Gen. Gerhart says our present weapons are effective against the bombers of today, but "any improvement in speed capability of Soviet bombers or in the range of their air-to-surface missiles carried by the bombers would stretch our resources to the limit."

The traffic snarl will call for lots of government help, Stokes contends. He believes that the recent passage of the $375-million federal mass transit bill will become "as important to the transit industry and the metropolitan areas of the country as was the federal highway bill to the highway interests."



LEGGY LACE—Legs will be lacier than ever this spring, if designers have their way —as they usually do. One New York creator has fashioned matching umbrella and stockings.

Moon Program May Lag, Says Space Expert

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Space agency chief James E. Webb conceded today that the United States may not be able to put a man on the moon by 1970 after all.

Webb said there still is a possibility that the goal can be achieved but only if the 15 scheduled preliminary test flights were reduced. He said there were indications that this could be done.

Webb discussed the Apollo moon program in testimony before the House Space Committee. The panel began hearings today on the $5.2 billion that President Johnson requested for civilian space activities during the fiscal year starting July 1.

Webb, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), said an important fact was underlying the President's budget decision.

It means, Webb said, that the space program is now operating at a $5.2 billion level instead of the $5.7 billion level that the late President John F. Kennedy said was necessary to give the United States a "fighting chance" to reach the moon by 1970.

FOOD POISONING

LONDRINA, Brazil (UPI)—Three hundred persons stricken by food poisoning at a wedding reception in suburban Nova Danzig were in hospital here Wednesday.

Hospital authorities said 100 of the sufferers are in serious condition, including the newlyweds.

An estimated $8.6 billion in health insurance benefits was paid in 1964 — some $800 million more than in the previous year.

White Trend Seen in Spring Footwear

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—When the U.S. Olympic Team marched onto the field in Tokyo last Fall it confirmed a trend in men's wear just beginning at the time — a return to white shoes. The team's were white buckskin with red rubber soles.

At the recent showing of men's Spring shoes in New York almost every manufacturer featured white shoes. There were many variations but seen most often was the classic saddle shoe that was long a must on college campuses. Many were combined with black or brown.

Along with the white shoes was a noticeable lightening of colors in leisure wear and lighter weight leather in dress shoes —which made the brogue possible for Spring wear in men's and boys' shoes with the classic pinking, perforation and long wing tips.

Moccasins in everything from white to black and brown made up the builk of the showings, with business or dress - casual slip-ons close behind.

The hole Fashion Service of the Leather Industries of America emphasized the "instant moldability" of leather for the lighter weight shoes and said when shoes are lined in leather too you can avoid abrasion and hot sticky feet.

For the junior set the Service showed brogues "just like dad's" plus an assortment of slip-ons, oxfords and moccasins. In this category there was a return to the leather saddle oxford with emphasis on brown-and-white and black-and-white combinations.

The teen-agers took it a bit further with "Beatle boots," and casuals in waxy, brushed and grained leathers for the classroom.

Over at the National Shoe Institute the teen-agers were treated to something called "Moots" —moccasins raised to boot power. There also were Alpine, chukha and Wellington boots.

One odd-looking number was called both a Beatle boot and also an LBJ. It was much higher than the ordinary chukha boot and had a loop on the back for the yanking necessary to get it on (Stetson).

Another variation in the whites was a 3-tie blucher with red sole (Bates Floater), a five-tie Olympic Blucher style in white buck with thick red sole (Thom McAn), a 3-tie perforated toe (Jarman) and black-and-white and brown-and-whites in wingtip with white vamp (Stetson), a classic 3-tie wingtip in Corfam with white vamp (Winthrop), a wingtip with white grain and smooth black calf (Jarman).

Another category featured extremely soft leathers in casuals. A 2-tie pebble grain in chocolate brown had a very low heel like "flats" (Renegade), A 3-tie moccasin with white sole had an upper in pale blue (B. W. Footwear). A light taupe brushed pigskin had a Swiss fold at the top (Bates).

Pay Increase For Judges Is Being Sought

DENVER (UPI)— Judges should receive substantial increases in salary to maintain top quality men in those positions, the House Judiciary Committee was told Tuesday.

The testimony was made in connection with a bill being studied by the committee. The bill would raise the salaries of Supreme Court Justices from $18,000 to $25,000 a year. It would increase the pay of district judges from $14,000 to $22,000 yearly.

The proposed changes would cost the state more than $600,000 a year.

The committee took no action on the bill Tuesday. Rep. Ben Klein, D-Denver, chairman of the committee, said a vote on the bill probably would be taken next week.

The president of the Colorado Bar Association, Walter Steele, urged the Legislature to substantially increase the pay for judges.

Steele said attorneys could earn more practicing law than in running for judge.

Highest dropout rate—48 per cent—was for American Indians; 44 per cent for Negroes, 25 per cent for native whites, and less than 10 per cent for youths of Japanese and Chinese heritage.

More than a fourth of the nation's youth 16 to 24 years old were dropouts in 1960, with rates highest for those enrolled in grades below those normal for their ages. Other reasons for quitting school included low-income home and low educational attainments of parents.

Photographic Mission to Mars Planned

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency has pinpointed locations on a 4,000-mile long area of Mars that are to be photographed by Mariner 4 next July 14.

The spacecraft's television camera will take pictures — almost simultaneously — of the Martian seasons of fall and spring as it flies past the Red Planet.

This is because the target area is divided between the northern hemisphere — where it will be autumn, and the southern hemisphere — where it will be spring.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) announced Sunday that the exact points at which the spacecrafts cameras will be aimed were determined by an analysis of Mariner's flight path by NASA engineers.

NASA asked both amateur and professional astronomers to observe the areas for purposes of comparison of Mariner photographs with those taken by ground-based telescopes.

The areas will be telescopically visible a number of times over the next several months before and after Mars makes its closest approach to each in early March.

If Mariner is still operating normally on July 14, it will take up to 21 television photographs and make instrumental measurements of the Martian atmosphere which may indicate whether the planet can harbor life.

It will take about eight hours and 20 minutes to transmit each television picture to earth. Photographs will be stored on tape and played back to earth when Mariner has passed Mars. Each playback will be repeated at least twice.

Ele is a non-smoker. The only time you'll ever see smoke circling above her head is when she's good and angry. One of her pet peeves is rude non-smokers.

Her friend Dennis is a smoker. He finds that a cigarette helps him to relax when studies and exams press on him at college. His pet peeve: "His rude fellow smokers."

We're not here to debate smoking today. You've probbly had your fill of the pros and cons of smoking. The final decision will be up to you, your parents and the law. We urge you to face all the facts and look at the possible consequences honestly before you decide which side of the fence you're going to sit on.

So what's on tab today? We've a column for our older readers on manners, smoking manners. We've seen so many inconsiderate smokers and non-smokers that we're taking to the soapbox today.

We'll give our guest the platform first. So, here's Dennis expounding on the "Eight Commandments for Smokers":

— Thou shalt not ask, "May I smoke" with a closed fist and a threatening voice, but in a courteous manner.

— Thou shalt not smoke in crowded, poorly ventilated areas, such as a bus with all windows closed on a rainy day. The others must either open the windows and get wet or suffocate, both unattractive choices.

— Thou shalt not palm a cigarette in a crowded elevator and singe the knees of the man standing behind you. Dispose of the cigarette before entering the elevator.

— Thou shalt not smoke in "No Smoking" areas, such as in hospitals near oxygen tanks. You may blow up the place. This is very poor manners.

— Thou shalt not grind cut cigarettes in coffee cups, saucers, water lasses, etc. This is strictly for the slobs. Ask for an ash tray instead.

— Thou shalt not leave messy cigarette ashes as souvenirs in the home of non-smoking hosts. Empty and rinse out the ash tray in the bathroom or utility room, not the kitchen sink. It would not be thoughtful to start a blaze in the wastepaper basket because one has carelessly neglected to check the ashes before tossing them away.

— Thou shalt not burn holes in other people's furniture or clothing.

Now it's Ele's turn. So, here are four ideas for the non-smokers who are sometimes inconsiderate toward smokers:

— Thou shalt not stare at people who smoke, as if they were committing wicked, sinful acts.

— Thou shalt not bug the smoker by reciting the latest statistics on smoking and cancer deaths; nor by teasing him on the Freudian symbolism of smoking; nor by accusing him of taking up the habit to show off.

— Thou shalt not begrudge 50 cents to purchase at least one ash tray. If thou art too stingy, save bottle caps or empty tunafish cans for the smoking friends who call on you at home.

— Thou shalt not deceitfully cough and sputter to force a smoker to guiltily put away his cigarette. Instead, casually open the windows to provide better ventilation or move out of the direct downdraft of the smoke, and graciously explain your actions. If you are genuinely allergic to cigarette smoke, politely inform the smoker and ask him to refrain or excuse yourself quietly.

Which ever side you're on, we hope that you're at least thoughtful of others. Are you?

Viet Cong Rebel Is Executed by Saigon Soldiers

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A military firing squad today executed a Viet Cong section leader accused of stirring up a violent antigovernment demonstration Monday in the central Vietnamese town of Thang Binh.

Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, military governor of the area, said the Communist terrorist was behind an attempt by about 2,000 demonstrators to force their way into district headquarters at Thang Binh.

Troops opened fire on the mob, killing 13 persons and wounding three. Several others were arrested.

Thi said the execution was a warning to the Viet Cong and their sympathizers against further antigovernment demonstrations.

He said the Viet Kong have turned to demonstrations because they have been unable to carry out their threats of massive military activity in the area 350 miles northeast of Saigon.

A 20-year-old Viet Cong terrorist was executed in Saigon on Jan. 29 in a warning against Communist terrorism in the capital. The youth had been caught carrying a grenade and a bomb.

At Qui Nhon, the last American body was recovered from the rubble of the servicemen's hotel bombed by the Viet Kong a week ago.

A U.S. military spokesman said all 21 American soldiers killed in the blast now had been accounted for. The bodies of two Vietnamese women employes also were recovered from the wreckage.

The Vietnamese government announced Australia will soon send 17 road building and water supply experts to South Viet Nam.

Australia, which has an advisory mission of about 70 men and several transport planes here, also will send a million textbooks for primary schools and metal roofing for houses occupied by families of Vietnamese military personnel.

The government announced a former province chief was sentenced to six years hard labor for embezzling funds in 1960. The official, Truong Vinh Dinh, was charged with embezzling more than $11,000 while serving as chief of Ninh Thuan Province under President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Communist China today gave its support to a North Vietnamese demand that the three-nation International Control Commission withdraw its inspection teams from North Viet Nam.

The Hanoi government said it could not insure the safety of the teams because of the American air strikes against North Viet Nam.

The commission, composed of Poland, India and Canada, was formed in 1954 to supervise the Indochina armistice.

Her friend Dennis is a smoker. He finds that a cigarette helps him to relax when studies and exams press on him at college. His pet peeve: "His rude fellow smokers."

We're not here to debate smoking today. You've probbly had your fill of the pros and cons of smoking. The final decision will be up to you, your parents and the law. We urge you to face all the facts and look at the possible consequences honestly before you decide which side of the fence you're going to sit on.

So what's on tab today? We've a column for our older readers on manners, smoking manners. We've seen so many inconsiderate smokers and non-smokers that we're taking to the soapbox today.

We'll give our guest the platform first. So, here's Dennis expounding on the "Eight Commandments for Smokers":

— Thou shalt not ask, "May I smoke" with a closed fist and a threatening voice, but in a courteous manner.

— Thou shalt not smoke in crowded, poorly ventilated areas, such as a bus with all windows closed on a rainy day. The others must either open the windows and get wet or suffocate, both unattractive choices.

— Thou shalt not palm a cigarette in a crowded elevator and singe the knees of the man standing behind you. Dispose of the cigarette before entering the elevator.

— Thou shalt not smoke in "No Smoking" areas, such as in hospitals near oxygen tanks. You may blow up the place. This is very poor manners.

— Thou shalt not grind cut cigarettes in coffee cups, saucers, water lasses, etc. This is strictly for the slobs. Ask for an ash tray instead.

— Thou shalt not leave messy cigarette ashes as souvenirs in the home of non-smoking hosts. Empty and rinse out the ash tray in the bathroom or utility room, not the kitchen sink. It would not be thoughtful to start a blaze in the wastepaper basket because one has carelessly neglected to check the ashes before tossing them away.

— Thou shalt not burn holes in other people's furniture or clothing.

— Thou shalt not purposely blow smoke in another's face.

Now it's Ele's turn. So, here are four ideas for the non-smokers who are sometimes inconsiderate toward smokers:

— Thou shalt not stare at people who smoke, as if they were committing wicked, sinful acts.

— Thou shalt not bug the smoker by reciting the latest statistics on smoking and cancer deaths; nor by teasing him on the Freudian symbolism of smoking; nor by accusing him of taking up the habit to show off.

— Thou shalt not begrudge 50 cents to purchase at least one ash tray. If thou art too stingy, save bottle caps or empty tunafish cans for the smoking friends who call on you at home.

— Thou shalt not deceitfully cough and sputter to force a smoker to guiltily put away his cigarette. Instead, casually open the windows to provide better ventilation or move out of the direct downdraft of the smoke, and graciously explain your actions. If you are genuinely allergic to cigarette smoke, politely inform the smoker and ask him to refrain or excuse yourself quietly.

Which ever side you're on, we hope that you're at least thoughtful of others. Are you?

Viet Cong Rebel Is Executed by Saigon Soldiers

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A military firing squad today executed a Viet Cong section leader accused of stirring up a violent antigovernment demonstration Monday in the central Vietnamese town of Thang Binh.

Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, military governor of the area, said the Communist terrorist was behind an attempt by about 2,000 demonstrators to force their way into district headquarters at Thang Binh.

Troops opened fire on the mob, killing 13 persons and wounding three. Several others were arrested.

Thi said the execution was a warning to the Viet Cong and their sympathizers against further antigovernment demonstrations.

He said the Viet Kong have turned to demonstrations because they have been unable to carry out their threats of massive military activity in the area 350 miles northeast of Saigon.

A 20-year-old Viet Cong terrorist was executed in Saigon on Jan. 29 in a warning against Communist terrorism in the capital. The youth had been caught carrying a grenade and a bomb.

Visit to Soviet Union By LBJ Put on Ice

MOSCOW (AP) — The Viet Nam flareup has put on ice prospects for visits by President Johnson to the Soviet Union and Soviet leaders to the United States.

Just two weeks ago, Johnson said he hoped the visits would take place this year. Now consideration of them has been suspended according to Soviet and U.S. sources.

They say the U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam and the hostile Soviet reaction destroyed the atmosphere necessary for an exchange of visits.

Dr. Sheppard Still Awaits Court Decision

EDITOR'S NOTE — Any day now Dr. Sam Sheppard expects word that the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati has ruled on whether the freedom he has enjoyed for seven months will end in a return to prison. In this exclusive interview, by AP writer John Sheppard — no relation — Sheppard and the German divorcee he married last summer tell of their life together and their anxiety.

By JOHN SHEPPARD

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — "When you've gone through 10 years of hell, you know how precious your freedom is," says Dr. Sam Sheppard.

These are tension-filled days for Sheppard, 41, and his German-born wife, the former Ariane Tebbenjohanns. She married Sheppard two days after his release July 16 from Ohio Penitentiary where he was serving a life sentence for the bludgeon slaying of his first wife, Marilyn.

Mrs. Sheppard, 35, a slim, attractive blonde, shares her husband's anxiety and seeks to bolster his hope that he won't return to prison.

A decision on this could come any day now from the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

The Sheppards live quietly in a rented five-room brick row house in suburban Rocky River. Occasionally they go out to dinner and a show, but they avoid night clubs or other public places.

They spent most of their time at home where Sam reads medical journals and compiles lists of new drugs. He has been teaching his bride how to use surgical instruments. Some day, he hopes, she will be his surgical assistant.

"He's never been so scared in all his life," she said. "How much can one man endure? Sam is strong, but he's only human. Sam said the thought of possibly going back to prison would be more than he could stand."

The former osteopath has insisted that a "bushy-haired" intruder beat his pregnant wife to death in their suburban Bay Village home before dawn July 4, 1954. A jury convicted him of second-degree murder, which carries a life sentence and possibility of parole after 10 years.

Appeals involving expenses Ariane estimated at more than $100,000 failed as the years went by. But last July Sheppard was released on a writ of habeas corpus from U.S. Dist. Judge Lester A. Weinman of Dayton. The judge ruled Sheppard's constitutional rights were violated during the trial — in part by what the judge called unfair newspaper publicity.

The state appealed Judge Weinman's order freeing Sheppard on $10,000 bond. The three-judge federal appellate court heard final arguments last Oct. 9.

If the court upholds Judge Weinman, Sheppard will remain free and the state must decide whether to retry him.

Lee Bailey of Boston, counsel for Sheppard, said he would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary, to prevent Sheppard's return to prison.

"I think his chances of ever coming back are remote," said Bailey.

While a decision is pending, Sheppard prefers to let his wife talk about their uncertain future. He is trying to prepare himself mentally and physically for whatever may come. Daily he does push-ups and bar-bell lifts. His waistline is 32 inches, and at 175 he is 10 pounds under what he weighed in Ohio Penitentiary.

About their plans, Ariane said her husband wants to:

—Adopt Iris, her 11-year-old daughter by a previous marriage. The girl is in a boarding school outside Dusseldorf, Germany.

—Visit Culver Military Academy in Indiana where his son, Sam Jr., 17, is a senior looking toward a career in law or medicine.

—Regain his license as an osteopathic surgeon specializing in diseases of the nervous system. He said he has had a dozen job offers from hospitals in Pennsylvania, New York, Arizona and California but wants to work in Ohio.

—"Have as many of our own children as possible." Ariane said she still is recovering from a miscarriage last Christmas Eve.

Ariane was living in Europe when she read of the Sheppard case and began correspondence with him in 1960. The daughter of a wealthy German industrialist, she has a simple explanation for their marriage in Chicago last summer:

"It was love, and love alone. I'll always stand by him, no matter what happens."

Formosa Warns Against Red Bomb

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) —Nationalist China urged today that "positive measures should be taken without delay to prevent the Chinese Communists from acquiring a nuclear capability."

A statement issued by a Foreign Office spokesman, Patrick Pichi Sun, was in effect an appeal for destruction of the atomic installations through which Mao-tung's Red regime exploded a nuclear device last Oct. 16.

U.S. and British authorities have disclosed they expect the Communist Chinese to stage a second test within a few days to a few weeks.

Undercover Hero Hailed in Bomb Plot Smashing

NEW YORK (AP) — Raymond Adolphus Wood was just a face in the crowd before emerging as the undercover hero who helped smash the plot to dynamite three of America's famed shrines.

"I just tried to do my best," said the 31-year-old Negro rookie policeman.

"You did more than your best," interrupted Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy, who promoted Wood on the spot to detective.

That was the scene at a news conference Tuesday at police headquarters.

Wood went to the 11th grade in a high school in Chester, S.C. He joined the Air Force in 1951, spent four years in service, mostly as a communications specialist in Germany. He achieved the rank of airman first class.

Wood was born in New York City on May 18, 1933. Most of his life, however, was spent in Chester, a small South Carolina town of 7,000 in the northern part of the state. He played football in high school.

After leaving the service, Wood drifted through a series of jobs — Teletype operator, insurance claims examiner and cost accountant — before joining the police force 10 months ago.

He attended night classes for 1½ years at New York University's School of Commerce, accounts and finance. He dropped out when tuition costs became a problem.

Next he attended City College, but left after one semester. He flunked a mathematics course. He tried Fordham University's School of Business. Again, he had to quit when his grades fell below average.

"He was quite intelligent and a very good writer," a Fordham spokesman said. "I guess he just wasn't cut out for business."

He quickly found his niche in police work. Last summer he was called out of his classes at the New York City Police Academy. He was selected for undercover work.

His assignment: Infiltrate a pro-Cuban, pro-Communist Chinese group called the Black Liberation Front.

The spectacular payoff came with the arrest of four persons charged with conspiring to blow up the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

Wood's promotion from rookie policeman to third grade detective means a jump in salary from $6,325 a year to $8,126.

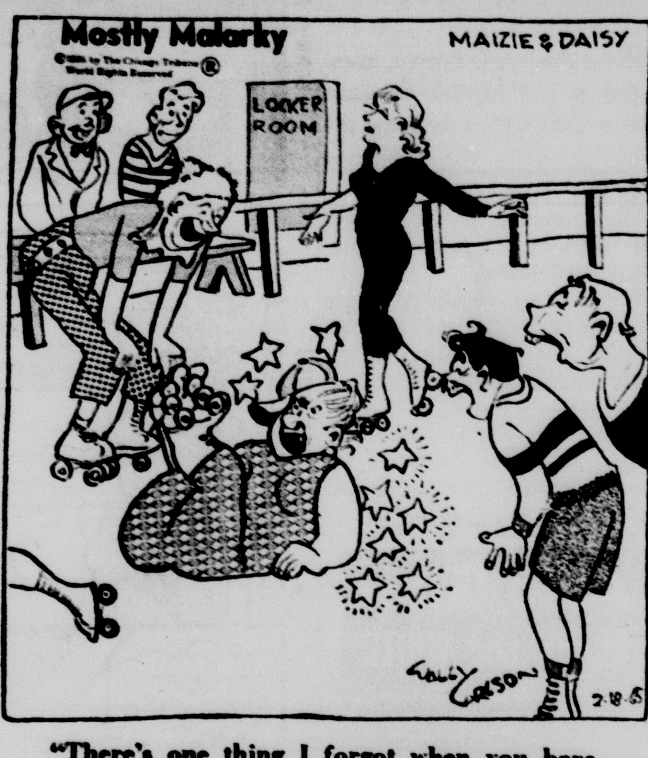
"There was nothing lucky about this case," said Commissioner Murphy. "An undercover man risked his life for months."

CHURCH IN POLITICS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The church has an obligation to speak and act where political issues involve moral and human values, says the New York State Council of Churches in its Statement of Legislative Principles for 1965, which highlighted the civil rights problem.

"We are disturbed by the fact that in most cases churches and other religious organizations, private clubs and non-profit organizations are exempt from anti-discrimination provisions of the law," the document says.

Before white men came to Georgia, the Creek Indians settled in the south and the Cherokee established villages in the highlands.



"There's one thing I forgot when you boys talked us into going roller skating—I forgot to have my head examined."

New Prison Warden Is Sought by State

DENVER (UPI)— State Sen. Harry Locke, R-Hartsel, and Rep. Everett Cook, D-Canon City, called today for appointment of a Colorado resident as state prison warden.

Gov. John A. Love has said the state will make a nationwide search for the best man to succeed Harry Tinsley, who is quitting as warden to devote full time to the job of chief of corrections.

Cook wrote a letter to the State Civil Service Commission opposing this plan.

"I would very much like to see this position filled by an employe from our own custodial institutions, and recommend that the examination (for the job) be confined to those qualified from this group," Cook said.

"My reasoning for this request is based upon the fact that Warden Harry Tinsley is a product of the program which we are currently following, and he is recognized as one of the top penologists and custodial administrators in the nation."

The prison is located in Cook's hometown of Canon City.

Locke said only Colorado residents should be considered in the search for a successor to Tinsley.

With skiing a year-round activity in Switzerland, there are more than 600 mechanized lifts throughout the country.

ALLIGATOR PURCHASE

NEW YORK (UPI) — B.V.D. Co. announced Wednesday it is negotiating to purchase Alligator Co. of St. Louis, Mo., a manufacturer of rainwear and all-weather coats, for cash.

B.V.D. did not discuss price, other than to say that it would be a multi-million dollar transaction.

Expansion of State Fair Is Proposed

DENVER (UPI) — Rep. Thomas Farley, D-Pueblo, introduced a bill in the Colorado House Tuesday to rename the state fair as the "State Fair and Industrial Exposition."

The measure would expand the scope of the fair, held annually in Pueblo.

The bill also would increase the size of the State Fair Commission from five to nine members.

Tourism is the second most important source of foreign income in Switzerland, surpassed only by the machine industry.

Expansion of State Fair Is Proposed

DENVER (UPI) — Rep. Thomas Farley, D-Pueblo, introduced a bill in the Colorado House Tuesday to rename the state fair as the "State Fair and Industrial Exposition."

The measure would expand the scope of the fair, held annually in Pueblo.

The bill also would increase the size of the State Fair Commission from five to nine members.

Tourism is the second most important source of foreign income in Switzerland, surpassed only by the machine industry.

Peter Hayes Acquires His Own Island

By JOAN CROSBY

NEW YORK (NEA) — Hey, there, John Donne, who said "no man is an island." Meet Peter Lind Hayes, who is trying to be one.

Peter, host of CBS-TV's Sunday afternoon Alumni Fun, is undoubtedly the only man in history to buy his island from his boss.

Peter's Pebble, as he calls his island in Long Island Sound, was originally called Little Pea Island, perhaps because when the tide is in the acre of land is reduced to only 125 square feet. It was purchased by CBS, where for years it housed a radio tower and provided a landmark for navigators.

"When you saw that CBS tower on a boat trip down from New England," Peter said, "you knew you were home."

When CBS moved its radio tower to City Island, Peter bought Little Pea. Besides one barren island that is "great if you have webbed feet and is a seagull's paradise," he got a building with living quarters, a 28-foot cabin cruiser, 60 feet of waterfront property and a 17-ton tugboat that draws six feet of water.

Peter's lovely wife, Mary Healy, who has been sailing uneasily with him for the 24 years they have been married, feels secure on the water for the first time in that tug, Peter says. "We are the Ma and Pa Kettle of Westchester in that thing."

"This could be the most beautiful thing anywhere near New York City. I can just see our Alumni Fun sponsor (American Cyanimid) building a Formica house on the island, with a roaring fireplace and picture windows that look East." Whether the sponsor shares this insular dream is uncertain.

There is a beautifully constructed basement on the island, and four cement blocks that do not fill any urgent need in Hayes' life. Each consists of a quarter-million tons of cement. They were used to hold the radio tower.

If Peter should decide to secede from the union and form his own country, the blocks could hold the machine gun towers.

"We don't have a moat, but I do plan a drawbridge, which will be raised at all times.

"And I might revive a most dangerous game," Peter said, warming to the dream, "of short-circuiting Execution Light and having ships pile on the rocks where my friends and I could plunder them.

"I also plan to knight people and sell titles. When all my friends have been invested, then I will call a Pebblecite."

'SAFER' SEX

NEW YORK (UPI)—Women are the "safer sex" when it comes to accidents, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

Nearly 10 million more men than women were injured in accidents of all kinds in the 12-month period ended June, 1964, the Institute said after analyzing National Health Survey data for the period. The injury breakdown by sex was: men, 31,548,000; women, 21,630,000.

Use of Game, Fish Funds Attacked

DENVER (AP) — Rep. Everett Cook, D-Canon City, said today that up to $1,000 a year in game and fish funds are being used by the state for other than game and fish purposes in violation of state law.

He introduced a bill which would require separation of a game cash fund from other state funds.

Cook said that interest on game and fish money has been put in the general fund for use of other state agencies. He said this violates a Colorado law requiring all game, fish and parks money to be used by the Game, Fish and Parks Department.

"For years there has been continuous and repeated attemps to use or divert game and fish funds for purposes other than game and fish," said Cook. "We sportsmen have been on guard to repeal these attempts.

"It appeared now all have been caught asleep . . ."

T. S. Eliot Was Poet Spokesman For Generation

By MASON COOLEY
Written for Associated Press

Although T. S. Eliot called himself "classicist in literature, royalist in politics, and Anglo-Catholic in religion," he became, somewhat unwillingly, the poetic spokesman for a generation largely Romantic in literary taste, democratic in politics, and secular in belief.

Although he defended continuity and tradition in literature, Eliot himself effected a revolution in poetic language and technique comparable to the innovations of the Romantic poets a century earlier. And although he hoped to reach a wide audience through his lucidly constructed plays, it is the most difficult and obscure of the poems, "The Waste Land," that has had the deepest cultural effect.

But the contrast between Eliot's intentions and the response of his public is more apparent than real. True, few became royalist in politics or Anglo-Catholic in religion after reading him, and Dylan Thomas parodied the whole program by announcing himself "a Welshman, a drunkard, and a heterosexual." Nevertheless, Eliot accomplished with overwhelming success one of the tasks he assigned to poetry: He brought his generation to a new perception of its own identity and its situation in the world.

When "The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock" appeared in 1917, it anticipated the Twenties' mood of moral exhaustion and self-irony. The diffident and aging hero is filled with spoken disgust both for himself and for his world of small anxieties, empty tea-time talks, and ultimate personal isolation. This poem of "might-have-beens," as the novelist E. M. Forster says, "rang out with the precision of a gong." So eloquently did it express the feeling of self-doubt and spiritual weariness that it became almost like a popular song among the intellectuals of the Twenties.

"Prufrock" attracted admirers, but the appearance of "The Waste Land" in 1922 forced recognition of Eliot as a major poet. Many older readers resented its lack of a readily apparent "meaning."

But to younger readers the poem came with all the force of revelation. They needed no easily grasped "meaning" or story to occupy them while the poem did its work upon them. They recognized in its fragmented mirror the landscape of spiritual desolation within and the landscape of a disintegrating social order without.

In the poem's images of stony rubbish, desert wastes, burning cities, ghostly crowds and corrupted beauty they saw what Eliot once called "the immense panorama of futility and anarchy which is contemporary history." For its early readers, "The Waste Land" was a brilliant chaos of images that seemed intensely real because it gave form to their own sense of boredom, horror, and ugliness. It also seemed to sanction the prevalent cynicism of the period.

Few noticed that the poem, though dark and difficult, was neither chaotic nor despairing. Eliot saw the glory as well as the horror and the boredom of life. He was not writing specifically about the disillusionment that followed World War I; he was writing about the sterility of human life in general when it is severed both from its organic roots in nature and from a living religion. The poem does not end on a note of desperation, but with the voice of the thunder, which ambiguously presages rain that will bring renewal.

Far more than "The Waste Land," "The Hollow Men" (1925) is Eliot's real contribution to the poetry of despair. The world becomes a senseless void, and men emptied of desire and reason dance madly around the prickly pear in a lunatic reenactment of childhood games and forgotten ritual, fearful of hearing the voice of the Lord. The poem ends with the perhaps most frequently quoted of all Eliot's lines:

> Not with a bang but a whimper.

Between 1935 and 1942, Eliot wrote the greatest poems of his career. The "Four Quartets" have often been compared to the last quartets of Beethoven in their complex harmonies and austere beauty. A great series of meditations on time, history, eternity, language, rebirth, and faith, the "Four Quartets" brought Eliot to the hard-won spiritual poise in which suffering is accepted and faith is affirmed. With the last of the "Four Quartets" Eliot's poetry completed its spiritual journey from the elegant ironies of "Prufrock" to the meditative heights at which the fires of purgatorial suffering and the holy rose of faith are one.

Although the poetic achievement of these poems was generally recognized, they had nothing like the cultural impact of "The Waste Land." Appearing in a decade preoccupied with the Depression, the Spanish civil war, and the rise of Fascism, the religious and devotional "Four Quartets" seemed less immediately relevant than the brilliantly rhetorical political verse being written by W. H. Auden, Stephen Spender, and Louis MacNiece.

After the "Four Quartets," Eliot turned from lyric poetry to drama, and in the 1950s wrote three verse plays — "The Cocktail Party," "The Confidential Clerk," and "The Elder Statesman." The first two enjoyed considerable success, but none represents an achievement equal to his earlier play, "Murder in the Cathedral." It is a biting, eloquent depiction of the redemption of sin through the death of a martyr. Never quite able to create a theater in which poetry and drama would again be joined, Eliot is nevertheless a dramatist of genuine distinction, and his theoretical discussions of poetic drama are of great interest as literary criticism.

Understandably so, for Eliot was the most influential literary critic of his generation.

His literary judgments, made with seeming diffidence and carefully hedged about with qualifications, nevertheless had behind them all the force of his sure taste, erudition, and supple rhetoric.

Consequently, his literary values became, by and large, the literary values of his generation. He championed poetry informed by a sense of history and tradition, making the poetry of Dante a touchstone for what is central in European culture.

He argued that the highest poetry is impersonal and objective rather than self-expressive; it should strive for concentration, energy, and complexity. Fearful of the divorce between thought and feeling, he wanted to unite them in dramatic objectivity and concrete images.

Sentences of Two Killers Are Commuted

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John A. Love has commuted the sentences of convicted killers Gene Dukes and Joe Sam Walker, it was disclosed today.

The commutations were contained in an annual report to the Colorado Legislature prepared by Love.

Dukes was sentenced to the state penitentiary on March 24, 1954, for life. Love commuted his sentence to a minimum of 33 years and one month and left the maximum at life. Dukes would now be eligible for parole on March 24, 1969.

Walker was sentenced to the prison July 21, 1949, to serve a term of 80 years to life for second degree murder.

Love commuted Walker's sentence to a minimum of 40 years and a maximum life. Walker now could be paroled on July 28, 1967.

Dukes, at that time a 20-year-old Georgia farm boy, was convicted of conspiring with Leroy Leick, then 30, in the Dec. 1, 1953, murder-for-insurance of Leick's wife Evelyn.

He started serving a life sentence in 1954. Leick later was executed for the crime.

Walker, 47, was sentenced to 80 years to life for the sensational 1948 rape-slaying of University of Colorado coed Theresa Foster, 18.

He has always maintained his innocence, and said a "blond man" attacked him and killed the girl and hid the body in his car.

Walker last week petitioned U.S. District Court in Denver for his release.

The prison said Dukes had been a good prisoner and recommended him for favorable consideration.

The prison said Walker was a good parole risk and recommended him for favorable consideration, "having received no reports for infraction of prison rules.

Both Walker and Dukes would lose their commutations if they should violate any parole granted.

But to younger readers the poem came with all the force of revelation. They needed no easily grasped "meaning" or story to occupy them while the poem did its work upon them. They recognized in its fragmented mirror the landscape of spiritual desolation within and the landscape of a disintegrating social order without.

In the poem's images of stony rubbish, desert wastes, burning cities, ghostly crowds and corrupted beauty they saw what Eliot once called "the immense panorama of futility and anarchy which is contemporary history." For its early readers, "The Waste Land" was a brilliant chaos of images that seemed intensely real because it gave form to their own sense of boredom, horror, and ugliness. It also seemed to sanction the prevalent cynicism of the period.

Few noticed that the poem, though dark and difficult, was neither chaotic nor despairing. Eliot saw the glory as well as the horror and the boredom of life. He was not writing specifically about the disillusionment that followed World War I; he was writing about the sterility of human life in general when it is severed both from its organic roots in nature and from a living religion. The poem does not end on a note of desperation, but with the voice of the thunder, which ambiguously presages rain that will bring renewal.

Far more than "The Waste Land," "The Hollow Men" (1925) is Eliot's real contribution to the poetry of despair. The world becomes a senseless void, and men emptied of desire and reason dance madly around the prickly pear in a lunatic reenactment of childhood games and forgotten ritual, fearful of hearing the voice of the Lord. The poem ends with the perhaps most frequently quoted of all Eliot's lines:

This is the way the world ends
Not with a bang but a whimper.

Between 1935 and 1942, Eliot wrote the greatest poems of his career. The "Four Quartets" have often been compared to the last quartets of Beethoven in their complex harmonies and austere beauty. A great series of meditations on time, history, eternity, language, rebirth, and faith, the "Four Quartets" brought Eliot to the hard-won spiritual poise in which suffering is accepted and faith is affirmed. With the last of the "Four Quartets" Eliot's poetry completed its spiritual journey from the elegant ironies of "Prufrock" to the meditative heights at which the fires of purgatorial suffering and the holy rose of faith are one.

Although the poetic achievement of these poems was generally recognized, they had nothing like the cultural impact of "The Waste Land." Appearing in a decade preoccupied with the Depression, the Spanish civil war, and the rise of Fascism, the religious and devotional "Four Quartets" seemed less immediately relevant than the brilliantly rhetorical political verse being written by W. H. Auden, Stephen Spender, and Louis MacNiece.

After the "Four Quartets," Eliot turned from lyric poetry to drama, and in the 1950s wrote three verse plays — "The Cocktail Party," "The Confidential Clerk," and "The Elder Statesman." The first two enjoyed considerable success, but none represents an achievement equal to his earlier play, "Murder in the Cathedral." It is a biting, eloquent depiction of the redemption of sin through the death of a martyr. Never quite able to create a theater in which poetry and drama would again be joined, Eliot is nevertheless a dramatist of genuine distinction, and his theoretical discussions of poetic drama are of great interest as literary criticism.

Understandably so, for Eliot was the most influential literary critic of his generation.

His literary judgments, made with seeming diffidence and carefully hedged about with qualifications, nevertheless had behind them all the force of his sure taste, erudition, and supple rhetoric.

Consequently, his literary values became, by and large, the literary values of his generation. He championed poetry informed by a sense of history and tradition, making the poetry of Dante a touchstone for what is central in European culture.

He argued that the highest poetry is impersonal and objective rather than self-expressive; it should strive for concentration, energy, and complexity. Fearful of the divorce between thought and feeling, he wanted to unite them in dramatic objectivity and concrete images.

Sentences of Two Killers Are Commuted

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John A. Love has commuted the sentences of convicted killers Gene Dukes and Joe Sam Walker, it was disclosed today.

The commutations were contained in an annual report to the Colorado Legislature prepared by Love.

Dukes was sentenced to the state penitentiary on March 24, 1954, for life. Love commuted his sentence to a minimum of 33 years and one month and left the maximum at life. Dukes would now be eligible for parole on March 24, 1969.

Walker was sentenced to the prison July 21, 1949, to serve a term of 80 years to life for second degree murder.

Love commuted Walker's sentence to a minimum of 40 years and a maximum life. Walker now could be paroled on July 28, 1967.

Dukes, at that time a 20-year-old Georgia farm boy, was convicted of conspiring with Leroy Leick, then 30, in the Dec. 1, 1953, murder-for-insurance of Leick's wife Evelyn.

He started serving a life sentence in 1954. Leick later was executed for the crime.

Walker, 47, was sentenced to 80 years to life for the sensational 1948 rape-slaying of University of Colorado coed Theresa Foster, 18.

He has always maintained his innocence, and said a "blond man" attacked him and killed the girl and hid the body in his car.

Walker last week petitioned U.S. District Court in Denver for his release.

The prison said Dukes had been a good prisoner and recommended him for favorable consideration.

The prison said Walker was a good parole risk and recommended him for favorable consideration, "having received no reports for infraction of prison rules.

Both Walker and Dukes would lose their commutations if they should violate any parole granted.

"I get so many letters asking me for help on bleaching problems and I always point out that today's modern home needs two bleaches. Not only a heavy-duty chlorine bleach, but DEXOL too. New Hollywood Hopeful Wants Lots of Money

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ready for another film star named Sean? This one is surnamed Garrison, and out at Universal City they're saying he has the same stuff as the Sean called Connery.

No Bondsman is Garrison. The handsome Irishman is playing the romantic lead opposite Jean Seberg in "Moment to Moment," directed by Mervyn Leroy. The new Sean possesses a simple ambition: "I hope to become a tax-office commodity."

His candor is refreshing after the wave of method actors who parrot such claims as, "I want only to give good performances; I don't want to be a 'movie star'." In most cases, the public obliges them.

Sean Garrison is a different type. He hopes to achieve the heights in Hollywood, with all the power and glory that go with being a star. Such ambition is only natural in a fellow who was earning his own living on the sidewalks of New York at the age of 9.

Sean figures he received his performing skill from his mother — "She was from the old country (Ireland) and she could spin a great story." His father died when the boy was 5, and Sean soon became the man of the family.

"By 9 I had my own shoeshine box," he recalled. "Business was pretty competitive among shoeshine boys in Manhattan, so I had to discover some way to build a better trade. I found it one day when a man asked me to sing a song while I gave him a shine. I sang 'Home on the Range' and he gave me $1.20."

Sean knew a good thing when he saw it, and soon he built an entire repertoire of songs, even combining with a pal on duets.

"I did my best business on holidays," said Sean. "I had songs for each of them — 'My Buddy' for Memorial Day, 'Mother Machree' for Mother's Day, and so forth. I'd go from bar to bar singing them."

He gave up his sidewalk operatics after a few years and worked on a dairy farm in upper New York State. At 15 he cut out, figuring high school was not for him..

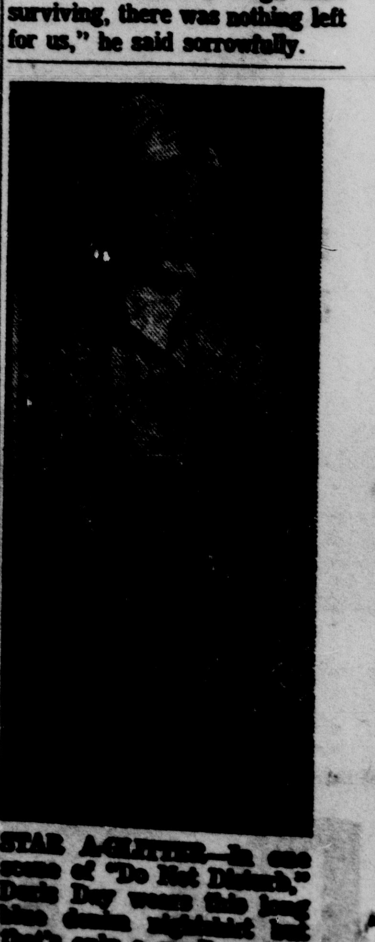
"I was filled with dreams from books I had read by Richard Halliburton and Jack London," he said. "I figured that was the way to live."

So he drifted south, to the Caribbean and all over, taking jobs at everything from bowling pin-boy to sponge fisherman. By 1955 he had landed in California and was working in a furniture and tile factory.

A friend suggested he try for a job in television. He did — and ended up as film librarian at ABC. But he later landed a contract at Warner Brothers and for a year galloped from one television Western to another.

Sean returned to New York, worked a little, starved a lot, got married, took a variety of jobs, including Santa Claus at Gimbel's. He started to click in plays and was discovered in the road company of "Camelot" by tract, but meanwhile lost his marriage.

"We had such a rough time surviving, there was nothing left for us," he said sorrowfully.



STAR A-GLITTER—In one scene of "Do Not Disturb," Doris Day wears this long blue denim nightshirt but that's only a small portion of her film wardrobe. Doris actually has 50 costumes for the picture, the most glamorous one being a $7,500 orange-and-sequin evening gown.
